San Francisco Labor Urged To Strike in Riot Protest

Parley Called to Decide on Walkout; 45,000 Are Affected.

Troops Guarding Dock Workers

Unionists Pay Tribute to Strikers Slain by Police.

San Francisco, July 6 (AP).—Under the muzzles of National Guard machine guns and bayonet-tipped rifles, an appeal was issued today for a general strike of all union labor in San Francisco in protest against the shooting of waterfront pickets by police in yesterday's riot, and the use of State militia.

The call was issued by the joint strike committee of fifty, representing lonshoremen and maritime unions, after their ranks had paid tribute to the two men shot to death in yesterday's long hours of savage fighting between police and strikers.

Immediately John O'Connell, president of the Central Labor Council, announced representatives of 120 unions with a membership of 45,000 would meet tonight to discuss the advisability of a complete walkout. A two-thirds majority is required to carry a general strike question.

New Appeal for Peace.

At the same time President Roosevelt's labor disputes board, which thus far had worked in vain toward a peaceful settlement, issued a statement again appealing to strikers and employers to submit to arbitration.

The board said all unions involved had indicated their willingness to submit to arbitration "but subject to certain conditions," and that the employers had replied similarly. It added, however, that the differences expressed in the varying conditions made it impossible to proceed and suggested the various factions allow the board members to decide the conditions upon which peacemaking efforts could go ahead.

"The board asks all parties to cooperate with us immediately to that end," the statement concluded.

Shipping Conditions.

The movement of long-delayed cargo from the State-owned waterfront area—a nonunion operation which precipitated the clashes and the calling out of 2,000 guardsmen yesterday—continued today with the bristling machines of war commanding peace.

On a 3-mile front along the Embarcadero, the State-owned thoroughfare skirting the dock area, machine guns poked their noses into the street at intervals of about a block and bayonets glittered in almost a solid line all the way. Atop two piers where the fighting was thickest yesterday other machine gun crews commanded the situation.

A possibility the strike might spread sympathetically among ports of the Atlantic Coast appeared in the statement of Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Long-

Clock-Watchers Get Warning From Ickes

Manicuring on Job and Propping Feet on Desks Hit.

By Gerald G. Gross.

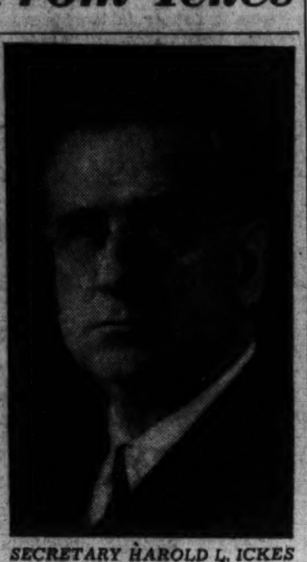
At 3 p. m. the departmental auditorium and the full length of the corridor were filled as thick as a rush hour loading platform with bureau chiefs, $800-a-year clerks and hundreds in between, all on the spot to hear Ickes express his opinions on breakfasting after 8 a. m., stampeding for exits at 3:30 and foot-on-the-desk-propping.

Verily, they were on the spot, the guilty with the innocent. For the Secretary of the Interior and Public Works Administrator had decided a lecture was in order on the evils of manicuring on Uncle Sam's time and the most expedient thing was to assemble the combined forces, Interiors and Public Workers.

He cited the case of a woman employe who had the misfortune to be caught in a 3:30 home rush recently.

"She was run over and stamped on in the stampede to elevators," Ickes said sympathetically, "and no one even stopped to pick her up."

After several days she recovered, the worse for her experience.



SECRETARY HAROLD L. ICKES

"So I plead with you to refrain from committing mayhem on your fellow laborers," he concluded.

U.S. Traders Threaten to Quit France

100 Million Back Tax May Be Demanded by Paris Regime.

Crisis Brought About by Failure of Deputies to Ratify Pact.

Paris, July 6 (AP).—Faced with the prospect of being called upon to pay excess taxes, estimated to aggregate $100,000,000, executives of American firms doing business in France, gave serious consideration to quitting the country as Parliament adjourned today without ratifying the anti-double taxation treaty.

The taxes represent a levy on dividends of American firms estimated to result from their business in France, but many firms have not been paying them and there has been no effort at collection for several years.

A spokesman for American interests said that some concerns already are talking of leaving the country and of the possibility of retaliation in the event efforts are made to collect the taxes now due.

Trade May Be Affected.

The action of a Chamber of Deputies committee in holding up ratification of the treaty, with an intimation that the matter would be connected with war debts, indicated that Franco-American trade may be affected by the tax issue.

The treaty, under which France agreed to abolish the double taxes, was signed in April, 1932, but has been pushed aside each time when it has been brought up for application.

Germain Martin, minister of the treasury, had promised on July 4 to make an effort to get the ratification approved, but the Doumergue government failed to make it a matter of urgent business.

Persons connected with the movement in behalf of the treaty regarded it as unlikely that the matter will be taken up promptly when Parliament reconvenes in October.

State Department Refuses to Comment

Official comment was withheld at the State Department last night on whether or what weapon the United States might wield against France, if that nation presses for collection of $100,000,000 in taxes due from American firms, according to the Associated Press.

Neither was there immediate comment on word that action had been deliberately withheld on the treaty, so as to have a bargaining weapon in war debts revision and to obtain favorable treatment in a new trade agreement with the United States.

Any war debts bargain would have to receive Congressional approval and there is widespread opposition to the downward revision of any war debt agreements. No negotiations with France for a new trade agreement under the Administration's new tariff bargaining program have yet been initiated.

United States Weapon Ready.

The United States has a weapon of retaliation in the new revenue act, which permits imposition of 80 per cent taxes upon the nationals of any nation which discriminates against American firms in taxation.

France's double taxation program was instituted in 1872, but has never been enforced, so that actually no American firms have as yet been

Federal employes must continue to take a 5 per cent cut in their pay checks at least for another six months, the White House disclosed yesterday.

An Executive order, formally continuing the remaining 5 per cent salary reduction until January 1, took its place on the long roster of orders signed by the President before he sailed away on vacation.

The President based his decision on cost of living statistics of the Department of Labor, showing that living expenses throughout the Nation are still 20.2 per cent lower than for the six months ended June 30, 1928—the basic period under the economy act.

Hope for Relief Blasted.

The order blasted whatever hope Government workers held out for further relief than was granted them by Congress in the independent offices act.

At that time, 5 per cent of the original 15 per cent slash was returned to them, retroactive to February 1, and another 5 per cent was remitted July 1.

But not even the most optimistic Federal employes' organizations expected the President to wipe out the pay cut this year entirely, especially in the face of his record in vetoing the independent offices bill, carrying the rebate, as first passed by Congress.

Based On Living Costs.

But White House attaches pointed out that Mr. Roosevelt's action was mandatory under the economy law requiring him to base his pay-cut proclamations every six months on the amount of curtailment in living costs under the 1928 basic period.

Whenever living costs rise to the point where they completely wipe out the differential between 1928 and the current six-month period, he is empowered to proclaim the salary slash at an end.

Yesterday's report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed index figures for the six months ended June 30 at 136.4, more than 20 per cent lower than the 171.0 index figure for the 1928 basic period.

An increase was shown, however, over figures announced early this year for the six-month period ended last December 30, when the index was 135.0.

Critics Prompted Survey.

At that time a furore was aroused in local Government employe circles, where it was claimed Labor Department surveys were based on antiquated methods of appraisal. To quell the disturbance, President Roosevelt authorized Secretary of Labor Perkins to make a special study of local living expenses, with a view to bringing the Labor Department data up to date.

When Congress returned last January, both the American Federation of Government Employes and the National Federation of Government Employes drove for full restoration of the 15 per cent, by legislative enactment.

The President, in a message to the House, announced his willingness to return 5 per cent, but declared the situation justified no further restoration.

McCarran Pushed Demand.

But so strong was Federal worker sentiment in the Senate, coupled with demand for restoration of veterans' benefits, that when Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, offered an amendment for rebating the entire 15 per cent Government cut, the Senate speedily accepted.

House conferees were inclined to stand by the President, however, and when the conference agreement finally was worked out, it called for gradual restoration of only 10 per cent of the total.

The President's action yesterday assures that this agreement will hold force at least until the President issues his next pay proclamation next January, or Congress acts.

Slain Attempting Hitler's Life

An attempt on the life of Chancellor Adolf Hitler (left) was revealed yesterday when it became known that Edmund Heines, Storm Troop leader, was shot down as he rushed upon Hitler with drawn revolver as the latter entered Ernst Roehm's house at Munich.

Breslau Chief Ready to Fire When Shot Felled Him.

Government Acts On Trade Problems

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press.)

Berlin, July 6.—Fears of a new uprising against Adolf Hitler kept Nazi forces on the alert tonight, as the first week after the summary killing of "traitorous" sub leaders came to an end.

That Hitler himself barely escaped death in his "purge" of the revolting Storm Troop chieftains was related at Breslau today on good authority.

Edmund Heines, Breslau police chief and Storm Troop leader, an American citizen there was told, ran up to Hitler with a revolver when the chancellor raided Ernst Roehm's house at Munich.

One of Hitler's aids shot Heines down, saving the chancellor, said the American, who heard the account from a former friend of Heines whom he regarded as absolutely reliable.

Papen Aid Released.

The position of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen appeared somewhat improved tonight when it was announced that three members of his staff, one of whom had been reported killed, had been released from police custody.

While keeping close watch for new outbreaks, the government was busy with its economic problems.

Realizing the acuteness of the economic situation, the authorities took steps to tighten their hold on industry.

There was talk of wartime regulations, including the enforced use of many home-produced substitutes for materials heretofore imported.

Kurt Schmitt, minister of economics, was given sweeping powers to carry out the commercial policies, an act interpreted as a move in the direction of the conservative elements.

Schmitt was even expected by some observers to bring about a relaxation of the anti-Jewish policies as a means of improving foreign trade.

Nazi spokesmen told of the renewed vigilance against revolt after hearing rumors that friends of the executed Roehm, supreme Storm Troop commander, and other victims of Hitler's firing squads were considering a new attempt to overthrow the present government.

Storm Troopers in civilian clothes were said to have met in Berlin secretly today and to have shouted "Revenge!"

This and other reported developments caused the guard in Berlin to be strengthened.

The Nazi press department said that the list of those executed has

Ten Killed As Amsterdam Riot Spreads

Reds Join Unemployed in Battling Police; Many Injured.

Amsterdam, Holland, July 6 (AP). Nine or ten persons were reliably reported to have been killed tonight as riots spead throughout Amsterdam.

Confined for 48 hours to the Jordamm district, new disorders tonight broke simultaneously in 16 other sections.

Police and rioters engaged in numerous district conflicts, and so many were injured that the sanitary service was scarcely able to handle the rush of the wounded.

The disorders were started in the Jordamm district by unemployed men protesting a cut in the municipal dole. They were joined by Communists and for many hours the rioters completely dominated the Jordamm area, a section of workmen's homes.

Troops patrolled the streets on horses, on bicycles, and afoot, and police armored cars, equipped with machine guns, sought snipers.

The district was described as a seething mass of revolt, and police feared that they would be able to end the disorder only after a great deal of bloodshed.

Most of the bridges connecting Jordamm with the rest of the city were closed, but rioters burned two of them.

Several hundred building trades employes and timber dock workers started a strike in sympathy with the rioters.

A delegation of Communist deputies sought a conference with the minister of the interior, but were told that they would first have to stop the disorders.

Kennedy Bans Speculation By Employes

Stock Commission Will Fill Important Posts Soon.

By Robert C. Albright.

Bleaching its own linen before dousing Wall street's family wash in its first tub of Federal regulation, the new Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday issued a pronunciamento banning stock speculation by its own personnel.

It was the first official act of the commission since taking office Tuesday, and Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy promptly made it the last for this week by entraining for Massachusetts for the week-end.

With Ferdinand Pecora in New York, still meditating the prospect of early retirement from the board to resume a private law practice, three members of the commission remaining in Washington wrestled with routine personnel and housing problems.

The commission's move to prevent stock gambling by its own employes had no visible effect upon large numbers of job seekers, who continued to pour applications into the commission's temporary quarters.

A few important posts must be filled in the next few days. Benjamin Cohen, PWA lawyer and coauthor of the stock control act, is being mentioned for general counsel, while John Mothershed, Washington broker, has been talked of for secretary.

Determined to safeguard the commission from any "glass house" insinuations, the order promulgated yesterday placed an effective ban on stock speculation by employes.

Kennedy, the former market trader, made haste to explain that the order reflected no general policy that might be extended to employes of security exchanges or others.

At the same time, he declared the commission has no intention of preventing the sale and purchase of stocks by employes for bona fide investment purposes. But such buys as are made by employes must be made on an outright purchase basis, and subject to commission scrutiny.

The new rule read:

"To the end that this regulation shall be properly observed, it is ordered that

"(1) No employe shall carry any securities on margin, and

"(2) Every employe shall report every transaction in any security,

Hint for Water Obeyed.

New York, July 6 (U.P.).—A city employe turned off a fire hydrant where several hundred children of the lower East Side were cooling themselves. A few minutes later a barrage of potatoes and air-rifle slugs pelted against the windows of the Department of Sewers. The hydrant was turned on again.

Break in D. C. Heat Due Today

96 Is High on 21st Day of Torrid Wave; Rain Is Forecast.

Sizzling Washington yesterday experienced the twenty-first consecutive day of its near record-breaking heat wave. Thundershowers, which will drive the mercury down to the 70s, were predicted by the Weather Bureau for today.

Yesterdays heat, with a high of 96 at 3 p. m., claimed but one additional victim. He was James B. E. Butler, 27, colored, of the 1400 block of T street northwest, a truck driver for the Library of Congress, who was overcome while at work in the garage. Butler was taken to Emergency Hospital, where physicians described his condition as not serious.

The "real relief" from the heat, promised by the Weather Bureau, will come in the form of local electrical storms. The torrid wave will be definitely broken, and cool, pleasant weather will prevail over the week-end, the Weather Bureau said. The showers are expected to continue this afternoon, but clear weather is predicted for tonight.

Because of the intense heat division heads of the National Recovery Administration were instructed at 3:30 p. m. yesterday to dismiss all employes for the day who could be spared.

U.S. Questions Reich on Plan To Pay Loans

Dodd Sees Von Neurath As Germany Installs Trade Dictator.

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

Berlin, July 6.—The Reich's critical financial condition, almost forgotten in the welter of events in the past week, was brought sharply to the fore again today by United States Ambassador William E. Dodd.

He called on Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath. Reliable reports indicated he asked information on Germany's arrangements to pay the interest on the Dawes and Young plan loan bonds during the six months' moratorium on foreign debts now in effect.

Ambassador Dodd told Von Neurath if Germany discriminated against American bondholders, the effect on public opinion in the United States would be "very severe," it was understood.

England and Germany, in London earlier in the week, signed an agreement whereby the Reich agreed to pay British bondholders on these Young and Dawes plan loans during the moratorium. Britain had threatened to seize German cash and make the payments

The Dodd call emphasized that the third Reich was facing a crisis in her foreign relations as well as domestic, due to disturbed economic conditions, growing swiftly worse.

To combat this danger, the cabinet approved a law elevating Kurt Schmitt, minister of economy, to practical trade dictatorship. He will be director of commerce in future, with almost limitless power over trade, industry and business. Schmitt is known as a conservative.

Hitler feels that only by unified control can Germany's unfavorable trade balance be successfully attacked, imports and exports properly adjusted to alleviate the drain on the mark, and the reemployment campaign assured of success. One man also can better see that industrial raw materials are properly distributed to processing units.

Evidences of his unification policy have been seen in Schmitt's industrial regimentation program, the appointment of three supervisory commissars of commerce and industry, and the departure of a delegation to South America to investigate the possibilities for developing new opportunities for barter.

Germany in the last six months has been in a precarious economic situation which the government's sweeping measures have done little or nothing to alleviate, and which

Papen to Ask Permission To Quit Post

Plans to Take His Case to Hindenburg, Ignoring Hitler.

Berlin, July 6 (U.P.).—A fresh drive against monarchistic conservatives was feared tonight when it became known Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen is determined to go over Chancellor Adolf Hitler's head, carrying his case directly to President Paul von Hindenburg.

The United Press was informed by reliable sources that Von Papen intended to proceed to Neudeck, East Prussia, and explain the futility of his continuing in a cabinet dominated by Hitler. He has remained through the events of the past bloody week only at the President's insistence, and may again ask permission to quit the Nazi ministry.

Failing to gain satisfaction in any quarter, he determined again to proceed to Neudeck and lay the facts before the aged president. What upheaval may occur from such a talk can only be conjectured, but it is known that Von Hindenburg has high admiration and affection for the vice chancellor and may go far to protect him.

Von Papen's face clearly shows the strain to which he has been subjected since his bold speech at Marburg June 17, openly criticizinig the Nazi administration. Yet he appears now willing again to risk everything on a final plea to Von Hindenburg, on whom he counts for understanding and support.

Gen. Kurt von Schleicher and his wife, killed by Nazis, were buried quietly shortly before noon in a cemetery at Lichterfelde. After the original funeral plans had been canceled two days ago the household answered all questions, "We are not permitted to say anything."

Baby Girl Drowns In Bathtub Frolic

Lillian Heck, 1-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Heck, of 1716 Bay street southeast, was drowned yesterday afternoon as she played in the bathtub with her brother, Alfred, 2 years old.

Mrs. Heck said the children were playing in the tub, which contained 2 or 3 inches of water, and that she left them alone a few minutes while she went downstairs. When she returned the tub was nearly half full of water and the baby was lying on the bottom. She was pronounced dead when taken to Casualty Hospital. The boy presumably had turned on the water during his mother's absence.

3 Men Killed In Ditch Slide

2 Others, Also Working on Relief Project, May Be Dead.

Waynesboro, Pa., July 6 (Spl.)—Three men were killed and two others were believed dead in a cave-in which occurred this afternoon on the Waynesboro sewer project. The cave-in was believed caused by the breakage of a water main and the subsequent sliding of tons of macadam into the ditch where the men were working.

Pinned beneath the heavy macadam, George Moudy, 30; Edward Miller, 35, and George Hartman, 30, were dead when rescue workers reached the floor of the sewer ditch.

John Baker, 25, who escaped and ran for aid for his imprisoned companions, collapsed upon returning to the scene of the tragedy and is under a physician's care.

Gerald Creager, who was buried beneath the macadam, was rescued when almost suffocated. All of the men were working on the sewer project being constructed with relief funds.

As news of the cave-in spread through the city, the fire department and industries rushed every available respirator to the scene. All relief workers were called to aid in extricating the victims.

Men toiled relentlessly in the extreme heat to reach the imprisoned men. Members of the victims' families stood helplessly by. Many relief workers were overcome and were given first aid treatment. A severe thunderstorm broke while the relief work was at its height.

Notre Dame Gridiron Star Dies.

Campbell Held As Bogus Agent

Herbert M. Campbell, who was acquitted of the murder of Mary Baker, Navy Department clerk, was the first man arrested in the campaign against unlicensed insurance agents, representing bogus companies in the District of Columbia.

Campbell was taken into custody yesterday by Policeman John O. Patton, who has been assigned to the office of Superintendent of Insurance John A. Marshall, to assist in the clean-up of bogus agents. He was released in $300 bond for appearance in Police Court.

Violation of the District insurance law was charged in a formal information filed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal.

While he was in the real estate business four years ago in Arlington County, Va., Campbell turned over to authorities a pistol, which ballistics experts said, had fired the fatal bullets into Mary Baker. At the time, Campbell attempted to incriminate Hermann H. Barrere, who was subsequently charged with the crime, but was later exonerated

After Barrer's arrest in Canada, Campbell was taken into custody. A sensational trial followed and Campbell was acquitted. Campbell now lives at 3500 Fourteenth street northwest.

Armour Stockholders Favor Reorganization

Italian Bankers Deny Hitler Moving Funds

Rome, July 6 (AP).—Reports from London that Chancellor Hitler of Germany has transferred personal funds to Italian banks brought no confirmation from bankers here.

Bankers here said they were unaware of such a move. It was believed here and elsewhere, however, that Italy would be a logical asylum if events in the Reich made it necessary for Hitler to leave.

Former Kaiser Becomes A Great-Grandfather

Berlin, July 6 (AP).—Former Kaiser Wilhelm II, at the age of 75, has become a great-grandfather.

Announcement was made today of the birth of a daughter to Prince Welhelm of Prussia, oldest son of the former crown prince, who broke the Hohenzollern tradition by marrying Dorothea von Salviati, a commoner, in June, 1933.

2 Brothers Die Side by Side In Gas Chamber for Murder

State Prison, Florence, Ariz., July 6 (AP).—Two youthful brothers, convicted of murdering an aged prospector in a $25 holdup a year ago, were strapped side by side and put to death in Arizona's new lethal gas chamber at dawn today—the first time in this country two persons have been executed simultaneously by use of gas.

The brothers, Manuel Hernandez, 18, and Fred Hernandez, 19, were convicted of murdering Charles P. Washburn, Needles (Calif.) prospector, near Casa Grande, Ariz.

As they were strapped into their seats in the death chamber the blindfolded youths were seen to move their lips. Their words were not audible to some 40 witnesses outside the tightly sealed chamber who peered through a double glass window to watch them die.

At 5:09 a. m., a cord concealed behind a white curtain was severed. A mesh bag containing 15 pellets suspended inside the chamber dropped into an acid container on the floor. Gray wisps of deadly gas curled upward. Within three minutes, the boys were dead.

Two physicians listened through elongated stethoscopes taped to the boys' bare breasts and extending outside. They said Manuel died a minute before Fred.

Manuel tried to save his brother by shouldering all blame for Washburn's death, but the pardon board rejected his story.

Loaded Rifle in Mail Shoots Handler in Neck

Buffalo, N. Y., July 6 (AP).—The "mysterious explosion" in a mail pouch that wounded a mail handler at the New York Central terminal last night, was said by postal authorities today to have been caused by the accidental discharge of a loaded rifle in the bag.

Postal Inspector Joseph S. Vick, jr., said a rifle, packed in a travelling bag with some clothes, was in the pouch and discharged when it was dropped on the floor. Patrick Breene, 28, was wounded in the neck.

French Parliament Out; Riot Danger Removed

Paris, July 6 (AP).—Parliament packed up tonight and got out, leaving Premier Gaston Doumergue free to run the country for the next four months.

It was believed Parliament was dismissed in order to avoid all temptation of a new march on the Chamber of Deputies.

5 "Pirates" Steal $200,000 Gems: Ships, Plane Join Hunt

Magnolia, Mass., July 6 (U.P.).—Five brazen bandits, who from their dress looked more like a group of resort musicians, held up a fashionable branch jewelry shop in this exclusive North Shore watering place today and escaped with jewelry valued at $200,000.

Wearing smart sport coats, white trousers, and sport shoes, the heavily armed quintet covered three employes and two wealthy customers in the vacation store of Hodgson-Kennard & Co., Inc., of Boston. With a taste befitting gem connoisseurs, they calmly selected the pieces that interested them. The getaway was made in two automobiles.

Manager Charles A. Orcutt and his two clerks, who since the late forenoon robbery have been attempting to draft a list of the missing jewelry, said tonight that it included:

Every ring in the store—about 130 in all—including diamonds, rubies, emeralds, and sapphires; as well as bracelets, gold necklaces, brooches, pendants, bar pins, and watches with stone settings.

"They cleaned us out of our stone jewelry," said Orcutt. "They left all the unset gold and silver. They knew their jewelry."

Search for the bandits was in progress tonight by land, sea, and air—for the departure of what were described as "two mysterious yachts" from nearby Gloucester near the time of the robbery gave rise to a theory that the thieves may have been "land pirates" who used both automobiles and boats. Coast Guard patrol boats and a Coast Guard seaplane sought the reputedly strange craft.

Nazis Alert, Fear Renewal Of Revolution

A full communique from Hitler, telling all about the mutiny, will be forthcoming within a few days, the press department reported.

Victor Lutze, who succeeded Roehm as head of the Storm Troopers, today gave the first official confirmation that the force of 2,000,000 will be reduced after the July vacation.

Reorganization, he wrote in Der Angriff, Propaganda Minister Goebbels' newspaper, might involve a reduction in number.

Most persons in close touch with the situation believe that less than 20 per cent of the present number will be retained.

Lutze expressed the view that the former leaders had opened the ranks to Communists and other anti-Nazis and declared that hereafter only true Nazis can belong to the organization.

Assurances that the old enmity between the Storm Troopers and the Stahlhelm (veterans' organization) was ended was given by Franz Seldte, cabinet minister and head of the Stahlhelm.

Seldte told leaders of the organization that he had a long conference with Lutze and that fraternal cooperation will prevail hereafter.

Less than two weeks ago, Hitler turned down a Storm Troop demand—from some of the men who since have been executed—that the Stahlhelm be dissolved.

Throughout Silesia, which was particularly disturbed by the killing of the powerful Heines, intense efforts were made to impress the public that the "second revolution" is over and that there is nothing more to be expected except loyal Nazi cooperation.

Commander Herzog, who succeeded Heines and Storm Troop chief for Silesia, indicated that his forces will not be reduced and that students who were serving compulsory terms, must continue in the ranks.

In this connection, however, it was recalled that until Lutze's statement today the policy had been to soft-pedal reduction of the uniformed party force.

Reports that Michael Cardinal Faulhaber at Munich was molested or placed under guard were denied, and it was stated that an unofficial communique to that effect will be forthcoming.

One of the economic steps of a rather drastic nature so far as individuals are concerned was an appeal from Nazi leaders for all unmarried persons under 25 to give up their jobs in favor of married men.

The young men were appealed to offer themselves for farm labor and the young women to give up factory or office to prepare for "later duties as German housewvies and mothers."

Among its other troubles Germany found itself in a "newspaper war" with Switzerland, as a result of the banning of Swiss papers because of their accounts of Hitler's "liquidation" of the opposing Storm Troop leaders.

The foreign office was advised that three German papers—Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter, Goebbel's Angriff and the Boersen Zeitung—had been barred for two weeks.

If the German ban remains on after that date the retaliation will continue, it was indicated, although this was said to be the first time Switzerland ever placed an embargo against a foreign newspaper.

Plans of French Minister Andre Francois-Poncet to carry any further his protest against the intimation that France was the "foreign power" involved in the Roehm plot appeared to have been abandoned in return for the generous publication in the German press of his vigorous denial.

2 Prominent Names Put on Munich Death List

Munich, Germany, July 6 (AP).—The names of two prominent figures of pre-Nazi Germany were added today to the list of those known to have been killed in Munich last Saturday as the total of known dead reached 21.

Former Lieut. Richard Scheringer, well-known personality in early days of the Nazi movement, who later turned Communist, was found dead near Dachau Concentration Camp, along with several other victims.

Karl Stuetzel, former minister of interior of Bavaria, who was turned out of office by the Nazis, was another of those slain.

Scheringer was one of the three Reichswehr officers convicted of attempted treason in the famous trial at Liepzig in 1930, at which Adolf Hitler testified that "heads will fall."

(The three young officers were sentenced to short prison terms, a verdict which Hitler, who had testified as to the aims of his movement, denounced at the time.)

The total of 21 dead compared with seven officially announced and included three minor followers of Ernst Roehm, executed Storm Troop commander.

Alexander Glaser, a lawyer, was shot down in the presence of his wife, it was learned, as he turned to reach for a hat.

Excursionists told of seeing bodies on a moorland near Dachau Concentration Camp Sunday morning.

One of the victims whose death was confirmed only today was Hans von Seasser, aristocratic leader of the Munich state police.

Three members of the family of Baron Erwein von Aretin, former head of the now dissolved Royalist "Home and King" Society, were among those arrested.

U. S. Spending Attacked

Senator Vandenberg Sounds Warning Note in Magazine Article; Controlled Inflation Also Draws Fire.

There is "no such thing as controlled inflation," Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, declared in a magazine article yesterday in which he assails the "present epidemic of lax borrowing and money-making."

In an interview for the Magazine of Wall Street, the Michigan Senator, erstwhile leader of the Republican Young Guard in the Senate, warns that the public must call a halt if the Government is to be kept from ruinous demoralization of the currency.

After citing the unprecedented Government spending, the creation of "a fictitious profit" by devaluation of the dollar, and the widespread indifference to "monetary abstractions," he said:

Inflation Rapped.

"In other words, we have reached point where it will be easy to dally with out-anu-out inflation of the currency. Indeed, it may not be a matter of choice but of necessity. At the same time that we are spending as no other nation has spent in all history we are wobbling mightily in our conceptions of the nature of money.

"We have a callous indifference to treasury deficits and a growing belief that we can manufacture money even more expeditiously than we can make debts.

"Inflation of a nation's currency always begins with a chronic budgetary deficit. Sometimes the deficit is inevitable, sometimes it is recklessly accumulated.

"Once deficits become chronic and cumulative there is no way to pay governmental bills except by borrowing, by onerous taxation, or by printing money, either directly or through the central banks.

"So far we have had no difficulty in borrowing stupendous sums of money at low interest rates. But there will come a time when lenders will become fearful and reluctant and the price of borrowing prohibitive. Then we will have to turn to heavy taxation. Our people, I think, after these years of sacrifice, deprivation and unemployment for millions, will not endure such taxation. Then the money printing presses will come into their own. The only escape from the horrors of inflation is an early cessation of our huge spending. That is possible and probable if prosperity soon returns, but not likely if business activity continues at about 60 per cent of normal and 10,000,000 of idle workers must be cared for out of the public purse.

"There is no such thing as rigidly controlled fiat money. The only Governmental control is merely a limitation imposed by Congress, which always has the power to change its mind and its limitation; and once the inflation avalanche starts, it will be compelled to raise the limit just as certainly as water runs down hill. Currency inflation is a sort of monetary perpetual motion, which generates its own speed of growth.

"I asked one of my colleagues, on the floor of the Senate awhile ago, what would happen if we could put into actual circulation even the $13,000,000,000 of existing currency, as against about $6,000,000000 in use. He promptly replied although an inflationist, that the dollar would fall to about 10 cents in worth. And there are observers in Washington who predict that that is where the dollar will land before we get through this present epidemic of lax borrowing and lax money-making.

Result of Process.

"The result of such a process of putting 'lots of money' into the hands of the people would be to take their money-wealth away from them—all their cash surpluses, all their working capital, all their savings—except as they were in substantial property, whether in the form of title deeds, possession or equity stocks. And the real value even of these might be annihiliated or turned over to smart and shifty speculators in a chaotic final crash. All business confidence would be completely shattered as money progresively declined to zero. In my judgment, the one calamity which the United States could not survive would be uncontrolled inflation through the printing press.

"I am confident that the American people will not permit the creation of a condition which will leave no alternative but fiat inflation, and its train of disasters. I am sure that if they are not already informed of the terrors of uncontrolled inflation, which always fall most heavily upon the middle class of professional people, merchants, and the great army of salary and wage earners they will learn the truth in time to prevent a catastrophe. Nobody profits from a full cycle of inflation except shrewd and experienced speculators who have the means, the courage, the opportunities, and the foresight to turn money into things of enduring value and liquidate real debts with unreal money."

were aggravated recently by cutting imports to the bone to save the Reichsbank's dwindling stock of foreign exchange.

Undoubtedly the big question mark in Germany's immediate future is far more economic than political. The fact that in their efforts to push their reemployment program the Nazi government had to depress wage levels is a source of ever-present danger.

Retail trade is going through a bad slump. Further, harvests will probably be considerably below normal, due to pronounced droughts all spring, though not as disastrous as early reports indicated. There is no visible ground for assuming anything approaching a food shortage faces Germany.

Dorothea Holliedt Estate Is $128,653

Home Is to Be Endowed After Death of Sister.

Dorothea Holliedt, 4604 Thirteenth street northwest, who died July 1, left an estate valued at $128,653, it was shown yesterday when a petition for probate of her will was filed in the District Supreme Court.

Through Attorney John E. Larson it was disclosed that real estate valued at $13,653 and personal property valued at $117,000 had been left. After several small bequests are taken from the estate, the residue is to be held in trust by the American Security and Trust Co. for the benefit of Mathilda Holliedt, a sister.

Upon her death, the estate is to be used in the endowment of a home for women over 55 years old. It is to be known as the Dorothea and Mathilda Holliedt Memorial Home.

Woman's Screams Rout Takoma Park Burglar

Awakened by a noise yesterday, Mrs. Louis A. Alberti, 409 Takoma avenue, Takoma Park, Md., saw a colored man ransacking the pockets of her husband's trousers. Her screams awakened her husband and frightened the robber.

Alberti gave chase, following the man into the basement and through a side door which had been forced. Overtaken in a nearby woods, the intruder told Alberti he would shoot if he followed. Alberti gave up the chase and returned to the house, to find that $4 had been taken from his wife's pocketbook. Takoma Park police were notified.

Patronage Row Only Dormant, Byrns Reveals

Democrats Still Irked by Lack of Jobs, Party Survey Discloses.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, disclosed yesterday that several House Democrats still are dissatisfied with the way Federal jobs are distributed.

The House leader revealed this in commenting on returns to the Democratic Congressional campaign committee's recent questionnaire. The committee asked Democratic members a lot of questions, among them whether they were satisfied with patronage, and, if not, why not.

"There has been some criticism of the way patronage is being handled," Byrns said. "In fact, the only objections we've got so far have been on that."

"What's the trouble?" Byrns was asked.

"Why, Democrats are just not getting the Federal jobs," he replied.

Patronage has bothered House Democrats and leaders since early last session. The first session after President Roosevelt took office, few jobs were passed out. But Democrats believed the jobs would come along later.

Few had developed, however, when the last session convened. Those dissatisfied forced a party caucus, which Postmaster General Farley addressed. That held things in check.

Just before the session ended, however, renewed objections were heard. So the Congressional committee took it up with members. Byrns said the questionnaire was sent only to about 100 House Democrats who had not been consulted personally. The leader said he was pleased by answers to the question whether President Roosevelt's popularity was increasing or decreasing.

"They all phrase it a little different," Byrns said, "but the sum and substance is that if Roosevelt were running this fall he would get a bigger majority than two years ago."

High Paris Tax May Force U.S. Firms to Leave

Failure of Deputies to Ratify Treaty Brings Trade Crisis.

forced to pay the excess taxes. Excluding taxes assessed which are not outlawed by the statute of limitations, it was estimated that American firms would be required to pay approximately $2,000,000 in back taxes, if forced to meet the French law's requirements.

After a series of diplomatic discussions, France and the United States signed a treaty in 1932 under which American firms would have been excluded from the double tax. The treaty was ratified by the United States Senate the same year, but does not become effective until ratified by both governments.

Ground for Protest.

Aside from protests based on broad principles of equity and commercial policy, the United States faces a difficult task in obtaining the French government's approval of the treaty in the face of the French Parliament's failure to ratify.

Belgium and Italy have signed treaties with France under which their nations are exempt from the double taxation, however, and administration officials predict it may be possible for this country to register a valid protest because of the discrimination against Americans and the preferential treatment accorded Belgians and Italians.

Quick Delivery Of Plane Made

Navy Flier Is Back From Two-Day Round Trip to California.

Taking advantage of a holiday and staying away from his desk one day, Lieut. H. B. Temple, U. S. N., attached to the Bureau of Aeronautics here, completed a round trip to San Diego, Calif., to make delivery on a new airplane.

The speedy trip was made in routine fashion with no special preparations. Temple flew from the Anacostia station at 4:45 a. m. July 3. He proceeded to Midland, Tex., by way of Fairfield, Ohio; Bellville, Ill., and Fort Sill, Okla. Arriving at the Texas town at 4:35 p. m., he spent the night.

Leaving Midland the following morning he flew to San Diego, where he turned the ship over to the officer of the day at the San Diego station. Then he boarded a commercial liner, flew the rest of the day and that night and was back at his desk in Washington the morning of July 5.

The delivery of the plane by flight is in accordance with Navy plans to give fliers training on cross-country flying and to save on shipping charges. The ship was an experimental scout built by Grumann. Temple was accompanied by P. H. Eagle, Navy bandmaster, who was on his way to join the U. S. S. Wright on the West Coast.

2 Youths Sought In Holdup Attempt

Pair Ordered Out of Store by Clerk, Flee in Car.

District and Maryland police are searching for two youths in an automobile bearing Florida tags who are alleged to have attempted a holdup at the store of George Hurley, on Central avenue, near the District line.

Bearing rifles, the pair started into the store yesterday, but were ordered away by Mrs. Allen Perry, a clerk. The youths fled in the car.

Mrs. Perry told Prince Georges County police the boys had been in the store to buy ice cream the day before.

Money Order Fee Imposed

Cashing Charge Applies Only to Offices Not Specified.

The Postoffice Department announced yesterday that after August 1 a fee will be charged for cashing postal money orders at offices other than that on which they were drawn.

The fee will be equal to that paid when the order was issued. In other words, if an order for $12.50 is issued at Washington and drawn on the Chicago postoffice, and is forwarded to Kansas City the payee at Kansas City will be charged 13 cents. If the order had been cashed in Chicago no fee would have been charged.

Postoffice officials said the fee was designated to halt abuses in cashing money orders.

2 Boys Whip Wildcats While Parents Quake

Waycross, Ga., July 6 (AP).—Edward Lawhorne, 10, and Robert Newsome, 13, are ready to fight their weights in wildcats any time but their parents will be shaking for a long while over a scrap they had while picnicking.

The lads heard their dogs barking and found a snarling wildcat that made for them on sight. They let fly with pine knots, the first stopping the cat's charge and before it could regain its feet the boys ended its life with other knots.

Aero Meeting Will Analyze Crash Causes

Airway Operators and Chief Pilots to Convene.

(Associated Press.)

Rules, regulations and customs governing America's thousands of miles of air line are to get a thorough analysis and overhaul in mid-August.

The Commerce Department's aeronautics branch has summoned all air line operators and chief pilots to a meeting August 15-16. They will consider, among other things, all major airplane accidents in recent years, their causes and how they might have been prevented.

J. Carroll Cone, assistant chief of the Aeronautics Bureau, said "we benefit as a result of the discussions."

Among the accidents to be discussed is that of the American Airways plane which crashed on a New York State mountainside June 9, killing nine persons.

Changing Routes Banned.

The ordinary route on which the ships of that line flew was changed because of adverse weather. The pilot of the wrecked plane, however, got off the new route and flew into a mountainside.

To avoid such accidents in the future, the Commerce Department has specified that air line operators may not change their routes without Commerce Department permission. That is one of the regulations to be discussed at the meeting.

Cone referred also to the laws passed by the last Congress requiring publicity on fatal accidents and making it optional with the Secretary of Commerce in other cases.

Will Announce Findings.

Demands had been made for publication of departmental reports in connection with the American Airways crash. Commerce Department officials said, however, all the data they had been able to obtain in that case was based purely on "hearsay" evidence not obtained under oath.

For that reason, the department probably will not make public any of the investigator's reports. Cone denied the department believed there had been any sabotage involved.

He said in future fatal accidents, hearings would be held, witnesses put under oath, and formal findings made public.

Aid for Housing Plans Studied

Moffett Considers Set-up of Divisions; 200 Persons Needed.

Formation of organizations in every State to push the Administration's home building and improvement program was reported authoritatively to be under consideration by James A. Moffett, Federal housing administrator, the Associated Press said.

Sources close to Moffett, who is in New York, said he has before him definite recommendations for setting up technical, legal, financial, research and statistical divisions here.

A widespread "ballyhoo" and publicity campaign to put the housing program on a patriotic basis is not favored by some advisers, who have been in close contact with Moffett.

The emphasis, in the opinion of at least one person who has conferred extensively with Moffett in New York, will be on education and information.

He said that probably not more than 200 persons would be required in Washington in the housing administration's offices. Probably one or two men would be needed in State offices and perhaps 25 in the field in each State, he added.

Bomb Is Reported In Dollfuss Office

Two Others Exploded in Austria During Day.

Vienna, July 6 (AP).—A report that a bomb had been discovered in the federal chancellery increased uneasiness over the prospects of a troublesome week-end today.

Two bombs exploded in the country during the day—one at the headquarters of the government party, the Fatherland Front, at Knittelfeld, Styria, and the other at Gratcorn, Styria, where an electric transformer was destroyed.

Some doubt was cast upon the report that an infernal machine was found in Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' office by the fact that the place is reavily guarded.

Lovell Seeks Tapestry Missed While Moving

Malcolmn Lovell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, yesterday sought aid of the police in tracing a tapestry valued at $500 which disappeared when his household goods were being moved on June 30 from the Chastleton Apartments to the Wardman Park Hotel.

Lovell said the tapestry was 5 feet square, was wrapped on a bamboo pole and depicted sheep grazing. He said the company that moved him had been unable to locate it.

State Senator Ward Retiring; Opposes Lengthy Service

Salisbury, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—State Senator David J. Ward, of this city, announced today that he would not be a candidate for reelection on the Democratic ticket.

As his reason he said that long tenure of public office is not desirable.

Mr. Ward is now completing his eighth year as representative of Wicomico County in the Maryland upper house.

In commenting on his decision today, Mr. Ward said: "I have been asked to again become a candidate for the State senate, but while I fully appreciate the honor of serving the people of this county, I feel that eight years is plenty long enough for any one to hold an office of this nature."

Senator Ward's record of achievement for the county has been an enviable one. Under his sponsorship the County Peoples Court was established. He was the father of a plan leading to the building of the Nanticoke River bridge, which shortened mileage on the Shore from Washington and Baltimore. He lent his influence to the creation of a local board of control for the dispensation of hard liquors and to many other constructive projects.

Senator Ward's determination not to run came as a surprise in local Democratic circles and so far no candidate has been brought forth.

Cumming Gives Public Warning On Paralysis

Protect Children From Undue Exertion, Says Surgeon General.

(Associated Press.)

Although the danger of paralysis was described as "numerically slight," Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming warned the public that "nowhere in the United States is there freedom from danger of infantile paralysis infection during the summer months."

"With the exception of protecting children from this risk so far as practicable," said the public health service head, "the circumstances do not justify any interference with or discouragement to normal business and recreation."

Describing the outbreak in California as " not so dangerous as might be thought from the number of cases reported," Dr. Cumming said protection of children against undue exertion "is wise in the presence of infantile paralysis in any community."

Th esurgeon general added, regarding California, that never before "has such a large proportion of mild nonparalytic cases been brought to attention in metropolitan centers," and, except for this predominance of nonparalytic symptoms, the California outbreak "is typical."

"Prompt diagnoses, with consequent protection of the muscles most frequently affected, has aided in changing the aspect of the disease," he pointed out.

Dr. Cumming said persons contemplating travel to California would, therefore, have "much less reason for revising their itinerary than if a similar number of cases had been reported in another year."

"There has been no increased incidence in the recreational regions nor in many areas relatively close to places of epidemic prevalence. Children and youths of susceptible ages are, nevertheless, advised against taking unnecessary risk of exposure by such travel."

Old Resident Is Paid Honor

Mrs. Dudley Has Lived in Takoma Park 50 Years.

The fiftieth anniversary of the residence of Mrs. Frederick E. Dudley in Takoma Park was celebrated last night by citizens of the community through the Takoma Park Citizens Association. A certificate of honor was presented to Mrs. Dudley. The historical and memorial committee of the association arranged the event. Dr. William A. Hooker, chairman of the committee, acted as master of ceremonies.

Two of Mrs. Dudley's four children were present, William Wentworth Dudley being the first child born in Takoma Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley moved to Takoma Park June 29, 1884, and resided in the house with the founder, Benjamin F. Gilbert, pending the erection of their home at 204 Carroll street. Upon its completion in November, 1884, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley moved into it and she has resided there ever since. Mr. Dudley died on September 18, 1923.

The certificate of honor, engraved in gold, the first to be presented by the association, was given Mrs. Dudley in recognition of her contribution to the upbuilding of the community and as a symbol of esteem and regard in which she is held.

Mayor Frederick L. Lewton, Mrs. Mary Lamond White, president, and Walter Irey, secretary, of the Takoma Park Citizens Association; the Rev. R. Paul Schearrer, pastor of the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Dudley is a member, and Mrs. Frederick L. Pratt, president of the Takoma Park Women's Club, were among those who gave short talks.

Cumberland, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—Judge Albert A. Doub in Circuit Court yesterday appointed Howard P. Brydon, of Bloomington, as receiver for the Sullivan Brothers Coal Co., following a petition filed by several employes of the firm, who claimed a large amount in back wages was due them.

Throngs Hail President in Puerto Rico

Cheering Natives Line His Route on Motor Trip to Capital.

Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, July 6 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt drove through throngs of cheering natives today on a motor trip from this little port to San Juan, greeting Government dignitaries at numerous tropical towns along the route.

The chief executive, on a holiday cruise to Hawaii, stepped from the U. S. S. Houston ashore at Mayaguez at 9 a. m. He was greeted by Gov. Blanton Winship and the Governor's staff, and hundreds of excited natives, laughing and happy at the visit of the President to the island held by the United States since the Spanish-American War 36 years ago.

All Puerto Rico appeared to have put on its "fiesta" garb for the Presidential visit. Some old residents recalled the island's first Presidential caller, Theodore Roosevelt, who came in the early days of the new regime, when Beekman Winthrop was Governor.

The President seemed thrilled by the beauty of luxuriant fields and picturesque mountains as the party drove up and down the horseshoe curves on the tour to the capital, where he spent the night.

The entourage halted at Ponce, and scores of other towns on the drive, to greet officials, mayors, judges and other local officers, and be welcomed to the island.

Luncheon was served at the summer palace at Jajome Alto, a cool spot on the day's drive. The party proceeded to La Fortaleza, the government house, for an official dinner tonight.

General Strike Threatened in San Francisco

Meeting Called to Decide on Walkout as Riot Protest Move.

shoremen's Association, who said in New York:

"We can not be expected to keep our men at work on the Atlantic Coast for employers who are calling out troops to shoot down men who simply want a decent system of hiring."

Plea to Roosevelt.

In Washington after the San Francisco joint strike committee sent a telegram to President Roosevelt asking him to intervene in the situation here, Secretary of Labor Perkins examined reports from the Labor Disputes Board here, but her aids said she was planning no new action.

About 1,500 guardsmen were in position on the waterfront early today, and Maj. Gen. David P. Barrows, in charge of the local operations, announced two more companies from Sonoma County, north of the bay, would be moved in immediately.

Only scattered handfuls of strikers appeared near the scene, and they kept strictly beyond the western boundary of the Embarcadero, the tentative deadline set by the guard with warnings that persons venturing beyond it without sufficient reasons would risk serious injury.

Tribute to Slain Workers.

The chief outward activity of the strikers was their tribute to the two men shot to death in the fighting which saw 32 others felled by bullets and scores more gassed and beaten.

On the sidewalk where the men died—in front of the International Longshoremen's Association Hall, a block from the frowning machine guns—strikers outlined with chalk the spot and laid an American flag and bouquets of roses upon it.

Inscribed on the pavement in chalk was the phrase "Two men killed here—murdered by police."

A guard of strikers stood watch over the spot.

Charge "Reign of Terror."

The appeal of the joint strike committee asserted the San Francisco Industrial Association and the police had "started a reign of terror on the water front by shooting, gassing and bombing the workers, who, as American citizens and union men are trying to protect their jobs."

Under the Guardsmen's guns, water-front traffic moved with increasing speed. Trucks rolled from piers to warehouses, and the State-owned Belt Line Railroad, which operates freight trains to and from the docks, was working at capacity. Construction on the $75,000,000 bay bridge between San Francisco and Oakland was resumed, after having been discontinued yesterday during the fighting.

In Oakland, Clayton Miner, 27, a steamship company electrician, was shot, perhaps fatally, when attacked by four men. In San Pedro a Belt Line switch engine and one car were derailed and a strike picket was shot in the arm by a man who fled. Harry F. Coolen, 31, of Wilmington, was held for allegedly having thrown a switch that derailed the engine and car.

Cargo working continued on a small scale in Seattle and Portland, and several vessels reached Tacoma for loading with shipments to Alaska.

Sportsmen Organize In Franklin County

Waynesboro, Pa., July 6 (Spl.).—Several hundred Franklin County sportsmen gathered at Caledonia Park, along the Lincoln highway north of here, today to organize a county unit to be associated with the central division of Federated Sportsmen's Clubs.

Kenneth A. Reed, Pennsylvania Fish Commission, editor of the National Sportsman and famous fly-caster, was the speaker. He also gave an exhibition of fly-casting. O. M. Deibler, chairman of the State fish commission, also gave a short talk.

Strain of Overstudy Gains Youth Freedom

Falmouth, Va., July 6 (Spl.). Mental incompetence resulting from excessive study last month at Howard University, Washington, today served to free James P. Morris, colored, charged with looting United States rural mail boxes in King George County.

Morris was tried today before United States Commissioner E. E. Fisher, in Falmouth. Testimony of three Howard University faculty members declared that his mind has become unbalanced by the strain of undergoing final examinations this spring and working outside of school hours. Morris received his degree.

Covington Job Finding Cost Is 57 Cents Each

Covington, Va., July 6 (Spl.).—It costs just 57 cents for the local reemployment office to find a job for an unemployed person in Alleghany County. Covington and Clifton Forge, according to information furnished by J. W. Stephens, jr., statistician for the tenth district, under which the office here operates. Manager R. A. Stoughton says that only one office in the State has a better record than Covington's.

The cost of the 60-odd offices in Virginia ranges from a low of 33 cents per job to a high of $7.

Charles County Slashes 10 Cents Off Tax Rate

La Plata, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—The Charles County Commissioners have announced that a reduction of 10 cents on county taxes and 3 cents on State taxes will be in effect this year.

Last year the tax rates were 25 cents for the State and $1 for the county. This year the rates will be 22 cents and 90 cents.

quaint practice of placing the seated body in such a position that the legs are elevated with the heels reposing on the desk. He bared his horror at witnessing one day the spectacle of six men seated with 12 feet waggling on one desk.

Reading newspapers in the offices is another objectionable habit, he said. Having invited newspapermen to the hastily-called lecture, however, he did not press this point much.

Debt to Taxpayers Cited.

"I don't think there are any magazine correspondents in the audience, though, so I say that the reading of magazines on office time is a most reprehensible practice."

His 3,000 or so hearers roared.

Becoming serious again, by his own admission, Secretary Ickes said the Interior and PWA forces owe it to the taxpayers to put in a full day's work—not every week but every day. As a little persuader, he threw out the information that there are 66,000 names on application for employment in his precincts.

He frankly disclosed that the building has been "patrolled" the last few days by "observers" and that their reports had been quite distressing. Many of the offices they visited were wholly bereft of executives. Stenographers were usually found on the job.

Nose powdering, manicuring, etc., should not begin at 3 o'clock or 3:15 but after 3:30, when the work day ends, advised the chief.

"You owe it not only to give full return for value received to the Government and to the taxpayers," he said, "but to feel your responsibility not to set a bad example."

Posies and Brickbats.

Posies were tossed out along with the brickbats. Reminding that the first full year of PWA is just coming to an end, Ickes said it had been a very successful year and that "man for man and woman for woman, I'll stack up this staff against any emergency organization in Washington."

"I want to keep this organization intact as long as possible," he told the assemblage. "I hope the next Congress and succeeding ones will make appropriations which will continue a public works program indefinitely."

Then, in his droll brand of humor: "Though Lord knows how long I'll be administrator of public works."

Harrisonburg Air Raid Fails In Maneuvers

Regiment From District Repulses Imaginary Attack.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 6 (Spl.).—The 260th Coast Artillery, District of Columbia National Guard, under the command of Maj. Walter W. Burns, repulsed tonight an imaginary air attack upon Harrisonburg as the pivotal city of the Shenandoah Valley in advance guard maneuvers. The 260th represented the "imaginary" Twenty-ninth Division of National Guard units of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and District of Columbia, which is opposing the march of an invading army landing on Virginia soil at Norfolk.

The regiment, accompanied by U. S. Coast Artillery officers to watch the maneuvers, arrived unexpectedly in Harrisonburg today and encamped in the spacious high school grounds. The unit was composed of 260 men and 25 officers and was carried by 32 trucks. Thousands watched the drills, parades and maneuvers.

The spectacular scene came when a number of balloons were released. As these took to the air, they were supposed to represent "enemy airplanes" seeking to destroy Harrisonburg. Two 800,000,000 candlelight searchlights flashed in all directions through the skies, "spotted the enemy airships." The aircraft guns, placed on Grace street, were then trained on the "planes" and brought them down. Practically all of the released balloons were "tracked" in the air as they spun heavenward.

In their "war meneuvers" the 260th will spend next week in the Shenandoah Valley. Tomorrow night they will camp at Shenandoah Caverns; Monday they will move to Elizabeth Furnace in famous Cedar Creek Valley, made famous by Sheridan; Tuesday to Winchester when they will repeat its "war maneuvers," and Wednesday it will march to Charles Town, W. Va.

In Harrisonburg a parade was staged in honor of Mayor Swank and city officials this afternoon.

Virginia 4-H Leader Will Speak Over Radio

Philip Reading, 17, of Manassas, Va., who was recently declared by the Virginia 4-H Club to have been the outstanding member in project work during the last few years, will speak over the Farm and Home Hour of the NBC hook-up today from here.

Reading's subject will be "In Business With My Father," in which he is expected to tell of the start in 1928 on his father's farm with two Guernsey calves and how he has increased that number until he has a small herd of profitable dairy cows and is shipping milk daily to the District of Columbia market.

Situation Will Become Serious Shortly.

Westminster, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—Drought within a 12-mile radius of Westminster will become serious if there is no appreciable rainfall in the next four or five days, L. C. Burns, Carroll County Agricultural agent, announced today.

During the past two weeks, practically no precipitation has occurred in the major portion of the county. Potatoes and tomatoes are showing effects of the drought, Mr. Burns said, and dry weather and beetles are destroying the late bean crop.

The county agent asserted that the damage has not been severe, although corn needs rain.

Virginia's Coastal Waters Drawing Host of Fishermen

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—They are not exactly considering traffic cops for fishing boats in Cheasapeake Bay, but the number of fishermen and fish is drawing attention.

Virginia's coastal waters are drawing thousands of fishermen—from Virginia and from other States—as the season reaches its height, and they are catching plenty of fish.

A Virginia State Chamber of Commerce survey showed practically every fishing boat booked for this week, with a few still available at Messick, Deltaville, Wachapreague, Tidwells, Urbanna and Harborton.

A Richmond party of three men fishing on the Rappahannock between Urbanna and Deltaville reported a catch of 325 assorted salt water specimens between 5 a. m. and dark. Other similar catches were reported.

Blue fishing has been unusually good. Those inclined to the deep sea fishing report catches of trout with some weighing 12 pounds, as well as black sea bass. Others, who prefer the tight-line fishing, with crab for bait, have found croackers spot and hardheads, plentiful. Flounders have also been caught.

Occasionally the clever fisherman lands the prize of them all—the big bonita—weighing as high as 50 pounds. Trolling in the rivers and coastal waters has also resulted in the capture of a number of fine rock fish weighing 10 pounds and more.

D. C. To Cancel All 'Kick-Back' Men's Contracts

Wage-Balancing Board Is Created to Check Infractions.

A policy of cancellation of all contracts in which employes are victimized by "kick-back" practices was adopted yesterday by District Commissioners, who created a wage compliance board to check infactions of the Bacon-Davis law.

The board will be headed by Assistant Engineer Commissioner Howard F. Clark. Others to be named are Roland M. Brennan, chief clerk of the Engineer Department; Engineer of Sewers A. B. Black, Engineer of Streets L. P. Robertson, Chief Building Inspector L. C. Wormington and Assistant Corporation Counsel W. H. Wahly.

Although the board is not vested with power to protect the jobs of workmen who may complain of unfair treatment from employers, Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals said that the Commissioners have authority to revoke the employer's contract.

Prettyman Proposal.

The proposal for the wage compliance board came after Maj. Gotwals had studied a recommendation of Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman, who advocated contract cancellations in all cases of proved violations of the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage law.

The board will supervise, through various departments, the methods of enforcing wage rate provisions, will see that pay schedules are prominently posted by contractors, check pay-offs, verify individual payments and, if possible, obtain for each pay-off a certificate of the contractor and craftsmen that the proper payment has been made.

"Kick-back" practices in Federal and District construction projects were recently investigated by a Senate committee, headed by Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts. Evidence resulted in the revocation recommendation of Corporation Counsel Prettyman.

The board will look for wage provision violations on only District construction projects. Contracts total $4,000,000. All projects financed from PWA funds will be checked by Federal inspectors, Maj. Gotwals said.

Gotwals Recommendation.

In his recommendation to the board, Maj. Gotwals said:

"Our experience in enforcing the Bacon-Davis law, as well as the requirements of the national recovery act, leads now to special action toward the uniform enforcement in all departments of the wage provisions. The breaches arising are known as "kick-backs," underpayments or improper classifications on the work. The objective is to discover, correct and prevent all of these practices.

"Proved breaches of these wage requirements should lead to cancellation of the contract of the general contractor or the subcontractor, and if at all possible, under the law, contractors or subcontractors failing to maintain the prevailing wage or other wage requirements should be refused acceptance as responsible bidders or as subcontractors."

The Right Angle on Clean Rugs·

THERE'S still another angle to rug cleaning which is an important one, if appearances are to be considered.

After a rug has been cleaned it should lay absolutely flat on your floor. But remember this —it won't unless it has been glue-sized by the cleaner.

There are so many angles of this sort which the careful housewife should bear in mind about her rugs that they're almost confusing.

You can forget them all, however, and rest assured that your rugs will come back to you looking like new—if you send them to REGAL RUG CLEANERS, for REGAL methods combine the highest skill with the most modern equipment. And REGAL prices are reasonable.

Upholstered furniture is also our specialty. We are fully equipped to handle such work.

Wife Will Help Accused Mate

Pauline Allen Admits She Had 14 Engagements With Man Killed.

Powhatan Courthouse, Va., July 6 (AP).—From 23-year-old Pauline Allen today came the assertion that she intended to "stick by to the very end" her husband, Bernard Allen, through his trial for the slaying of James Ryland Wilkinson.

She admitted to reporters she had seen Wilkinson 14 times since first meeting him, but added that "none of our meetings were for long periods of time."

"I was in love with him," she said. "I had lost my affection for my husband."

Wilkinson was shot down yesterday by a man who drove up to his property and called him from the house. His wife, the mother of two children, witnessed the shooting.

At the State farm in Goochland, where Allen is awaiting his preliminary hearing Wednesday, he said he was "deeply in love" with his wife and children.

"After I learned through friends that my wife was friendly with Wilkinson, I accused her of going with him, and she admitted it. I sent Wilkinson several messages through friends, warning him to stay away from my wife," Allen said.

Cost Of Milk To Be Raised

Dr. H. G. Pickett Named Chairman of Board At Harrisonburg.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 6 (Spl.). Dr. Hal G. Pickett, of the State Teachers College faculty, yesterday was named chairman of the Harrisonburg Milk Board, which will carry out the regulations imposed in this area by the Virginia Milk Commission in taking over the supervision of the local milkshed.

Dr. Pickett, the consumer member of the board, was named by J. G. Agnew, chairman of the State milk body. The other members, elected by the producers and distributors are: William H. Byrd, O. K. Early, W. M. Showalter and Frank Heatwole.

The local board hopes to place the new regulations in effect by Tuesday. The retail price of milk will be raised from 9 to 10 cents per quart. The increased price goes to the producer. This new scale applies to all producers and distributors.

Local producers and distributors appeared before the State Milk Commission at Richmond and asked that supervision of the Harrisonburg milkshed be assumed. It was pointed out that because of the low price of milk and cut-throat competition the producers were losing money and eventually might have to abandon the business.

STUART CHASE, economist and author,

has written a new series of articles on the New Deal for The Washington Post.

He says in his first, entitled "Dead Cats and the New Deal":

> "But make no mistake about it: by virtue of Government meddling, if you please, we were saved from a bottomless abyss. We have eaten. Some six millions of us have got jobs again; we have ceased to worry about the safety of our money in the bank; trade is picking up; public confidence is improved, and after four intolerable years, there is at least a little hope of security."

Many Pictures Are Renovated By the Makers

Only a Few Are Discarded; Morton Downey at Lake; Amusement Chat.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Mr. Hubbard Keavy, an Associated Press observer and chief of this column's West Coast finger-in-the-wind department, in a long dispatch from the film capital makes it very evident that the Nation-wide demand for the elimination of objectionable material from the screen has reached the ears of Hollywood.

Mr. Keavy, however, finds it surprising to learn how few stories actually have been shelved because they are considered essentially objectionable.

A survey, says Mr. Keavy, whose impressions will be set down here at some lenght, reveals that not more than two dozen stories—originals, novels and plays—have been put aside due to the presence of characters or situations which would make them censorable.

On the other hand, points out our correspondent, dozens of stories are being subjected to very thorough revampings; are being gone over scrupulously and meticulously to eliminate all possible elements to which objection might be raised before they are put before the cameras. Several films already completed have been called back and partially remade.

Gangsters Are Out.

RKO-Radio, continues Mr. Keavy, believes it will not film a gangster story, peculiarly titled, "The Brain Goes Home," and the same studio also is reported as hesitant about another crook story known as "Sir Raffles." It may also indefinitely postpone "Dark Angel." "Down to Their Last Yacht" is being severely censored in the studio's own cutting room.

Fox, Mr. Keavy reports as debating whether to film "Casanova," scheduled for fall production, although two writers are hopefully engaged in research work in the expectation that the picture will be made. Another story owned by the same company, "Pioneers," having to do in large measure with women of questionable chastity, is on the doubtful list for obvious reasons.

Samuel Goldwyn, prompted by his own better judgment, already has abandoned plans to film "Barbary Coast."

It is Mr. Keavy's belief that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, foreseeing difficulties with a yarn based on the life of Madame Pompadour, has given up that idea temporarily. "Professional Corespondent" and "The Postman Always Rings Twice" are two others with which Mr. Keavy suspects M.-G.-M. foresaw trouble.

Mexican Story Restored.

"Border Town," one of the Warner Brothers important films, is back on the schedule now after once having been discarded. A new treatment is said to have taken this story of Mexican locale—to star Paul Muni, by the way—out of the objectionable category.

Even if there were no antifilth campaign, Mr. Keavy drops the hint that the Warners probably would encounter trouble with the "Du Barry," in which Dolores Del Rio and Reginald Owen are cofeatured. Under present circumstances, Mr. Keavy adds, the picture, needless to say, "has been cut like a paper doll."

Mr. Keavy's first-hand conclusion, as an observer on the ground in Hollywood, is that out of the concerted National drive for decency there will eventually evolve what actually will be a new moral standard in the approach to the stupendous task of making the bulk of the world's motion pictures.

Dick Powell, the up-and-coming young singing juvenile on the Warner lot, screwed his courage to the sticking point the other day, hit his bosses for a rise in pay, got it and stepped up into the four-figure class. The same report hints that Master Powell is going places with Mary Carlisle now that Mary Brian is in the East on a tour of personal appearances—and if you hadn't heard about that, turn to today's announcements for Loew's Fox Theater.

Lake Books Bands.

Tonight Chevy Chase Lake will ring up the curtain on the first of a series of elaborate dance programs, when it opens with Willard Alexander and his popular band.

Eddie Carr and Al Stern, managers of the rejuvenated Lake, have just returned from New York City, where, they announce, they booked a succession of orchestras of outstanding reputation, one of which will feature Morton Downey as guest vocalist.

Following on the heels of Willard Alexander, the Lake will offer Louis Russell and his 15-piece colored band next Wednesday night. Russell's aggregation, just winding up a three-year stand at New York's Roseland, is regarded as the outstanding band of its type in the metropolis.

Friday, July 13, will see Felix Ferdinando and his orchestra, widely known "society" band. Mal Hallett will be at the Lake July 18; Jacques Renard, popular C. B. S. orchestra, July 20, and Joe Haynes' band, with Morton Downey, on July 27.

How does an act like that put on by Walter Dare Wahl and Emmett Oldfield at the Earle last week, for example, ever manage to survive such temperatures as we have been having? It's bad enough sitting still in front of an electric fan, but how on earth does one go about doing hand-balancing and burlesque gymnastics with moisture oozing out of the pores by the pint? Will Mahoney, of course, just naturally can take it and likes it. But there is only one Will Mahoney.

Banjo-Eyes' Next.

With the cast almost completely assembled, actual production will start in a few days on "Kid Millions," Eddie Cantor's fifth annual musical comedy for Samuel Goldwyn, to be released through United Artists.

Ethel Merman, Ann Sothern, George Murphy, Janice Jarrett and Lucille Ball are already in Hollywood for the support of the banjo-eyed star.

Block and Sully, one of radio's popular comedy teams, will arrive at the film capital shortly after their current week's engagement at the Michigan Theater in Detroit.

The famous "Goldwyn Girls" have been recruited from every field of feminine beauty.

Roy Del Ruth will direct the production, from the original screen play by Nunnally Johnson, Arthur Sheekman and Nat Perrin. The musical sequences will be directed by Seymour Felix.

Discovery Note.

I have reached a deliberate and very definite conclusion that there can no longer be any reasonable doubt about it, even if it did snow way along late in the spring. This must be summer!

Visible on Warner Screens Today

Straight From the Studios

W. C. Fields Seems Doomed to Small-Town Characters; Two Important Films Are Previewed on Coast; Jottings From the Film Capital.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, July 5.—They're bound to have W. C. Fields in another small-town story. He has played in one or two already, and lately suggested was a feature under the title of "The Back Porch." But that proved to be a dud in the preparation stage, and so has been dropped.

JAMES CAGNEY

Hence, Monsieur Fields will now do his stint in an even more pastoral-sounding opus called "The Old Spinning Wheel." It is one that various studio writers have cooked up for the comedy star, who is just now playing in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

Norman McLeod will direct the picture, and Tammany Young is to be in the supporting cast.

"Here Comes the Navy" Previewed.

The picture, previewed, proves one thing strikingly—and that is that Warner Brothers studio now has the Navy in tow. At least, it is available to their pictures.

More than that, this film shows James Cagney and Pat O'Brien as a rip-roaring comedy team. And comedy with a thrill or two to wind up the picture, is what will tell in this particular feature, which relates the story of a chap who won't wax sentimentally patriotic about being in the service of the sea, no matter what happens.

Cagney really portrays a rather obviously obstinate sort of fellow in the picture, and one that may irk you a bit before the film is over. Still, there is enough humor in his impersonation to relieve a certain tendency toward monotony. Hence, "Here Comes the Navy" may be rated as good entertainment, with an undeniably excellent purpose of proving what fulfilling duties in the service really means.

There is a romance of a sincere and worthwhile sort that goes on between Cagney and Gloria Stuart, who seems exceptionally well cast. O'Brien is moving right along as a favorite, I would say, and this picture should help. Frank McHugh imbues with a genuine note a fairly phoney but sympathetic character. Dorothy Tree is very good. Robert Barrat, Willard Robertson, Guinn Williams, Howard Hillman, Maude Eburne and George Irving are others in the cast. It was directed by Lloyd Bacon.

"She Loves Me Not" Also Previewed.

Here is another preview. It's all about the chorus girl that the boys of dear old Princeton hid away from the police in one of the dormitories in a staid old Eastern educational institution, is "She Loves Me Not," which comes to the screen with Bing Crosby, Miriam Hopkins, Kitty Carlisle and others in the bright spots. This is an impudent comedy of today—so much of today that it may keep even the censors breathless and make them forget to delete anything. "She Loves Me Not" has been one of New York's hugest stage successes. On the screen it is designed for the maximum of wild hilarity, and certainly proves that Miss Hopkins is entitled to front ranking as a comedienne, no matter what she does or how she does it. Some of her scenes are classics.

Crosby turns out to be exceptionally amusing as the chap who is the sufferer from most of the complications. Engaged at the beginning of the picture to a society girl, his heart later leans to the dean's daughter, but the chorus girl has to be explained away, and that's not so easy.

The picture is presented at a wild tempo most of the time, except when it slows down for a song number or two effectively presented by Bing and Miss Carlisle. Edward Nugent, Henry Stephenson, Warren Hymer and that clever actor, Lynne Overman, Judith Allen and various others are in the cast. The picture was directed by Elliott Nugent.

Picture Pageant Now Passing.

The title "St. Louis Woman" for the Mae West picture is out, owing to the fact that one with a title of about the same description is owned by M-G-M. Also a picture having just about that name, with Jeannette Loff starred, was recently released by an independent concern.

Elmer Harris has returned from Prince Edward Island, where he devised a story called "The Inner Silence" for Sylvia Sidney. This is to follow "Limehouse Nights," although "Red Woman" is also being considered for the star.

Mischa Auer is to enact a Hindu policeman in "Student Tour."

Building Boom Aiding Relief At Westminster

Projects Under Way and to Start Soon Provide 250 Jobs.

Westminster, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—Although many cities and towns are still faced with a serious relief problem, unemployment has been dealt a staggering blow in Westminster and the surrounding country through one of the largest construction programs ever carried out here in a single year, and totaling more than $600,000 in the Carroll County seat alone.

Projects nearing completion and several starting soon will provide employment for at least 250 men. Facts secured in a recent unemployment survey revealed that the jobs now available are equal to the number of persons actually in need of relief here.

Construction of a $285,000 sewerage system and disposal plant for Westminster was started Monday. Forty men were employed on the project yesterday and this number is expected to be increased to 100 within a short time. The entire system will require more than a year for completion.

Girls' Dormitory Planned.

Work of laying the foundations for a new $165,000 girls' dormitory is scheduled to begin next week at Western Maryland College. Designed to house 160 students, the three-story brick building will provide work for 60 men during the next five or six months. It is planned to have the building completed before the beginning of the second semester of the school year.

In addition to the girl's dormitory, approximately $6,000 is being raised to finance proposed repairs to the Westminster Theological Seminary. According to Dean S. B. Schofield, plans are also being formulated for construction of a boys' dormitory, replacing the present building.

Included among the projects nearing completion here are the new $110,000 postoffice building and extensive repairs to the Carroll County Courthouse. The postoffice building probably will be ready for occupancy August 1, while repairs to the courthouse will be completed this week.

To Cost More Than $13,000.

Totaling more than $13,000, the courthouse repairs, started as a CWA project and completed with county funds, included the replacement of joists with reinforced concrete beams, building fireproof stairways, relaying floors, rewiring, painting and reroofing.

Announcement was also made this week that construction of a new distillery at Carrollton is being contemplated, with a deed for the property already executed. Due to the fact that the water in this vicinity is particularly suitable for distilling, several distilleries have planned to locate near Westminster. One plant, already operating at Asbestos, was constructed this year at a cost of about $500,000 and employs 60 persons during nine months of the year.

Besides the present construction program, CWA projects during the past year represented a total outlay of $122,319.

W. Va. Postoffice Clerks Elect Kidd

Charleston, W. Va., July 6 (Spl.). E. A. Kidd, of Beckley, will manage the affairs of the West Virginia Federation of Postoffice Clerks, having been elected its president at its annual convention just concluded here. He succeeds Charles Young, of Charleston, who was elected secretary-treasurer.

Other officers include Cecil C. McDonald, of Fairmont, reelected first vice president; Shirley S. Stalnaker, of Morgantown, second vice president, and Arley C. Ramsey, of Welch, third vice president.

Restoration of salaries to the rates provided in the reclassification act of 1925 and legislation guaranteeing a minimum wage of at least $15 a week for substitute clerks, with vacation and sick leave privileges were advcoated in resolutions. Another resolution opposed a policy of absorbing all extra and added costs by reducing "already inadequate salaries" and giving payless furloughs to balance the budget. Legislation of the type of the Kelly postal policy bill was also favored.

Houses Unroofed At Linville Edom

Rain, Hail, Wind Cause Heavy Damage.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 6 (AP). The Linville Edom community, four miles north of here, was swept by a terrific rain, hail and wind storm late yesterday.

A half-dozen houses and barns were unroofed by the northeast wind. Hail stones shattered window panes in many homes, allowing the drenching rain to pour in. Twelve panes were broken in one room of the Linville Edom High School. Trees and telephone poles were blown down, temporarily blocking several roads. Gardens were ruined.

The storm was limited to an area of a mile or two. Other sections of Rockingham were visited by showers, but the high wind did no damage. Harrisonburg had only a light rain.

Hagerstown, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—Charles Davis, 16, serving 90 days for unauthorized use of an automobile, confessed to a number of other crimes, including housebreaking, thefts from railroad cars and automobile thefts, according to local police, who continued questioning him tonight.

Haiti Marines Will Be Sent To Quantico

Roosevelt Removal Order Finds No Transports Now Available.

(Associated Press.)

Most of the 700 marines to be withdrawn next month from Haiti will be sent to the Quantico, Va., base.

This was disclosed yesterday at the Navy Department where plans for evacuation of the island republic were hastened after President Roosevelt's announcement at Cape Haitien that the Devil Dogs would be brought home "in a month or six weeks."

The President's decision to evacuate Haiti two months ahead of schedule found the Navy without adequate transports to bring the troops to the mainland.

The transport Chaumont, which the Navy intended to use to withdraw the force in October, is on a trip to Asiatic waters and the Henderson, also a transport, likewise is unavailable.

Real Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, assistant chief of operations, said Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander in chief of the United States fleet, would be ordered to supply vessels necessary to carry out the removal order.

The returning marines will be landed either at Hampton Roads or Philadelphia.

Practically all of the aviation force and a large group of the riflemen, it was said, would be ordered to Quantico, although it was said there might be a redistribution of the troops later. About 500, it was estimated, would be sent to the Virginia base.

Auto Revenues Up in Virginia

Receipts Lag Only Slightly From 1933, Despite Slash in Tax.

Richmond, July 6 (Spl.).—Automobile license and gasoline tax receipts for the first six months of 1934 are only $126,526.40 behind receipts for the corresponding period last year, despite an estimated loss of $1,141,683.17 due to the cut in license taxes from 70 to 40 cents per 100 pounds by the 1934 Assembly. The increase in gasoline tax and other receipts almost balanced the cut in license revenue.

John Q. Rhodes, director of the Division of Motor Vehicles, said the belief of his predecessor, T. McCall Frazier, that the increase in gasoline taxes largely would offset the cut in license levies has been borne out by the results.

The gasoline tax revenues for the six months increased from $5,322,081 to $6,166,864.61, or 15.8 per cent.

50,000 Witness Historical Pageant and Parade Staged by 3,500 at Roanoke

Men high in public life reviewed the parade in connection with first annual historical pageant of southwestern Virginia at Roanoke, which was concluded yesterday, with the presentation of a historical pageant enacted by 3,500, depicting the historical and scenic lore of southwestern Virginia. It was witnessed by 50,000 persons. Among those in the reviewing stand were former Gov. E. Lee Trinkle, of Virginia, standing to right of center upright, and E. A. Hayes, National commander of the American Legion, at Trinkle's left. Eighteen young women from as many counties of southwestern Virginia competed for the title of "Miss Mountain Empire I" in Roanoke's pageant. The winner of the royal honors, Miss Manola Mitchell, of Smythe County, is shown in the center of the above photo with the other 17 contestants who became her attendants. Miss Mitchell presided at the pageant. Gov. Peery, who was to be the honor guest at the celebration, was unable to attend owing to illness from which he is recuperating in Richmond.

Anne Arundel Jury Debating Officials' Fate

Commissioners Accused of Malfeasance and Misfeasance.

Annapolis, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—Fate of six memers of the Board of County Commissioners of Anne Arundel County, tried today in the County Circuit Court on indictments charging malfeasance and misfeasance in office tonight rested with the jury. Chief Judge F. Neal Parke of Carroll County, and Associate Judge William H. Forsythe, Howard County, presided. Associate Judge Nicholas H. Green, Anne Arundel County, withdrew because of relation to one of the commissioners.

After deliberating two and a half hours there was no indication of the jury reaching a verdict. Several jurors sent messages to relatives predicting a protracted session.

The six commissioners involved are Elmer E. Parkinson, of Annapolis, president of the board; C. Addison Hodges, Second District; Severn K. Arnold, Third District; Lewis F. Kelly, Fourth District; F. Guy Kelly, Fifth District, and J. Edwin Wilson, Seventh and Eighth Districts.

They were charged with violating a 30-year-old law by paying salaries of two police magistrates in 1933 without first having reports of those officials.

The magistrates, Louis M. Hopkins, Annapolis (Sixth District) and Albert F. Dogge, Fifth District, the six commissioners and R. Harry Arnold, clerk of the board, were the chief witnesses examined.

The weight of evidence tended to show a loose system 'n transactions with the magistrates. Clerk Arnold told the court it had been a long established custom to creck reports of the magistrates, and then pay their salaries. It was admitted that no oath was administered. Testimony of like nature was given by all commissioners and magistrates. Some of the commissioners admitted they were not acquainted with the law.

State's Attorney A. Theodore Brady, Anne Arundel County, and State's Attorney James Clarke, Howard County, who conducted the prosecution, contended that the law was plainly violated and that the manner in which the commissioners acted could more or less cause corruption in office. State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, Prince Georges County, was chief counsel for the commissioners. He was assisted by Benjamin Michaelson, counsel to the board; Eugene P. Childs, of Annapolis, and Wethered Barroll and J. Wilmer Driver, of Baltimore.

With completion of the case, court will adjourn until Monday, when trial of John A. Bromley, county engineer, and Zach Johnson, chairman of the county delegation in the lower House of the General Assembly, will begin. They have been indicted individually and jointly in connection with the alleged power shovel deal.

Virginian Kills Father-in-Law, Wife and Self

Slayings Near Woodstock Blamed on Family Quarrel.

Woodstock, Va., July 6 (Spl.).—As Shenandoah County authorities continued their investigation to learn the immediate motive which impelled Marshall Hottle, 25, to slay his wife, 22, and the latter's father, Bernie Miller, 56, and then take his own life near here last night, funeral rites for Mrs. Hottle and Mr. Miller were scheduled for tomorrow at 10 a. m.

Hottle, who lived at Conicville, about 14 miles from Woodstock, came to the Miller home last night to seek his wife, from whom he had been estranged only a short time. Entering the Miller home, Hottle fatally wounded Mr. Miller with a shotgun load. Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Hottle fled from the house, pursued by Hottle. In the yard Hottle killed his wife and turned the gun upon himself. During the shooting, Hottle warned his 5-year-old son to stay out of the line of fire.

As officers pushed their investigation, they learned that, following a quarrel with his wife, Hottle last Sunday placed dynamite under his home at Conicville, intending to blow up his family, but the explosive was discovered.

County Receive Drought Cattle

750 Head Distributed Among Growers in Rockingham.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 6 (Spl.). Seven hundred and fifty head of high-grade Hereford steers and heifers from the drought-stricken Midwest have been received in Rockingham County and distributed among live-stock growers.

The cattle were shipped here to Stanley F. Hoover, of Timberville, in charge of the distribution for the drought relief authorities at St. Paul, Minn. The cattle came from Montana and Texas. Eight carloads came direct from a ranch in Montana and another shipment from Fort Worth, Tex., one of the collecting points for cattle from the drought-stricken Southwest.

The big cattle ranches in the West, upon which pasturage was destroyed, are now shipping cattle to many points in the South. A large number have been shipped to North and South Carolina and to Georgia. Many are being shipped to southwest Virginia.

Ballot to Test Liquor License Law Is Banned

Maryland Attorney Says Issue Not Subject to Referendum.

Hagerstown, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—The General Assembly act of 1933 extending the terms and fixing salaries of liquor license commissioners for Washington County is not subject to referendum, Attorney General William P. Lane, jr., ruled today.

A petition signed by 10 per cent of the vote cast at the last general election, asking that the quesion be submitted to voters this fall, was filed with Secretary of State David C. Winebrenner 3d, who requested an opinion.

Terms of the three liquor commissioners, each of whom receive $1,500 annually, was extended under the act to June 1, 1939.

In his opinion, the attorney general cited opinions and pointed out that the duties of the board are limited exclusive to licensing and regulating sale of alcoholic beverages, and therefore falls within the class of legislation which is not subject to a referendum vote.

Car Dealer Fined In NRA Violation

Overallowance on Trades Costs Staunton Man $50.

Waynesboro, Va., July 6 (Spl.).—H. B. Cleveland, president of the Staunton Sales Co., of Staunton, was fined $50 for a violation of the NRA auto retail code after a hearing before the eighth district advisory committee at Waynesboro last night.

Charges of overallowances made on trades by his concern were admitted by Cleveland, according to Paul W. Freed, chairman of the committee hearing the violation charges.

This was reported the first penalty given an automobile dealer for NRA violation in Virginia and begins a drive to enforce NRA regulations of that business in the State.

Virginia Board Unable to Curb Flow of Bootleg

Lacks Police Powers to Close Speakeasies, Says Clarke.

Richmond, July 6 (Spl.).—The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has no authority to close speakeasies or otherwise interfere with them unless the establishments are wine and beer or beer licensees, it was learned today when the ABC department was asked what it will do to Richmond speakeasies which continue to sell moonshine at 50 cents a drink.

A. B. Clarke, public relations officer of the board, said that the task of closing speakeasies is a local law enforcement problem. If the violator has a license from the board, the license is subject to revocation, but beyond this point the board has no special police authority.

It was explained that one reason the board has licensed some establishments rated as doubtful by the inspectors has been the desirability of maintaining license control.

"We can do nothing under the law to a speakeasy not a license holder," Clarke said. "We have no police authority over any establishments not holders of ABC licenses. The law makes the control of speakeasies a local matter."

Farm Payment Totals Million

Virginia Tobacco Growers Get Most of U. S. Crop Checks.

Blacksburg, Va., July 6 (AP).—Virginia wheat, cotton and tobacco farmers operating under Government crop reduction agreements received almost $1,000,000 in cash payments up to June 1, figures prepared here reveal.

Since that time more cotton checks have been issued and corn-hog payments have been made to swell the total to well over the million mark.

Tobacco farmers, with $456,132 in benefits, head the list. Next come wheat growers, who received $388,810; then cotton producers, to whom was paid $151,658. The largest payment, on a county basis, was to Pittsylvania, where large quantities of flue-cured tobacco are produced. That county received payments totaling almost $126,000, of which only $2,000 represented wheat payments. Greenville, with $39,915, received the largest payment for cotton reduction, and Augusta, with $65,270, headed the wheat producing counties.

Fredericksburg Bureau Aids 256 Transients During June

Fredericksburg, Va., July 6 (Spl.). Two hundred and fifty-six transients were aided by the Fredericksburg office of the National Transient Bureau during June, Miss Margaret Padgett, head of the office, reported today.

A total of 295 cases registered during June included 72 cases on hand June 1. The 256 cases were closed by returning applicants to homes or relatives, securing employment for them or sending them to one of the transient camps at Chatham, Va., or Blackstone, Va. Sixty-two of these applicants received physical examinations, and 15 were given medical treatment.

A slight increase in transient cases was noted for June, compared to May, but the average stay of each one was shorter.

Since the Fredericksburg office was organized in January, 1,300 transients have received aid. Of these 200 were given transportation to their legal residences or to the homes of friends or relatives, and 15 were assimilated locally and are now self-supporting. Two groups of young men were sent to the transient camps.

Sewing projects for women of nonresident families have been developed in the last two weeks. Relief is thus provided for families recently settled here who are legally classed as nonresidents because of not having lived here 12 months. The bureau supplies material and equipment to enable these women to make garments for their families.

Church Group Asks Facts in Future Wars

Blue Mountain Episcopal Conference Urges Baring of True Issues.

Chambersburg, Pa., July 6 (Spl.). Expressing distrust of their ability to form a true judgment once war becomes imminent, delegates to the Blue Mountain Conference of the Episcopal Church, which closed its eighth annual session here today, adopted a resolution urging that "somebody in a position to obtain accurate information and competent to weigh it, be charged with the responsibility of informing the members of this church in case of a serious threat of war, involving this country, as to the exact nature of the issues involved and whether the Government of the United States has taken every possible step to avoid an armed conflict."

The resolution was directed to the Rev. G. Ashton Oldham, a member of the House of Bishops, and was the conference's action on a pastoral letter sent out by the House of Bishops, which was described as summoning "the members of the Protestant Episcopal Church 'to wage unremitting war against war' and to put loyalty to the cross above loyalty to the flag."

"A large and increasing proportion of the members of this church," continued the resolution, "feel this means, at the least, refusal to support any but a defensive war."

In view of what was described as "modern agencies of propaganda," the conference asked that somebody be spcifically charged with responsibility to ascertain the facts.

"Furthermore," said the document, "an increasing number of men and women feel that loyalty to the Christ and to the admonitions of the pastoral letter involves them in a refusal to participate in any form whatsoever in any future war.

A resolution was directed to the General Conference of the Church, which will be held in Atlantic City in October, urging that the Episcopal Church "invite the church of England to petition their civil government to enact legislation forbidding the lending of money and the sale of munitions of war to countries at war."

Danville Granted Land Suit Writ

Richmond, July 6 (AP).—The City of Danville, Va., was today granted a writ of error from the judgment of the circuit court there which awarded $49,810.53 to the Forest Hills Development Corporation.

Both the city and the company appealed from the original judgment, the latter asserting that the sum was inadequate. The company originally filed suit against the city for $102,178.47, after the city had annexed Forest Hills, a highly developed residential area in Pittsylvania County.

The company based its suit on the city's action in taking over water mains, hydrants, gas mains, electric light wires and other public service instrumentalities which it had placed prior to the annexation.

Railroad's 'Stop' Sign Means 'Whoa' To Horse in Luray

Luray, Va., July 6 (Spl.).—Luray has a horse that will stop at a railroad "stop" signal. The animal belongs to Homer Fox, living near this place.

Recently the horse was ridden into Luray. While fighting flies and trying to get out of a blistering sunshine, the animal became unhitched and started toward the crossing of the Norfolk & Western Railroad and Main street.

Watchman Joseph S. Shenk, on duty at the crossing, heard a freight train rumbling in the distance. He believed that the horse would meet the freight on the crossing and waved his "stop" signal while the animal was several hundred yards down the street. The horse apparenly understood the signal, stopping in the middle of Main street and waited patiently till the freight train had thundered by. The horse was in front of a long line of waiting automobiles and held this position till he had crossed the railroad track, when he dodged into a side street.

Plane Carrier Completes Test

Scout Cruisers Assemble At Hampton Roads to Await Voyage.

Norfolk, Va., July 6 (Spl.).—After spending one day at sea, during which a few of her aviators engaged in test flying and landing on her deck, the airplane carrier Saratoga returned to Hampton Roads today.

The destroyers Bainbridge, MacFarland, Hopkins and Barry, and the tender ship Whitney arrived today. Tomorrow several cruisers and destroyers are due. Some of the ships will wait outside the Virginia capes. The plane carriers Saratoga, Lexington and Langley will remain in Hampton Roads until the battle force comes here in September on its way back to the West Coast.

The cruiser Minneapolis, flagship of the scouting force, took up a position off the naval base today. The scouting force is scheduled to sail Sunday and Monday for Provincetown. They will be joined by the battle force and will remain in New England waters until late in August.

France, a candidate for the Senatorial nomination, accompanied by Dr. Harry Schad, of the Young Republican League, and Helen Elizabeth Brown, of Baltimore, will visit Somerset County tomorrow, making two addresses in the county in the interest of the Smith-France ticket. Giant Firecrackers Protested, Hagerstown Ban May Be Asked Hagerstown, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—The mayor and council may be asked to enact an ordinance prohibiting the sale of large torpedoes and cannon crackers, as a result of several accidents here over the Fourth.

For several years, many people have advocated clamping down the lid on the sale of dangerous firecrackers.

As a means of confining the celebration strictly to one day, the mayor and council passed an ordinance limiting the sale of fireworks to the day preceding the Fourth and the Fourth.

Many complaints of the wide use of large torpedoes, many of which were thrown against automobiles, were heard.

John Gaddy, 12, Martinsburg, W. Va., who was here with his parents Wednesday, was struck on the head with a torpedo, the explosion lacerating his head. It was necessary to give him anti-tetanus treatment.

Many persons declare they consider it too risky to come downtown during the Fourth.

Tobacco Men To Be Headed By Carolinian

W. T. Clark Is Elected By White Sulphur Springs Convention.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 6 (AP).—The Tobacco Association of the United States, in convention here, today set auction dates for the tobacco producing belt and elected W. T. Clark, of Wilson, N. C., to succeed A. B. Carrington, of Danville, Va., as president of the association. Other officers and members of board of governors also were named.

Addresses by Mr. Carrington, R. J. Baker, of New York, and Dr. John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary in the Department of Commerce at Washington, were heard by the convention.

Dr. Dickinson's address followed a banquet attended by convention delegates.

Dates for auction markets were set by the sales committee as follows:

Georgia, August 1; South Carolina, August 9; Eastern North Carolina, August 23; Middle Belt, September 13; Old Belt, October 25; Dark Virginia, November 7.

Other Officers.

The following officers, in addition to President Clark, were named: E. J. O'Brien, Louisville, Ky., first vice president; F. N. Harrison, Richmond, Va., second vice president; Ames S. Ficklen, Greenville, S. C., third vice president.

A. B. Carrington and T. M. Carrington, of Richmond, were elected to life membership in the board of governors.

Elected to the board of governors are C. A. Gregory, C. M. Dozier, Henry S. Hotchkiss, Col. W. B. Ballou, L. G. Larus, Maurice L. Utrause, and, T. W. Webb, all of Richmond; Clyde Austin, Greenville, Tenn.; T. W. Blackwell, W. A. Goodson, Winston-Salem, N. C.; W. L. McGill, Petersburg, Va.; James I. Miller and W. J. King, Wilson, N. C.; A. C. Monk, Farmville, N. C.; J. M. Purdon, Blackshear, Ga.; R. C. Stokes and W. G. Suhling, Lynchburg, Va.; J. F. Strickland, C. W. Toms, jr., and A. J. Bullington, Durham, N. C.; R. H. Congers, Rocky Mount, N. C.; H. Dickson, Louisville, Ky.; O. W. Dubley, jr., Valdosta, Ga.

Dunnington, Farmville, Va.; R. M. Garrett, Greenville, S. C.; W. L. Petty, Lexington, Ky.; Andrew Jamieson, Oxford, N. C.

The feature of the day's session was the address by Mr. Baker, president of the American Steamship Owners Association. He told the convention that it is "an auspicious omen when organizations such as the Tobacco Association of the United States concern themselves with the problems of ocean transport.

"The agriculturist and the manufacturer have been rather prone," he said, "to ignore shipping as something beyond the horizon of their immediate concern."

Cites Accomplishments.

Retiring President Carrington told the convention in a message read for him in his absence, that the New Deal has brought "renewed faith in our country and its institutions, and renewed courage and hope in the hearts of our people."

"In this New Deal the tobacco interests have come in for a large share of official and private attention. This is easy to understand when we recognize the fact that it is our second largest crop—touches all points of the globe—and is one of the largest revenue-producing agencies of the Government.

"The year we have just passed through has been fraught with many changes, some of them appearing very radical to us to begin with, but as time goes on we are led to believe that those in charge of the tobacco section of the Government are more and more filled with the spirit of cooperation, and have no doubt worked hard to post themselves on all phases of the tobacco trade."

Mr. Carrington reviewed the Government's efforts to improve conditions in the tobacco industry and termed the curtailment of the 1934 crop a definite accomplishment, although, he said, it was still too early to tell to what extent it would aid.

Radio Waves and Ripples

To ye City Editor, keeper of our soul (?) and what a Washington summer has left of our miserable body, greetings, &c.

Thee may well remember with what scorn and dubiety thee regarded our timid person last evening when we approached to inform thee of our intention of sallying forth into a night of auditions with the National Broadcasting Companies.

Sally forth we did, though thee may well then have held our veracitie suspect and may even now wish to make carefull examination of our mentall properties.

We wish, therefore, to give thee a detailed and faithfull accounting of our experiences on this night, but an inherent kindlyness of spirit and a desire on all occasions for an avoidance of libel, a craving which thee well appreciate prevents. It must then suffice our purposes that we report that we did, in truth, attend said auditions and that, contrary to a not altogether unreasonable notion you did doubtless cherish of this affair, the evening was not one of pleasure, but of honest toil.

For on the morrow, at 10 oclock p. m., it will be the lot of the young men and ladies who write of radio for the journals of this citie, to aid in the broadcastings of a programme of entertainment the companie for which needs—for some reason never rightly understood by us—be compiled from such talent as the town provides.

Before submitting this to your generous sympathies, we would beseech your greater wisdom for replies to certain questions that did arise during the turbulence of the aforementioned audition, of which the following are several:

Why must we ever have tenors whose voices do tremble in a manner to suggest their singing from the rear of a jolting artillery caisson?

Why must the female young of our land sing from their throats when these members are in laryngitic pain?

Why must a pianist of no common ability devote himeslf with ardor and asiduity to ballading?

dowed by Heaven with sweet and pleasing tones wish to emulate our justly beloved Lily Pons though singing "Boy of Mine?"

This proves definitely that it is the first 150 times which are the hardest.

For exactly that many weeks the Royal Hawaiians have poured plaintive, aboriginal music down the WOL kilocycles "just for the fun of it."

Monday at 6:30 p. m. they make their 151st broadcast—and get paid for it by a Capital coffee concern.

The Hawaiians aren't really Hawaiians at all. They're Walter Cox, John Fillingame, Will Rollins and Arthur Murray, and they live right here in Washington. Their contract calls for 13 weeks of profitable music making.

Faith Rewards Israel

By William T. Ellis.

It seems as if the history of the ancient Jews is set to the music of Kipling's "Recessional." If one were to record it in a graph, such as the business statisticians of today use, it would be a zig-zagging line showing how the Nation prospered when it was loyal to Jehovah, and slumped when it was recreant to Him. The lesson is very clear, and very timely.

This truth is old-fashioned; yet like the styles in women's dresses, it is coming into vogue again. Within the past year we have heard and read many utterances by "practical" men, in business and in politics, to the effect that our times most of all need to get back to the sterling simplicities of religion. This is not mere pious talk, meant to please the church folk: It is the sober conclusion of thoughtful men, who have weighed the comparative efficiency of all the new methods proposed or tried for world restoration, and have deliberately voted for—God.

There is more to this revived old program than a prudent plan. To restore the strong, simple teachings of Scripture, so that Nations and individuals will govern their conduct by God's law, is only part of the process. Back of it lies the sublime truth that whoever goes God's way shares God's power. Divine enabling for a new life accompanies a willingness to attempt it. And it surely needs some such supernatural empowerment to qualify mankind to return to ways of peace and brotherhood and righteousness.

King Asa Holds a Revival.

There has been no scheme evolved at Geneva that can compare with this one, the value of which even worldly eyes can see, for a revival of simple religious loyalty in the hearts of humanity. If we seek God, we shall find everything else for which we are looking.

King Asa saw and followed this truth. In the fifteenth year of his reign, after he had heard a moving message from a preacher of righteousness, the Prophet Azariah, he called the nation together at Jerusalem, for a great revival meeting.

We may think that mass meetings at the capital city—such as Hitler recently held in Berlin, Mussolini in Rome and the Bonus Marchers in Washington and the unemployed in Ottawa—are a new idea. Turn back to these old Jewish records and see how it was done in Asa's day, and at other times. There is power in crowds. That is why alert churchmen and citizens are keen for the community demonstrations that will mark National Recognition Day for Sunday school teachers on October 6. Mass meetings are in themselves a message. Sound psychology underlies this old-new fashion in large popular assemblies.

We have a vivid picture of our own day in these words by Azariah, the fearless prophet: "In those times there was no peace to him that went out, nor to him that came in, but great vexations were upon all the inhabitants of the countries. And nation was destroyed of nation, and city of city: for God did vex them with all adversity."

Not only Asa's subjects of Judah and Benjamin, attended the mass meeting but also many hungry-hearted men from the Northern Kingdom, eager to express allegiance to Jehovah.

But let us go back a few years in the story. Jeroboam, the first king of the northern confederation of Israel, had continued on his evil, godless way. His son, Nadab, succeeded him, and he, too, "did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the way of his father, and in his sin, wherewith he made Israel to sin." A conspiracy, led by Baasha, killed Nadab, and wiped out every other descendant of Jeroboam, making himself king. It was with Baasha that Asa warred during most of his reign.

Two great events stand out in the reign of good King Asa. The first was his spectacular victory over the vastly larger army of the Ethiopians, who had attacked Judah. Confronted by this host of a million men, with three hundred war chariots, Asa, in fear and yet in faith, cried out to Jehovah for help, in a famous prayer that makes good reading today.

A Prophet Is Hushed.

Apparently, King Asa's faith faltered, when, later, King Baasha of Israel began to prepare war against him. For he sent gifts and a mission to King Ben-Hadad of Syria seeking his aid, and with this ally they soundly defeated the Northern Kingdom. It was an act of unbelief in Jehovah's protecting power. Asa's trust in a military alliance reflects the day's news from Europe.

There was not lacking a brave prophet to tell the king so: "Were not the Ethiopians and the Lubims a huge host, with very many chariots and horsemen? Yet, because thou didst rely on the Lord, He delivered them into thine hand."

The prophet made Asa mad. The king was getting old, and more dictatorial and less spiritually sensitive. So he threw the prophet in jail; free speech is no new issue.

King Asa was good, and God-fearing, most of the time; and thereby brought blessings to his people.

But mixed blood ran in his veins. His father, King Abijah, and his grandfather, King Rehoboam, seem to have derived their qualities from the worst side of their ancestor, King Solomon.

Back of these, however, was great-great-grandfather David; and Asa seemed to inherit from him. So we are encouraged to take a long look at life. When the Younger Generation becomes "flaming youth," and gives itself to folly, we recall the clean, pure blood that flows in its veins, and the noble ideals of character and of godliness that it has inherited, and we trust to time to repeat once more the experience of the Jews. After Rehoboam and Abijah comes in Asa; after an orgy of fleshliness comes revival and reform. For over all stands God, still Ruler of His world.

THE GAME LAW OF 1703- CAROLINA PASSED A BILL PROTECTING BEEF CATTLE FROM HUNTERS...
THUNDER CAN BE HEARD IN JAVA ALMOST ANY TIME OF DAY OR NIGHT THROUGHOUT THE YEAR...

Strange as it seems, one of America's earliest game laws was directed, not to the protection of wild life, but to the safeguarding of domesticated beef herds. By a law enacted in 1703 in Carolina it became illegal for hunters to shoot cattle. Up to that time hunters used to stalk cattle in the woods and on grasslands, much like they would elk or deer.

Some of the herds were actually half wild, having wandered away from herds pastured on unfenced lands by Southern planters. They bore no mark of identification or brand, and to all appearances were without owners. The law, strangely, forbade only the killing of unmarked cattle.

Georges Clemenceau, French statesman, who is remembered widely as the "Tiger of France," had one of the strangest eccentricities on record. He put on a complete suit of clothes, complete even to white gloves, each night before he retired. The night dress of Clemenceau included an ordinary unstarched shirt, business suit, vest and all, collar, tie, and shoes.

White gloves he wore night and day—a habit he is said to have acquired during his days as a criminologist to keep his fingerprints off of objects which he handled.

Literary Shrines.

The London Times is authority for the statement that "of all houses still standing in which illustrious spirits have lodged," that of Shakespeare has alone entertained more guests than the little home in Chelsea where Thomas Carlyle and his wife settled just a century ago. Does this signify that Carlyle, next to Shakespeare, is the most widely read of English authors?

This is hardly conceivable. Nor is it probable that Carlyle's life has interested more people than those of other writers. The peculiar public curiosity about Carlyle's home, where he wrote "Frederick the Great" in the double-walled room on the top floor, defying London's uproar and fog, is a literary mystery. Perhaps its accessibility has something to do with its shrine-like qualities. A more likely reason is that every schoolboy and girl has had to read some of Carlyle, and has subconsciously absorbed an interest in that strange man.

Visiting literary shrines is a peculiarity of human nature, indulged in by others than school teachers on a holiday. Those who trek toward New England in summer visit Concord, and more stop off at Louisa Alcott's house than at the site of the embattled farmers' bridge. Throughout New England such foci are almost innumerable. Visiting them lends a reality to the books previously read. We know of one person who, on his first visit to Washington, paid first respects to that heavy brick house where Henry Adams lived and wrote. How many Washingtonians know where it is? Or if it still stands?

The person with the true literary bent seeks out the unusual. Thousands who go to London visit the popularized retreat of Dr. Johnson at the Cheshire Cheese. But how many are led to find the house once occupied by that irascible old crustacean Jeremy Bentham and later, until paying the rent came too hard, by William Hazlitt, who lived so many unhappy days of his "happy life" there with his dowdy and nagging wife? Is it possible that any visitor to Boston ever troubled himself to find the South End birthplace of the father of modern American architecture, Louis Sullivan?

The shrines of the illustrious are worth visiting, but the real enjoyment of leisurely travel is discovering the odd little places that bear no bronze markers. For there were written those minor classics that are read for enjoyment and not because they are on the lists of the classrooms.

At Charlottesville.

The discussion and debates that have been in progress this week at the University of Virginia, where the Institute of Public Affairs is holding its annual meeting, have been of high character. Those who have had the privilege of attending these meetings in the past, and of joining in the informal discussions that are a feature of the proceedings, value especially the opportunities for free interchange of opinion which is a feature of the Institute.

It is asking too much to hope that the man in the street will acquire a grasp of the problems of international politics and finance that will enable him to follow with profit the technical and analytical discourses of the experts at Charlottesville. This year they have discussed subjects ranging from the pacific settlements of international disputes to restoration of an international gold standard.

Nevertheless, public opinion is insensibly moulded by dispassionate and critical discussion of such topics. Through newspapers, magazines and conversational interchange, the proceedings of conferences like this exert a spreading influence. It extends far beyond the circle of those who have been present either as active participants or as auditors.

"The Thirsty Land."

Civilization has increased man's desires, but has failed to lessen his necessities. That truth must have come home, yesterday, to everyone who read Hilding Siversen's Iowa dispatch descriptive of "what probably will go down in Midwest annals as the Great Drought of 1934."

The tale is one of soil blown hundreds of miles away by scorching winds, of utterly ruined crops, of dying cattle, of men, women, children who faced actual starvation. And it is a tragedy for which the sole remedy is the simple remedy of water.

There is scarcely a simple primitive religion without its water-god as a benevolent and vital deity. And the symbolic value of water as an indispensable factor of life continues in Christianity, itself a religion originating among a people who well knew the importance of the life-giving element. To scan the references to water in the Concordance is to prove the point.

Once, while Paul Claudel was the Ambassador of France in Washington, he commented on the extent to which the ancient Hebrews attributed to water, not divinity, but certain qualities commonly associated with divinity. Whereupon a colleague, himself from a rainless land, replied: "The ancient Hebrews didn't 'attribute' those qualities to water; they simply recognized that water possesses them."

Water and sunlight; they are the twin forces of nature upon which all life depends. Upon them it has depended since first "there was light" and since first "a river went out of Eden to water the garden."

Payment—For The British.

An agreement has been reached between Great Britain and Germany providing for payment of interest to British holders of Dawes and Young Plan bonds during the next six months. Although the trade war which threatened has been averted, the means employed to force concessions from Germany create serious misgivings.

The British had passed a law which would have enabled the Government to seize German commercial balances and apply them to debt payments, in case Germany insisted upon extending the transfer moratorium to cover her specially guaranteed bond issues. In face of this threat, the Germans have agreed to make an exception in favor of the British.

British holders of Dawes and Young Plan bonds have no better rights to receive payment than American owners of these securities. Yet because Germany sells more to Great Britain than she buys from her, the British government has been able to obtain more than a fair proportionate share of Germany's vanishing exchange resources. Our State Department has vigorously protested, and should continue to protest, against exceptions of this character, previously extended to Dutch and Swiss owners of German securities. We have good reason to feel particularly outraged at this latest example of favoritism at our expense.

Since this country sells much more to Germany than we buy from her, we are unable to follow the British tactics. And if we could, we should be above so doing. The only decent way to settle the question is to determine how much Germany can pay to all holders of Dawes and Young Plan bonds, and then apportion that sum on an equitable basis. The system of offsetting trade balances against payments on debt account, if carried to its logical conclusion, would confine trade and capital movements to ever more severely restricted channels.

When the economist states that debts have to be paid by an export of goods, he does not mean that every lending country must buy more from a particular borrowing country than it sells to that borrower. He merely means that in the long run, taking all classes of operations into account, foreign debits and credits must balance. Consequently, if a country is a net creditor in dealings with the rest of the world, it must be prepared to receive goods on balance from the rest of the world.

That does not justify creditors' efforts to secure preferential treatment in an individual case, simply because they are in a position to seize trade balances. The British have themselves protested most vigorously against the special concessions formerly made to the Dutch and the Swiss. By following the example of the latter they have dealt a blow to American creditors which is the more exasperating because it follows on the heels of, and is inconsistent with the arguments favoring, their war debt default.

Still Life.

Having, not long ago, settled in these erudite columns the proper pronunciation of tomato, it becomes appropriate to proceed to other vegetable issues. Prominent among these is the proper method of eating corn on the cob. This momentous question pops up annually and, because of the universality of corn, deserves far wider discussion than the pros and cons of dunking corn pone, or whether the mint in juleps should be crushed.

Corn on the cob, as our Women's Page Editor will be the first to admit, should never be indulged in at the stooled and countered restaurant. If it is served therein, for a slight cover charge one should be entitled to three seats, of which those on both port and starboard should be left vacant. For corn on the cob needs room. The cob should never be broken, but grasped firmly by each end, thoroughly drenched in butter, salted to taste, and eaten, elbows out, regardless of neighbors or necktie.

No other way should be permitted. That's the way it has been eaten since the first Puritan discovered its delight. Even in the dark dining rooms of old Marlboro street in Boston one eats corn in that fashion, although an old custom sanctions those of Brahmin stock to tuck white linen napkins in their immaculate bosoms. However, in the country it is eaten only one way—with gusto! That is the invariable rule, from the Kennebunk to Kansas, and what they say elsewhere doesn't count.

Having settled this more briefly than we anticipated, we offer a postcript to the effect that, as a fruit, there is only one kind of raspberry. The raspberry is a firm, red berry, rather seedy, but even more delightful in flavor than corn on the cob. It is not to be confused with the blackberry, a tough, fibrous product, edible only if off the vine less than an hour, but which makes wine of the finest flavor.

To ask, as Washington waitresses do, which kind of raspberries—red or black—one will have, is callow to the point of insult. Let the custom cease! To such ignorance we say, with feeling, Raspberries!

The New Caribbean Policy.

President Roosevelt's visit to Haiti serves to emphasize the significant evolution which has been taking place in the relations of the United States to Latin-America. He was greeted by President Stenio Vincent, the first constitutional executive the island republic has had for 15 years. Expressions of mutual friendship were exchanged, and the Haitian people rejoiced to hear from our Chief Executive that "relations between the two countries are being restored to a complete basis of independence."

The story of the United States' policy toward Haiti is not without unsavory chapters. Since 1915 this Caribbean republic has been largely under the domination of American marines. Governments at Port-au-Prince have been weak and unstable, revolts have been frequent, and open warfare has flared up on at least one occasion. When conditions approached a crisis in 1930 President Hoover sent the Forbes Commission to the island to investigate. A threatened uprising was averted, constitutional government was restored, the existing regime was elected and a new period of negotiations began.

The Haitian President visited Washington a few months ago and extended conferences brought about a complete understanding between the two governments. It provides for the complete withdrawal of American financial and military control. The President has extended to Haiti his "good neighbor" policy, also exemplified by non-interference with the revolutionary governments in Cuba and abrogation of the Platt Amendment. He has given practical effect to the high-minded ideals enunciated by Secretary Hull at Montevideo.

Resentment against the United States in South and Central America grew up largely as a result of our policies in Haiti, Nicaragua and Cuba. Of late years remarkable advance toward improved relations with each of these countries has been made. When the marines leave Haiti, the last source of friction between this country and the southern republics should be removed. It is a signal achievement for which the President and Secretary Hull deserve a large measure of commendation.

Unfair And Uneconomic.

The R. F. C. has offered to lend funds to the B. & O. Railroad at 5 per cent, despite the fact that the road can obtain a loan through established banking channels at a rate very slightly higher. Nobody has attempted to assert that this difference provides for more than a reasonable allowance to cover the legitimate costs of the financing operation.

It is yet to be demonstrated that this is not a clear case of competition, both uneconomic and unfair, as that term is ordinarily understood today. In charging the borrower a flat 5 per cent, the Government is making no allowance for the overhead costs of operations which will have to be met by the taxpayer, whether he realizes it or not. The Government also has the advantage of being able to issue tax-exempt securities, whereas holders of privately-issued securities must allow for tax charges in computing net returns on their investment.

Moreover, in the particular instance under consideration, the R. F. C. occupies a strategic position in relation to the borrowing road, because of the heavy indebtedness the latter had previously contracted.

The Government may properly intervene to prevent exploitation when it takes the form of overcharging consumers or exacting usurious rates of interest from borrowers. It is a very different matter, however, for a Government agency to utilize the public purse in order to beat down interest rates. An Administration that has devoted so much effort to the suppression of unfair competitive practices such as selling below costs, and ruthless undercutting of prices to destroy rival concerns, ought to avoid all appearance of competitive unfairness in its own dealings with private industry.

In undercutting the bid of private banking interests, without making full allowance for necessary costs, the R. F. C., therefore, lays itself open to serious criticism. The procedure is unfair to the taxpayer, who should not be forced to share in the financing of a particular railroad; to other railroads, which have borrowed at market rates; to the bankers who can not compete with the Government as lenders; and most of all it is unfair to the Administration's professions regarding the desirability of reviving private investment activity.

Sound Bookkeeping.

A significant change has been made in the weekly statements of the Federal Reserve Banks by elimination of an asset item of $139,299,000, representing stock of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The segregation of the FDIC stock is a highly desirable change in accounting procedure for a number of reasons. The stock should not, in any case, be carried at face value, since it is subject to depreciation through payment by the guaranty fund of deposits of failed banks. Moreover, the Reserve Banks are for all practical purposes only holding the stock for account of the Treasury. It is not a bona-fide investment, since any dividends received have to be transferred to the Treasury.

If the Federal Reserve Banks should expand their loans to industry beyond the amount of their existing surplus, they may, under the recently passed Industrial Loan Act, apply for a return of funds equal to the amount invested in FDIC stock. However, they would still retain their stock holdings and they would have to pay interest to the Treasury out of earnings of the additional funds allocated to them.

Consequently, it is evident that the Federal Reserve Banks are acting merely as agencies for the Treasury in handling the FDIC stock. The decision to "write off" these holdings is a frank recognition of that fact and has the advantage of eliminating assets of uncertain value which yield no returns to the banks supposed to own them.

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

SENATOR BORAH precipitated a heated debate when he said: "If I can not get the consent of the Senate to have this Nicaragua treaty considered in the open I will be forced to disregard the rules of the Senate. I believe this treaty is based upon deception and misrepresentation, upon fraud, tyranny and corruption, and I am prepared to show it."

The State of the Nation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Borah, in his Fourth of July oration on the state of the Nation, did not speak with his usual clarity and logic. Whatever the Senator says is interesting and because of his great oratorical ability commands wide attention.

The Senator severely condemned the Government control of cotton. He said, "The Government has as much right under the Constitution to say that the newspapers of the country should be limited in circulation and curtailed in issue as it has by law to curtail the acreage of our wheat fields." Such a comparison is not correct. The control of the production of cotton is an economic measure. The number of newspapers published is not. No attempt has or will be made by the Government to add to or curtail the number of newspapers published. In no single instance has the Government attempted to exercise control over any private business which is not possessed of a social or economic interest. The Government has attempted to secure a newspaper code in the interest of abolishing child labor and shortening of hours.

With oratorical effect the Senator refers to "benumbing the hand of the editor." As well talk about benumbing the mind of the Senator, and why did not the Senator include free speech as long as he was defending the press against the encroachments of Governmental control? The Senator might just as well assail the Government in attempting to dictate the color of the horse he rides or the number of suits of clothes he possesses or what he can and can not eat.

It was no less a personage than Senator Borah who a few years ago demanded the right of the Government to dictate what a man should not drink. What about "liberty" then, Senator? You justify this action in the interests of the common good and I stood shoulder to shoulder with you. In the interest of the common good, at a time when the country is suffering from overproduction because of the lack of purchasing power among the people, the Government can and does limit the number of acres devoted to agriculture. This in its final analysis is not a question of personal liberty. It is a question of the common good and this is paramount to personal liberty. So the Senator argued about the eighteenth amendment.

The Senator complains that certain rights are being "chiseled away." This is true. The right of the banker to conduct his business as he sees fit is being "chiseled away" in the interest of the common good. He has been compelled by law to go out of the investment banking business. Is this wise or unwise? The stock exchange has had the rights of its members to rig the market "chiseled away." This is a proper curtailment of personal liberty in the interest of the common good. Investment houses have been told how they must legally make known the facts about the securities they have for sale.

But the Senator's deepest concern is for the sacredness of the Constitution. Jesus asked, "Was the Sabbath made for man or was man made for the Sabbath?" Is the Constitution made for man or is man made for the Constitution is a pertinent question to ask now. Happily the Supreme Court, in its recent decisions, has held that the Constitution is no barrier to legislation for the public good. The Constitution is not a sacred document vested with the attributes of holy writ. The thing that is sacred is humanity and the welfare of human beings is paramount to the perpetuity of the Constitution if these two things should come in conflict. But they will not come in conflict unless the strict constitutionalists like Senator Borah and James M. Beck have their way.

A campaign of negation is not enough. The Senator may think he can arouse the passions of the people by his panegyrics on liberty and freedom. The people have heard such oratory ever since the Nation was founded and it will be as sounding brass or tinkling cymbal if they are without food and raiment. Now that 5,000,000 of the unemployed have jobs, though these jobs may be uncertain and of short duration, because others must work, too, they will not be interested in the charge which the Senator makes that the help which has come to them has been at the sacrifice of liberty and freedom. In effect the worker will say: "If my hunger can be appeased and my family cared for, the Senator will be allowed to satisfy the longing of his soul to convince the people that the New Deal infringes upon liberty and freedom."

If the President should issue a proclamation tomorrow that all codes were off, big and little business alike would set up a storm of protest. The voice of labor, too, would be heard against such a move.

When all the Darrow committee criticisms have been made, and some of them no doubt are valid, there still remains so much to the credit of the New Deal that there is scarcely any question that an unmistakable vote of confidence will be given the President next fall.

"The Opening Gun."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of July 4 entitled "The Opening Gun," is a sound exposition of what should determine the general policy of the Republican party in the Congressional elections this fall. There should be more than negative criticism. There should be affirmative advocacy or corrective measures. Mr. Fletcher's address seems to have ignored this distinction.

A picture may be too large and intricate to be comprehended by the average mind, and it may be serviceable to reduce the picture to a miniature, as astronomers reduce sections of the heavens to photographic plates before reaching their conclusions and determining the course to be pursued in future.

Suppose that Mr. Fletcher were entrusted with the absolute government of an island of 1,000 inhabitants and when he took charge he found that 100 of them were normally unemployed and destitute; that 800 of them were normally self-supporting from their annual earnings, but had acquired a new and incurable habit of living (like the maintenance of automobiles) which consumed more than their net earnings and had reduced their general purchasing power almost to zero, and that the other 100 were possessed of wealth exceeding every earthly need. What would he do to prevent suffering and promote the general welfare of the island?

This illustration fairly represents the conditions and the proportions, today, of our 122,000,000 population. It represents the great unsolved problem of our Government, which surpasses in importance all adherence to political parties. If the chairman of the Republican National Committee can suggest an affirmative solution he will be entitled not only to Republican support, but to a respectful Democratic audience.

The Maryland Governorship.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to congratulate you on your excellent editorial in the issue of June 27 regarding the Maryland gubernatorial situation, in which you emphasized that Maryland is, indeed, fortunate in having at the helm of the ship of state, during these trying times, such an unusually able and conscientious public servant as Albert C. Ritchie.

I note that a dissenting view is expressed in a letter to The Post from a correspondent on the Eastern Shore, published in your June 30 issue. Your correspondent referred to the declaration in the State constitution to the effect that long continuance in office "is dangerous to liberty." However true this declaration may be in the abstract, it should be observed that the constitution places no specific limit on the governorship, and I greatly doubt that any one seriously believes, for one minute, that liberty in the "Maryland Free State" would be endangered by another term for so stanch an exponent of democracy as Gov. Ritchie.

Why this sudden danger, after Ritchie's years of satisfactory service and his reelections by ever-increasing majorities? Would the capable and experienced head of a business concern be ousted merely because of the length of his tenure of office? The answer is obvious. And I venture the opinion that no one in Maryland is more familiar with, or better equipped for, the business of State government than the present Governor.

Can Any One Help L. G.?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: By way of celebrating this holiday, I am going to get off my mind a couple of little things that have aroused my curiosity this long time. The first is the way local amusement places refuse to reveal their addresses. The visitor from abroad might describe it as a "quaintly naive custom," but I think it plain bad business. Obviously regular inhabitants of the District, or frequent visitors, know the locations of the local attractions. But just let Washington's thousands of tourists try to select entertainment and then find it, from your advertising columns. You certainly aren't giving away space; but for your advertisers to take space, and then skimp on the few extra cents that it would cost to give their addresses, seems the height of folly.

As for another and much different item. Why is there no "J" street in the District? Does anybody know? In all my contacts with oldest inhabitants I never found one who knew, and only one who even attempted an explanation, which while plausible, was not authentic. And along the same lines, how did California get to be the only State without an avenue? Yes, it has a street. And while I think of it, Why don't the Trinidad buses bear "Union Station" signs? I'll bet the transit company a week's pass that the revenue on that line would jump 15 per cent if they did

"Sauce for the Goose."

To the Editor of The Post: Sir—Permit me to congratulate you on your editorial, even if humorously sarcastic, in The Post of July 6, headed "Sauce for the Goose." That the present Secretary of Agriculture and his close associates look upon themselves as above the law (that is a definition of a dictator according to a legal periodical I have before me) is patent to many of us. Personally, I hope Secretary Wallace will be taught a much needed lesson by the courts in Maryland.

Postoffice, Saturday.

IT may seem odd to you that all the letters we have not received this week should show a political consciousness. But we have long observed that people in and about Washington always begin to take an interest in things political soon after Congress adjourns. So here you are!

Dear Sir: Like most American citizens of today, I note that our present President is beguiling his vacation by indulgence in the art of Isaac Walton. What, I should like to have somebody tell me, is the subtle connection between occupancy of the White House and fishing? Nearly all our Chief Executives have fished. And now, however the people fare at the hands of Mr. Franklin Roosevelt, the poor fish are receiving the same old deal.

Dear Sir: I have that account read which your journal publishes of the speech delivered by former Secretary of War Hon. Newton D. Baker. It was before your country's convention of teachers in Washington delivered, and you so quote him: "The more I see of dictatorships, the less I like them." This it is as one would expect from any of the scores of high-minded members of the Cabinets of Mr. President Wilson. But you to declare go on that Mr. Baker averred: "Democracy is the sole possession of the English-speaking and certain Scandinavian peoples." Switzerland, the eldest democracy, a democracy still is.

Dear Sir: In The Washington Post for the Day of Independence I remark an article telling how our President has revoked his revocation of the Davis-Bacon law. I passed over in silence your newspaper's previous mention of the revocation, wherein you spoke of that law as an "act" when it had actually become inactive; but, now that it has been restored to activity, I do not see why your reporter seems to think it strange that the President should change his mind occasionally. Ralph Waldo Emerson was a philosopher whom men of all political parties respected upon philosophical questions, yet, when somebody chided him with changing his mind about something, he replied: "What is a mind for?"

Dear Sir: Permit me to protest against the Post-Impressionist's recent defense of the Puritans. Were the defense genuine I should set you down as of New England stock and so dismiss your article as a mere excrescence of genealogical prejudice not unfamiliar north of New York. But the defense is transparently hypocritical. You are clearly praising the Puritans in order to demonstrate that the New Dealers are their opposites and therefore worthy of condemnation.

Have not the New Dealers chopped down as many Maypoles as the Mayflowers? Have not the New Dealers rooted out those whom they consider heretics? We New Dealers may not hang witches, but at least we regulate the length of their broomsticks.

Dear Sir: In a recent issue, The Washington Post editorially attacks the union of NRA employes who have been courageously picketing the Department of Commerce Building and who demand collective bargaining with the Government. You declare that collective bargaining with Government is impossible.

But you are several days behind the times. As one of the organizers of a certain movement, I can tell you that several unions have recently been formed for the express purpose of instituting collective bargaining with the Government. Whether you like it or not, the Government will have to. Among these unions are the following:

UNION OF ARMY PRIVATES. Chief objective: To force the War Department to issue regulations whereby, on every other Sunday, all kitchen-police duties be henceforth performed by commissioned officers.

UNION OF SAILORS ON U. S. CRUISER HOUSTON, Chief objective: To bargain with the President against the presence of radios on board ships of the U. S. N.—except for purposes of navigation.

UNION OF STATE DEPARTMENT MESSENGER-BOYS. Chief objective: To negotiate for the reduction of labor in carrying and distributing future War Debt Notes, by the limitation of such Notes to a maximum of four typewritten pages.

UNION OF INCOME TAX BLANK RECIPIENTS. Chief objective: Collective bargaining with the United States Treasury for simplification of all forms and 10 per cent reduction in totals payable.

Several similar unions are now being formed, and several more will be. But I guess I've mentioned enough to show you that the principle of collective bargaining between Government and governed workers is going to be upheld. I'll just add that the Union Guides, Soldiers, Messenger-Boys and I. T. B. R.'s won't hesitate to picket the Hill, War Department, State Department, Treasury and Washington Monument, if duty calls, and that there's a plan under consideration for the purchase of deep-sea going motorboats with which to picket the Houston should the Houston also require picketing.

Carlisle Bargeron

Borah's Crusade.

SENATOR BORAH'S announced intention of crusading this fall against the NRA doesn't give the Democrats any appetite regardless of the unconcern they affect. It will make trouble for the Democrats in any number of Congressional districts and particularly in the Middle West where there is bitterness against the NRA already and dissatisfaction with some of the Administration's other policies.

BARGERON

But there is no need for the employes of the NRA to worry. Their jobs are good for a long time. Which is to say that the effect of Borah's campaign will be confined to the Congressional races. The NRA—that thing—will be with us longer than was prohibition. We will be lucky if the evolution of it is not for the worse instead of the better.

• • • •

You have only to watch the trend and to know the real plans of the NRA's big business sponsors to appreciate this. The only ones who could have kept us from what we are in for now were the Democrats, who pledged themselves to enforce the antitrust laws and who instead passed a law making a dead letter of them. Enforcement of them, probably in altered and improved form, would have tended to switch the trend from monopoly to smaller business units. We are on our way to bigger and better monopoly now—to a state in which recurring business recessions constitute major economic collapses, giving rise to talk about changing the form of government, instead of the relatively small panics we used to have.

Senator Borah was right when he said the Republicans would make no issue of the NRA. They will beef vaguely about regimentation, but if and when they get the administration of the NRA they won't abolish it. They will "improve" it.

• • • •

Mr. Harriman, of the United States Chamber of Commerce, one of those who put the act across, will tell you what the improvement will be. It will be a tremendous organization of business to prevent "chaos" in trade, to maintain "stabilization" of prices, and the like, with "less" governmental interference The "burdensome" overlordship of the Government will be removed. It will mean no governmental regulation to speak of, and that "chaos" of which the business leaders speak so glibly is nine times out of ten competition.

Republican administration of the NRA would certainly remove the "burdensome" interference of Government. Ever since the Wilson Administration the Republicans removed the "burdensome" interference of the anti-trust laws, and you see where we got. They just didn't enforce the anti-trust laws; that's all. Nothing will make the Government less "burdensome" than not to enforce its laws.

I don't see any way under the sun to head off our definite trend, however. No one would squawk louder, generally speaking, than business itself at any effort to lift the NRA bodily from the statute books. You see, most business men, particularly the bigger ones, think they have put it over on their competitors. One man thinks he has made it a little harder for the other fellow to do business, that he, if he is shrewd enough, can violate features which rub him. The philosophy is that it makes the going a little harder for the other fellow.

And Senator Borah can't carry the argument too far, himself. He would yell, too, at a proposal to repeal the act. You see, it provides minimum wages for the workingman. And the Senator is his friend. Every shade of opinion is hooked in the NRA some way. It was one of the cleverest political things big business ever did.

What is beyond my dumb economic mind is why it wouldn't be better all around if it were again possible for a man to open up a store to sell what he had to sell and probably give employment to a few neighbors at any wage they would accept. His mere opportunity to sell what he had to sell would dissipate the current philosophy of people that somebody owes them a job. Under the NRA's limitation of the right to sell, there really is an obligation to provide jobs.

Farm Teachers Air Problems

Virginia Conference to Conclude Week's Work Today.

Blacksburg, Va., July 6 (Spl.). Problems confronting the Future Farmers of Virgina, an organization of youths devoted to agriculture, were discussed today at the sixteenth annual conference of instructors of vocational agriculture.

W. S. Green, a representative of the Baltimore Bank for Production Credit, was principal speaker in the afternoon.

A general summing up of subjects covered during the week and reports of committees will conclude the conference Saturday. The principal speaker yesterday was Dr. Sidney B. Hall, superintendent of public instruction for Virginia, whose topic was "Curriculum Reorganization as Applied to Agriculture."

During the afternoon, the session was devoted to discussion of work of teachers in fostering cooperative organizations.

'Brain Truster' Calls Borah Inconsistent

Dr. Dickinson Upholds "New Deal" in Speech at Virginia University Institute; Castle Says Latin Policies Go to Far.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Charlottesville, Va., July 6.—Denying that any actions by the Roosevelt Administration constituted dictatorship, Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Dickinson, speaking at the Institute of Public Affairs here today, sharply assailed Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, for his recent attacks on the New Deal.

The speech of Dr. Dickinson, one of the Roosevelt brain trust, was regarded as the high light of the day's proceedings. He made his remarks before the round table on "Democracy and Dictatorship," which, as usual, drew a capacity audience.

Former Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, jr., at the evening session of the institute caustically criticized the Roosevelt Latin-American policies as going too far, and thus creating a dangerous situation for this country, in forswearing all intervention. The Roosevelt regime, he said, inherited the "good neighbor" policy from the Hoover Administration.

Earlier in the day Dr. Orestes Ferrera, former secretary of state of Cuba and well known as that country's former Ambassador in Washington, told the Latin-American round table that the time was not well chosen for abrogation of the Platt amendment, and it appeared that subsequent acts of intervention by the State Department had been inspired by "political and diplomatic dilettantism rather than defense of American interests." He held the latter had suffered losses due to the Roosevelt program.

The discussions at the round table conference on money, which is presided over by Dr. Wallace McClure, of the State Department, were led today by Dr. Herbert Fraser, of Swarthmore College; Prof. George W. Edwards, of the College of the City of New York, and Louis Gallantiere, of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. They discussed money in connection with capital movements and trade.

Harold S. Buttenheim, editor of the American City, in an address before a conference of the League of Virginia Municipalities, meeting here in connection with the institute, contended that in the "apportioning and spending of Federal funds of local public works, there has been too much centralization of authority in Washington." He criticized sharply the failure of PWA to carry out the housing program contemplated in the public works fund appropriation act.

After some generalities about democratic forms of government, Dr. Dickinson, former professor of law at Pennsylvania University, contended that the real question in distinguishing a democracy from a dictatorship was whether the representatives of the people retain their Constitutional power to act. He added that "so long as they do there can be no honest charge of dictatorship."

Borah Is Declared Inconsistent.

AS a stepping stone to his reply to Senator Borah, the Roosevelt brain truster pointed out that there are philosophers who contend that of all forms of government, democracy is one of the least favorable to personal liberty. He said he did not wish to enter that discussion, but he had a few words to say to Borah's contentions that substantial liberties of the people were being invaded by the "New Deal."

"No argument about current policies which purports to be based on time-honored American principles and on the great institutional charters of American liberty can be ignored when it proceeds from such a source as Senator Borah," he continued. "But Senator Borah's recent attempt to draft the traditional principles of American liberty into forced service against the program of National recovery which is proceeding to its goal with such signal success represents a misleading or perversion of those principles.

"I will not adhere to Senator Borah's inconsistencies. He rightly refers at the outset of his speech to the fact that the first task to which our forefathers addressed themselves after achieving independence was to establish a government of law. Liberty under law is the only American type of liberty.

"But the liberty which Senator Borah proceeds to extol throughout the remainder of his speech is not liberty under law. It is the unbridled freedom of every man to provide a living for himself without regard for the common welfare or the rights of others. That is precisely the kind of liberty which leads and has led to the trust and monopolies which with another inconsistency Senator Borah so bitterly denounced at a later point in his address.

"Under any system of law and order no man under the guise of providing a living for himself or under any other guise has a right to conduct himself in a way to injure others. There is nothing more sacred about the so-called right to earn a living than about other rights which are regulated in the public interest."

Senator Borah has always been classed as a progressive, Dr. Dickinson says, pointing out that he has been in favor of legislation limiting the number of hours of work. He asked: "What is that but an interference with the right to earn a living?"

"Senator Borah's liberty is not our American, Anglo-Saxon liberty which looks to the substance rather than to the form—it is a word, a metaphysical entity which is willing to crucify reality for an abstraction," Dr. Dickinson asserted.

"The American way, the Anglo-Saxon way is not to stake all on an abstraction but in the case of every restriction to examine its nature and purpose, what evils it discourages and what good ends it promotes. We can not condemn Governmental measures merely because they are restrictive. All law is a restriction. If restrictions point the road to Moscow, law and lawyers have been leading on toward Moscow since the dawn of law heralded man's release from primitive savagery."

Overthrow of Machado Is Blamed on U. S.

DR. FERRERA, who was allied with the deposed Machado in Cuba, contended that there had been "no continuity" in the Cuban policy of the State Department during the last year. He contended the United States brought about the overthrow of Machado and that "everybody also knows that the successor of President Machado was appointed by the American ambassador."

He asserted that "we have seen very clearly how certain favors have been granted the Cuban government, not for its own sake but for partisan reasons."

"We have seen," he continued, "the recognition of one government while denying it to another, though both of them failed to comply with the same international obligations and showed the same lack of guarantees toward the citizens of the United States and other countries, and besides both these governments were the product of the will of insubordinate military barracks.

"An attitude of such direct intervention in the internal affairs of Cuba was never experienced in the past under the protection of the Platt amendment and does not appear to be in accordance with the derogation of the said amendment which established and insured the relations governing much lesser intimacies than those existing in fact at the present time.

"It is difficult to understand the intimate reasons for such an attitude, especially as the acts of intervention appear inspired by political and diplomatic dilettantism rather than defense of American interests.

"President Mendieta has received as a pledge of good will a loan from government to government, a higher sugar quota than that offered before, a tariff reduction without reciprocal compensation, the derogation of the Platt amendment, the embargo of arms against the adversaries or enemies of the government, and now a treaty of commercial reciprocity, which is considered by everyone as beneficial to Cuba.

"I repeat, since Machado left office until today, when President Mendieta is governing, the American interests in Cuba have suffered gradual and continuous losses and the internal situation has become worse instead of improving. Undoubtedly, if this seems strange to those who are not in charge of the interests continuously injured, how much stranger will it seem to those who are closely concerned."

"Self-Glorification" Deplored by Castle.

MR. CASTLE, after claiming for the Hoover and previous Administrations credit for the Latin-American "good neighbor" policy, said the Roosevelt's Administration's continuation of this policy was a "fine thing," but that he "wished there might have been a little less self-glorification, a little les strident assertion that the New Deal has changed the entire spirit of international relations, because this just is not true."

He said he was unable, however, to follow to the extent gone by the Roosevelt Administration in forswering intervention under any circumstances in Latin America for all time and contended that it amounted to an abandonment of the rights of American nationals in those countries by their own Government. He predicted this part of the treaty signed at Montevideo would lead to trouble for this country and further bitter feeling in Latin America.

Referring to the provision of the treaty regarding non recognition of "territorial acquisitions or special advantages which have been obtained by force whether this consists in the employment of arms, in threatening diplomatic representations or in any other effective coercive measure," Mr. Castle contended that "blind expressions like these in a treaty do not prevent war—they help to make it."

The former undersecretary revealed he had lost faith in the nonrecognition principle, first projected by former Secretary of State Stimson in respect to Manchuria.

Mr. Castle slapped at the present Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles' interference in Cuban affairs last summer, contended that Chairman Key Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee recently demonstrated by his assertions that he knew nothing of the Monroe Doctrine and the aim of this Administration in Latin America "is eternally right but it seems to me that some aspects, at least, of the method are wrong, dangerously wrong."

Guinea Pigs Aid Tests for Rabies

Hagerstown, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—Additional tests will be made with guinea pigs to determine whether a dog which bit Lowell Faith, Hagerstown, had rabies.

The health department declared that where a suspected rabies infected dog is killed, the head should be preserved, as the brain is used to make the test.

The head of the dog that bit the Faith youth was badly mangled when it was destroyed, making it difficult to make the tests.

In the Head Doctor's Absence.

Dr. Garner—All right for what?

Uncle Sam—All right for me to lay off some of those medicines and have a little fun?

Dr. Garner—What put that into your head?

Uncle Sam—Dr. Roosevelt's away, ain't he?

Dr. Garner—Yeah, but he left orders that you were to be kept on the regular treatments.

Uncle Sam—Aw, John, you can ease 'em up a little, can't you?

Dr. Garner—Nothing doing.

Uncle Sam—Why you don't even believe in some of those pills I'm taking!

Dr. Garner—I know, but I'm not the head physician!

• • • •

Uncle Sam—Couldn't you lemme have some candy and ice cream sodas for a change? I'm better now.

Dr. Garner—You're better, but you're a long way from the candy and ice cream orgy stage. Doc Roosevelt told me you were to stay on your diet and avoid all sweets.

• • • •

Uncle Sam—Couldn't you call off a few of those Swedish masseurs and Turkish bath rubbers? They're making an old man of me in trying to make a new man of me.

Dr. Garner—Not me; Roosevelt knows what he is doing.

Uncle Sam—I HOPE so!

• • • •

Dr. Garner—If you get out of anything it's on your own responsibility. I'm not going to have Dr. Roosevelt coming back, finding you in a relapse and blaming me for it.

Uncle Sam—When a guy's as sick as I am, how can anybody tell when he's had a relapse?

Dr. Garner—That's too deep for me!

• • • •

Uncle Sam—Why can't I sneak out of the hospital and have a little fun? I'd like to go on a real bust.

Dr. Garner—It was going on a real bust that put you where you are today, and don't forget it!

Uncle Sam—Aw, that was five years ago.

Dr. Garner—But the memory lingers on.

• • • •

Uncle Sam—Well, listen, doc, would you just let me sneak out and go down to the ol' swimmin' hole for an hour or two?

Dr. Garner—You mean the OSH.

Uncle Sam—The OSH?

Dr. Garner—Sure. We don't call anything by its full name any more; we just use the initials.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Winthrop Mackworth Praed.

I wonder if any of my readers are in the same predicament that a Yale sophomore was exactly 40 years ago, when I gave out in classroom a list of subjects from which each student was forced to choose one, to write a short essay and hand it in, before leaving the room. One of the subjects was.

The Poetry of Winthrop Mackworth Praed.

I wonder how much the boys knew about this gentleman; and I hardly expected that any one would choose this subject. Imagine my astonishment, then, when at the end of the hour, a student handed me a theme of ten pages on Praed! I read it with great interest. It began and went on like this:

"Although we cannot say that as a lover of nature Praed equalled Wordsworth, still it would be a mistake to suppose that he was entirely lacking in his feeling; although he was not so passionate a poet as Byron he was not altogether without passion; even if he did not have that command of language which is shown in the poetry of Keats, still he wrote at times fluently and with some grace," &c., &c. This continued for ten pages and at the very end the boy wrote, "This is all I have to say at present of Winthrop Mackworth Praed, a poet of whom I have never heard."

I marked him perfect, because I knew I should remember his essay as long as I lived, and I have.

Praed died in 1839, only 37 years old. He was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he won medals for original verse both in English and in Greek. He was a man of brilliant wit and extraordinary promise; but so far as he has any fame today, it is because of his light verse, which he wrote with skill and ease.

She was a daughter of a Dean,
Rich, fat and rather apoplectic;
She had one brother, just 13,
Whose color was extremely hectic;
Her grandmother for many a year
Had fed the parish with her bounty;
Her second cousin was a peer,
And Lord Lieutenant of the County.

But titles, and the 3 per cents,
And mortgages, and great relations,
And India bonds, and tithes and rents,
Oh, what are they to love's sensations?
Black eyes, fair forehead, clustering locks—
Such wealth, such honors, Cupid chooses:
He cares as little for the stocks,
As Baron Rothschild for the Muses.

Hot Springs Enjoys Favor of Diplomats

Virginia Spa Is Turned Abruptly Into Gay Summer Capital.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Almost every year the members of the Diplomatic Corps shift their allegiance from one summer resort to another, thus making whichever one they choose a popular place.

For a year or two the former German Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz und Gaffron moved the embassy officially from Washington to Manchester, Mass., where the staff of the embassy and their families settled down for the summer, and the Ambassador and his wife, with their small daughter, spent a part of the time there before making their annual summer trip to Germany.

The former Ambassador of Brazil and Mme. de Lima e Silva, who have left Washington for the former's new post in Brussels, spent two summers at Manchester and gathered there a group of their close friends, as well as Mme. de Lima's brother-in-law and sister, the former Counselor of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. Nano.

All of that group now have left this country for various capitals of Europe, and the North Shore is missing them sadly.

Remain Near Capital.

Another resort that was the vogue with the diplomats for several years is Newport. There the Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos leased a cottage for two or three seasons, and entertained many of their friends in the Diplomatic Corps during the summer months.

The Ambassador of Belgium, Mr. Paul May, spent much of last summer at Newport until he sailed to join Mme. May and their three daughters in Belgium at the end of the season.

This year many of the diplomats have chosen Hot Springs, Va., for their summer headquarters, probably because of its accessibility to Washington in a year when none of them wants to be too far from his post.

Off to Virginia Today.

Today a group will motor to the spa for the week-end to join the permanent colony. The Ambassador of Poland, Mr. Stanislaw Patek, who has recently returned from Atlantic City, will make the trip, and the Minister of the Netherlands, Jonkheer H. M. van Haersma de With, who was spending a short time in Newport, but was called back to the legation by the death of the prince consort of Holland, are leaving this morning for the Homestead.

The Military Attache of the Hungarian Legation, Lieut. Col. Count Marcel Stomm, also will join the group at Hot Springs. The Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos, with their son John, have been installed in their cottage at the Homestead for ten days, and the Ambassador of Argentina and Senora de Espil, who are planning to remain at the resort until autumn, are seen daily on the golf courses. The Ambassador of Belgium and Mme. May, with the Counselor of the Embassy, Prince Eugene de Ligne, are enjoying the beautiful drives in the Virginia mountains for several weeks. Prince de Ligne will sail later in the summer to spend some time with Princess de Ligne, who left several weeks ago for Belgium, accompanied by Mlle. Francois May, daughter of the Ambassador and Mme. May.

Talleys Return; Plan August Trip to Texas

Entertained by Dawes at Chicago; Daughters Attend Camp.

Mr. Lynn P. Talley, adviser to the Director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, president of the Commodity Credit Corporation, and a trustee of the Export and Import Bank, returned to Washington several days ago from Chicago, accompanied by Mrs. Talley and their four daughters, Miss Kathleen Talley, Miss Martha Talley, Miss Carolynn Talley and Miss Beatrice Talley. They were the guests of Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes in their home in Evanston, Ill.

Miss Kathleen Talley, with Miss Martha Talley, who is a student at Sweetbriar College, spent a few days at Washington and Lee University, where the latter led the final ball before they joined their parents in Chicago. While in Chicago the Talleys were extensively entertained and among the parties in their honor was one given by Mr. Frank Wood, of Chicago, and Lincoln, Nebr., aboard his handsome yacht, Nellwood. Miss Kathleen Talley visited several of her Wellesley College friends who live in Chicago, and has now gone to camp in Virginia, where she is the riding and dramatic counselor. At the same camp Miss Carolynn Talley is the junior counselor of riflery and Miss Beatrice Talley is an aid in canoeing.

Mr. and Mrs. Talley expect to leave Washington next month, accompanied by Miss Martha Talley, for their home in Dallas, Tex., where they will spend some time before returning to their apartment at 2340 Massachusetts avenue in the autumn.

Sen. Reynolds' Daughter Wed To Lieut. Colt

Most important was the impromptu wedding on Wednesday of Miss Frances Jackson Reynolds, daughter of Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of Asheville, N. C., and Lieut. Le Baron Carleton Colt, jr., of Bristol, R. I., grandson of the late Senator Samuel P. Colt, who died in office in Washington in 1926. The bridegroom belongs to the family into which Ethel Barrymore married.

The Rev. Benjamin B. Bland, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, read the marriage ceremony in a suite at the Cavalier Hotel set aside for the occasion. Garden flowers were used in decoration. The bride was attired in a simple white costume. Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Dowdy, jr., were the only attendants.

Few Officials Keep Society Circles Active

Cabinet Group Remaining in Capital Continue to Entertain.

With the adjournment of Congress and the departure of the President on his cruise to Hawaii, many members of the President's official family have availed themselves of the opportunity to take much-needed vacations. However, there are still a few members of the official group in town, among them the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, who entertained informally at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton Hotel, and the Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, who frequently entertain at charming informal al fresco parties over the week-ends.

The Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley have not made definite plans for the summer. Mr. Farley left Washington last evening for New York to join Mrs. Farley and their children for the week-end. On Tuesday the Farleys, accompanied by their eldest daughter, Elizabeth, will go to Philadelphia, where the latter will christen the new destroyer, the U. S. S. Aylwin. After the ceremony Mrs. Farley and Elizabeth will return to New York and Mr. Farley will come to Washington.

The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Claude A. Swanson, will remain at his desk in the Capital until everything is cleared up and then he and Mrs. Swanson will take a short vacation. The Swansons find relief from the Washington heat over the week-ends by boarding the Presidential yacht, the Seqouia, on Saturday afternoons and cruising on the Potomac, returning to the Capital Sunday evenings. Mrs. Jones Leaves To Visit Guthries

Mrs. Catherine Letts Jones left Washington yesterday morning, accompanied by her small daughter, Emily, and her niece, Anne Guthrie, for Bay Head, N. J., to spend the week-end with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Guthrie, at their summer home.

Little Emily Jones will remain with her uncle and aunt for several months, but Mrs. Jones will go from there to Pulaski, N. Y., to be the guest of Capt. and Mrs. Hugh Barclay, at Douglaston Manor, for several days before going on to make a series of visits, returning to the Capital about July 15.

Tribbys Plan Trip to Coast

Leave Tomorrow to Visit Hallidays' New Home in California.

Major and Mrs. Joseph Clinton Tribby will leave Washington tomorrow for Santa Monica, Calif., to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Halliday, for a month in their newly completed home.

This charming house, of white stucco, is low and rambling, showing a strong influence of the early Spanish haciendas, plus many attractive modern touches. The place boasts a large blue-tiled swimming pool, which is constantly in use.

Major and Mrs. Tribby will return to Washington about the middle of August, stopping in Chicago for several days en route. They will spend a short time in the Capital upon their return before leaving by motor for Little Rock, Ark., Mrs. Tribby's former home, where they will visit.

Psychology Presents Subtle Contributions to the Amity Of Modern Family Relations

By Malvina Lindsay,

THOSE who believe that marriages are made in heaven, that mothers are endowed by instinct to care for babies, and that a beautiful family life is insured by a game of dominoes on the dining room table may have been aghast at the discussions this week at Columbia University.

Educators attending the Marriage and Family Relations Conference attacked boldly and unsentimentally modern problems of marriage and family life. Proposals both revolutionary and viosionary were voiced. But out of the maze of argument and discussion loomed the encouraging fact that science was attempting to solve the intangible as well as the tangible problems of the home, to give households some more subtle clews to happiness than electric refrigerators.

• • • •

IT HAS not been a great while since old wives in rural neighborhoods were always hoping that every half-wit girl could find some "good man" to marry. The time is not far past when a woman was considered a good wife if she were a spotless housekeeper, a good mother if she kept her children well fed and well preached at.

The shifting emphasis from the material to the psychological aspects of family relationships has made steadily for more enlightened home life, despite the theories of romanticists who are always calling for a return of the crowded hearthside.

It is true that family life of an earlier age had its points. It was robust, expansive, often ennobling. But it was also autocratic and stultifying. In view of its highly tribal features, it is not surprising that it inspired so many songs of the "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" type.

Those who assail the modern home as a boarding house or cafeteria forget that modern knowledge has given it many constructive values. Thanks to science—modern psychology if you will—parents of today know or should know:

• • • •

THAT every individual requires freedom of growth and must not be allowed to become a puny or warped sapling in a dense thicket.

That a child must be protected from mental and emotional injury as well as physical if his later life is not to be darkened.

That railing and sermonizing will not develop character.

That a room of one's own is a necessity both for body and spirit.

That adults suffering from emotional infantilism have no more right to be parents than the physically unfit.

That material selfishness masquerading as motherly love and sacrifice wrecks as many lives as maternal neglect.

Thus has science begun to build a Magna Carta for family life. While it may never be able to provide the spark of love or the warmth of spirtual values, for the home, at least it will give to home relationships increasing beauty—the beauty that is truth.

Sending Back Merchandise Is Expensive

Women Learn Delivery Costs Are Eventually Added to Their Bills.

WOMEN, who are said to make 85 per cent of all purchases in this country, have turned the spotlight on their buying habits and have learned some surprising things about themselves.

They studied in particular their habit of returning purchases to stores. And they found the habit costs them a sizable sum each year. After reducing the problem to the cold truth of figures, women's clubs are campaigning to reduce the number of returns of merchandise.

On the request of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Department of Commerce organized the survey, assigning Ada L. Bush, a business analyst, to carry through the research.

Two out of every three women in the survey area had returned merchandise during the year.

Just to show what returns mean in the long run, the stores reported the annual volume of returns in Boston reached $20,000,000 for the year, or 12½ per cent of all sales; $18,000,000 in Pittsburgh, $37,000,000 in Chicago and $105,000,000 in New York.

Store managers pointed out that wrapping, delivering and then calling for return merchandise costs money which must, in the long run, be added to the cost of running the business, and hence to the prices charged for goods.

Women saw the point, and have decided to cut that delivery cost.

The bureau of business research of Ohio State University reports the average charge-send transaction over a department store counter means 23 persons handle the purchase en route, and the performance costs from 31.8 to 61.6 cents.

Through the questionnaires it was found that dresses are returned most frequently. Shoes came next.

The reason for the return most frequently given was "wrong size." Several women added in their comments that the store was not so likely to be at fault as the manufacturers who do not make uniform sizes. They referred to the maker who turns out a "large size 36."

The largest percentage of returns was made in the class of articles which cost between $1 and $2. More than three-fourths of the returns were made on articles that cost less than $10.

The larger proportion of returned articles had been bought on charge accounts, which seems to point, says the Department of Commerce survey, to the fact that charge accounts make it easy to return merchandise.

A large number of returns were checked up to the woman who can not make up her mind in the store but must "try it on at home." Another large group wanted to take the purchase home for the approval of a husband or daughter. Another large group wanted to "match it."

When 13.9 per cent returned their merchandise they bought something else entirely different from the original purchase.

Several reported the store objected to taking returns, and 46.1 per cent of the group said the store was justified. More than one-half admitted they would object to buying merchandise which some one else had taken home. Almost one-third of the women said the return was their own fault.

PILLAR TO POST

Danger in Cuba.

IT WAS undertaken at the behest of James Gordon Bennet, of the old New York Herald. He was told to reach Gomez, revolutionary leader beleagured by the Spaniards in the interior of Cuba. A yacht was offered Rae to land him in Cuba, but he preferred a less conspicuous method. With his hair dyed, his skin darkened and speaking Spanish like a native, he ran the gantlet of Spanish spies, to face later the even greater danger of capture by the guerrillas and flying columns.

• • • •

Crossing lines, he lay in swamps by day and crept between forts by night, climbing mountains and crawling across trochas. But he did reach Gomez and for this was rewarded by having his story splashed all over the front page. Richard Harding Davis tells Mr. Rae's story in his book, and that of two other intrepid correspondents. He ends it with the following paragraph:

• • • •

"When you sit comfortably at your breakfast in New York with a policeman at the corner, and read the dispatches which these gentlemen write of Cuban victories and their interviews with self-important Cuban chiefs, you should remember what it cost them to supply you with that addition to your morning's budget of news. Whether the result is worth the risk, or whether it is not paying too great a price, the greatest price of all, for too little, is not the question. The reckless bravery and unselfishness of the correspondents in the field in Cuba are beyond parallel.

"It is as dangerous to seek for Gomez as Stanley found it to seek for Livingston. The names of these correspondents are, Grover Flint, Sylvester Scovel and George Bronson Rae."

He Hunted News.

GEORGE BRONSON RAE, representative in Washington of the unrecognized Asiatic state of Manchukuo, has proved his fitness for the job. While the hazards he faces today are purely mental, and he crosses swords only figuratively with opponents in argument, in his youth he was a dare-devil war correspondent who risked his life many times for a good story. No less a person than Richard Harding Davis substantiated this in his book, "Cuba in War Time."

• • • •

• • • •

These things he acquired in the Far East when he was confidential adviser to Sun Yat Sen, first president of the Chinese republic. (He also established and is the owner of the Far Eastern Review, published in Shanghai.) But the possession he prizes above everything is a framed passport hanging upon the wall. It is forged, and behind it is a story that surpasses the famed "Message to Garcia." It took Rowan nearly two months to reach Garcia, but George Bronson Rae performed an equally hazardous mission in 14 days.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If July 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m., and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. until midnight.

This Saturday will be dominated by a holiday spirit, and there will be probably very little inclination on anyone's part to seriously apply themselves to business routine. There was never a truer saying than "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." So, if possible, for the next 48 hours forget business cares, troubles and tribulations, and you may be better prepared on Monday to vigorously start the week right. It will be advisable, if you are invited to join a group of friends in the way of social relaxation, to graciously join in the spirit of the affair, and not try to get them to change their plans if they do not happen to appeal to you. There is nothing more irritating to a host than to have a guest try to tell him what to do. If you are going to try steering Cupid's craft Saturday evening, be cautious to keep it gliding on smooth waters. Careless guiding will get you in rough seas and you may find yourself upset, so keep your weather eye open.

If a woman and born on July 7, possibly Jules Verne, possessed no greater imagination than the one you are gifted with. This should enable you to be very successful as a writer of fiction. You should have a very retentive mind, and an unlimited fund of useful knowledge. An early marriage might prove most helpful and assures a great deal more contentment than so-called single blessedness. You possess all the essential attributes a mother should have, and children should prove the medium of your greatest felicity. There is a very great possibility of your receiving something of value, and what you will appreciate probably more than anything else is the loving spirit that has prompted the giver.

The child whose natal day is July 7, when it reaches its teens, may give evidence of being unusually gifted in the way of being able to express itself, both conversationally and through the medium of writing. Careful consideration and planning should be given this child's education, and it should be allowed to express its preference regarding special courses.

If a man and July 7 is your birthday, you should cultivate the habit of being both broad-minded as well as tolerant, for with your mental attainments, you can be a great factor for good and a powerful influence over those with whom you come in contact.

"NO WOMAN REALLY has personality if her views are narrow," says Mrs. Vinnie G. Barrows, left, director of women's personnel guidance at George Washington University. Two things—contact with fine people and real knowledge—will help a girl to her finest self-expression, believes Mrs. Isabelle S. Farrington, below, regent of Chevy Chase School. Both educators maintain social graces must be developed from within rather than without and must be founded on character.

Beret, Never Quiescent, Becomes Style Fixture

By Virginia Lee Warren.

CHALK UP another style that shows signs of going on forever and forever. A world that has gradually become reconciled to eternal bobbed hair and 60-year-old women with 16-year-old figures might just as well look with equal complacency upon the beret; for the beret is evidently here to stay.

After weakening their hold upon women's heads for the last few months, these delightfully sloppy little hats are staging a spectacular comeback. While huge, droopy affairs still hold first place in many wardrobes, berets are having everything their own way in shops that keep a jump or so ahead of the mode. And, come late summer, these berets will do a little jumping on their own account—right on to well-groomed and fashionable heads.

In Northern cities where enormous hats are seldom seen in the daytime, even during very hot weather, the beret is already being worn by smart women.

Its shape bears little resemblance to the original one, worn by Basque young men. The beret of this season usually has a full tam-like crown that blouses bewitchingly over one eye. Often this leaves the back fitting closely over the rear of the head, although sometimes it is elevated to a stiff peak so there is a pronounced downward swoop over the forehead.

Silk moire, grosgrain, and velvet are in the front ranks of materials favored for berets. Smocking, bits of metal and ribbon bows make smart trimming.

The never-ending struggle of women to retain a youthful appearance undoubtedly accounts for the beret's hold on present day fashions.

The soft, almost shapeless little hat is the next best thing to a baby bonnet for giving a jeune fille expression.

Black for Summer.

QUESTION: I have a plain black silk crepe dress that feels cool but looks hot. Since I only wore it a few times in the spring I would like to get some good out of it this summer. It has short sleeves and is summery in cut, but the color is all wrong, of course. Can you suggest any new way for me to give the dress a lighter touch? White organdy bows and collars seem rather obvious.

ANSWER: A plain black dress can look truly distinctive in the summer, especially at the dinner hour, if, as you suggest, it is given a light touch. This touch may be achieved by wearing white doeskin gauntlets, white hat, and by carrying a white bag. In this case the dress will need no white bows or collars. A gardenia at the base of the neckline would be attractive. You might use poudre blue or aquamarine accessories instead of the white ones.

QUESTION: What can I do about my shoulders? Although I'm short and slender, I have broad shoulders, and most of these new capelet or pleated-sleeve effects make me look like a runty football player.

ANSWER: Plain, short sleeves would be best for you. Try to avoid puffs, pleats, ruffles, or capelets on the shoulders. And do stay away from sleeveless dresses, as they will only change you from a diminutive footballer into a miniature ice-man.

Garden Tea Dress.

QUESTION: I have been invited to attend a garden tea next Thursday. Should I wear a floor-length dress or would an ordinary afternoon frock be all right? And what about hat and gloves?

ANSWER: A floor-length dress of organdy, chiffon, mousseline, dotted swiss or any other sheer material is the proper attire for a garden tea. Short gloves may be worn. Large-brimmed hats look best in a garden setting and are becoming to most women.

Informal Wedding.

QUESTION: What kind of dress should I get for my wedding? The ceremony is to be at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the parsonage, with only members of the two families present. Should I wear white? I want to look like a bride, but since the wedding is to be so small I thought it might be possible to wear something I could use for an afternoon dress later.

ANSWER: For an afternoon wedding in the minister's house, a pastel frock would be just as suitable as white. The material could be matelasse organdy, crinkled crepe or organza. Any of these would make a dress that could be worn for other occasions all summer long. Be sure to wear a hat. It may be of the picture type, or it may be a variation of the beret shape. Gloves and slippers should be in white or some pale neutral shade if they do not match the frock.

Hats for Glasses.

QUESTION: What kind of hat is most becoming to a girl who wears glasses?

ANSWER: Hats with medium or small brims, irregular in shape, usually look well on the girl who wears glasses. Very small hats or turbans are unbecoming, as a rule, because they demand a good profile and "specs" spoil the clear-cut line from forehead to chin. Big, floppy brims and glasses are also an unhappy combination. If a large hat is needed for a garden party a fairly stiff and straight brim is best.

Their Well-Polished Graduates Differ From Those of Past Era

Mental and Personality Development Is the Aim of Modern Educational Institutions Which Attack Latter Problem in Subtle Fashion.

The woman with personality rarely fails either in a business or social way. It is undeniably the most valuable attribute she can have. Do the gods bestow it at random, or is it a thing any one can acquire?

This is the sixth article in a series attempting to answer that question.

By Frances Mangum.

EVEN in an age of machines, no mechanism has been developed to turn out personality. Perhaps the nearest approach is the up-to-date school and university.

Modern graduates are expected to have acquired their share of fundamental learning. But they are further expected to have acquired a cultural polish. They should be able to hold their own in a drawing room as well as in a classroom.

They are glaring contrasts to the ideal girl graduate of days gone by. During her four collegiate years her attention was so concentrated on Latin, Greek and other academic subjects, she had no time to study social graces.

Finished Product Aim Today.

Now it is the aim of modern teaching to combine mental development with personality development, to turn out a product finished in both ways. This trend dates back over 2,000 years. There were women of antiquity whose names have survived the ravages of time because their personalities combined intellect and social grace. Aspasia, for one. She was an engaging Ionian who made her home in Athens. So carefully did she cultivate both her feminine magnetism and her intellect that Pericles, the "noblest Athenian," bound himself to her as closely as the laws of his country would allow. She is known in history as one of his most reliable political advisers, and as one of the most captivating women of all time.

Both Mrs. Isabelle S. Farrington, regent of Chevy Chase School, and Miss Vinnie G. Barrows, director of women's personal guidance at George Washington University, feel schools would be utter failures in this age if they paid no attention to personality development.

Mrs. Farrington discussed the steps modern schools for girls were taking to train students socially as well as mentally.

"Before a girl has finished her courses here," she said, "I want her to come to the full realization that in order to be an attractive woman, a woman with an outstanding personality, she must cultivate two things—fine people and real knowledge.

"All during the year," she continued, "we make every effort to provide our girls with both of these requirements. Academic subjects of course are part of school. But we are laying great stress on personal contacts.

"Every week we have forums. I invite outstanding persons to come and talk to the girls. Not just prominent men and women, but persons who have something to contribute to the development of the students.

"To my mind an attribute necessary to the really attractive woman is the ability to form clear, intelligent opinions. This tends to make her a good conversationalist and it also tends to teach her to listen. For she must listen to acquire first hand knowledge on which to base her opinions. As a result she acquires an independence of thought."

Demand Creates Supply.

Mrs. Farrington believes a girl can only learn the social graces by being placed in situations which demand them.

"Consequently," she said, "we give a great many social functions. The girls meet young and old persons, and have to talk to them. They see the other girls and recognize a degree of competition. As a result they are called upon to exert themselves toward being attractive.

"If they feel at a loss at first, they catch on by watching others. They see how much better it is to stand on their feet, and not lean all over things, to walk lightly, and not clump, to talk in modulated tones and not be noisy, and to dress properly.

"These things can be learned, and are learned just in this indirect manner of teaching. I've seen it happen hundreds of times."

Mrs. Farrington cited a student who had come to Chevy Chase from the Middle West. Having always lived in a very small town, she came to Washington somewhat blinded by an imaginary glamour of the Nation's Capital.

Her classroom dresses were of the dinner variety. Her evening gowns were magnificent models of bows, ruffles, rhinestones and artificial flowers.

Mrs. Farrington was eager that none of the students tell her she was not dressed properly because she felt the girl would be better off if she found out herself.

Story With Moral.

One evening about three weeks after school started came a gentle tap on the regent's door and the girl entered. She said she realized her clothes were inappropriate and would Mrs. Farrington go with her to select new ones. Her graduating year this girl was picked out by a costume authority who was visiting the school as the best-dressed student there.

This incident, she pointed out, evidenced the value of teaching social graces by the indirect method.

Mrs. Barrows becomes acquainted with hundreds of girls entering George Washington University every year and is interesting in watching them develop.

"Of course," she said, "a university is and must be an impersonal school. But at the same time it must nowadays be one that develops the personality as well as the brain.

"We feel that no woman really has personality if her views are narrow. Consequently we try to establish a breadth of learning to bring about diverse viewpoints.

"We have clubs that meet, not so much to study, but to discuss art, music, literature, poetry, politics and such things. We like for the students to take part in one or two, or even three of these.

"And then we try to teach them to use the libraries. Once they have learned this they have a broad means of knowledge at their disposal, and can cultivate many interests and follow wide fields of learning."

How did Mme. de Maintenon succeed in vamping Louis XIV? Find the answer in tomorrow's Post in the sixth article of this series.

Strictly Speaking

A-Gardening.

1. In England, the word narcissus and daffodil are used interchangeably for the some flowers. What is the real difference between a narcissus and a daffodil? Is either the same as the jonquil?
2. What is the correct pronunciation for gladiolus?
3. What is the canterbury bell? Why is it so called, and how is it pronounced?
4. What is clematis? How pronounced?
5. Where is the accent in peony?

Answers Here.

1. Narcissus is a family name including both jonquils and daffodils. The word jonquil is used when speaking of the many-flowered, one-stem members of the family. Daffodils have trumpet-type flowers. When the word narcissus is used with reference to a flower rather than a family of flowers, it designates a plant with short, cupped blossoms on rush stems.
2. It is either gla-DIE-o-lus or glad-i-O-lus. The word is taken directly from the latin, and the accent properly falls on the third from the last syllable (the antepenult). Glad-i-O-lus is, however, common in popular and colloquial usage.
3. The canterbury bell is a plant with bell-shaped flowers, so named because it is found near Canterbury, England. CAN-ter-ber-i-BELL.
4. Clematis — pronounced KLEM-a-tis not klem-AY-tis is a perennial plant of the crowfoot family.
5. The accent is one the first syllable—PEE-o-ni.

PERSONS who raid the ice box at bed time may be undermining their digestion, but they are improving their chances for restful sleep.

A light snack, preferably of cereal and milk, improves the sleep of adults 6 per cent, Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the psychological laboratories at Colgate University, determined by recent experiments.

The sleep of children is improved 12 per cent when they are given a light supper instead of the ordinary last meal of the day, according to Dr. Laird. Easily digested cereal and milk form the ideal main dish of the light supper.

Restlessness Overcome.

"Children are usually restless during their sleeping hours becuse they have failed to digest the meal they ate just before going to bed," said Dr. Laird when he announced the results of his experiments. "It is possible to overcome some of that restlessness by giving them only the more easily digested foods for supper.

The average adult who goes to bed when his stomach is practically empty of foods eaten at dinner presented an entirely different problem.

"Since an empty stomach is subject to rhythmical hunger contractions there was reason to believe these contractions were sometimes strong enough to cause restless sleep," explained Dr. Laird.

Sleep Experiments.

By experimenting with eight adults, the laboratory director learned a bedtime snack reduced the contractions so restlessness was decreased as much as 6 per cent.

Eight children between the ages of 4½ and 8 served as subjects for Dr. Laird. While the adults' sleep study was conducted in a specially constructed laboratory, the children were studied in their homes. A number of delicate scientific instruments, including the somnokinetograph, recorded the reactions of the sleepers.

This Shaving Powder Jar Won't Smash

Masculine Curses and Feminine Nerves Can Be Saved.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THEY'RE unpleasant to hear, those masculine epithets that set the ears a-tingling when a bottle or jar crashes on the bathroom floor!

And it's a nerve-racking occasion, so say the gentlemen, when they reach for their shaving powder and have it slip from their hands and scatter in the midst of much broken glass.

A manufacturer of many things, such as cosmetics and perfume, has recently struck a new chord with a new and altogether handy package of after-shaving powder. It comes in a "plaskon" container which looks like glass, but won't break. It's sturdy enough to bear up under he-man treatment whether in the bathroom or the Pullman. The size is just right for the shelf, or for tucking away in a bag or kit.

As it's slim and panelled it permits an easy, firm grip. And there are no la-de-da colors to affront masculine taste.

The powder is in a natural skin tone so that it won't stand out like a coating of flour on a clean-shaven face. Furthermore, it's scented with lavender, but just slightly, so as to suit the gentlemen. The price is modest.

* * * *

And Now the Ladies.

And now for the ladies. The same store which sells this ideal masculine item is sponsoring a sale of face powder. Large boxes with a small purse-size bottle of perfume are only 55 cents.

Cheap face powder is never a good buy. It doesn't adapt itself to the skin, never looks quite as smooth and natural as it should. So good face powder at a special price is one of the best bargains in the world!

Paint Without Paint.

An answer to how to paint without paint is found in one of the children's games featured in an F street shop. There's a book of interesting pictures, each one devoid of color. And there's a brush. All one does is dip the brush in water and rub it over the picture, which slowly changes from mere outline into a colored print. Here's a real sport for the very young.

Convivial Key.

A combination corkscrew and bottle opener in the shape of a key is selling in a Connecticut avenue store.

The host or hostess can always bid a guest welcome by presenting him with this key, which is apt to fit a great many things and open the way to a convivial occasion. It makes a tricky little compensation prize. And it's a useful gadget to carry around.

A Tile Song.

Visitors to a local shop have evinced interest in the lovely Spanish tile table on display. But the price—so many felt, they couldn't afford it. And lucky those who waited, for because of summer sales it's been reduced to half price!

It's a dream of a table—a tile song in blue, gold and green. The exquisite soft colors of the individual tiles catch the artist's eye and completely charm the layman.

A table of this type is suited to many things. It's lovely on a terrace, or in a sun room, and brightens up a den or library. It can be used for coffee or cocktails, or for beauty's sake alone.

Illuminated Aquaria.

Another store is going in for half prices, too, this one with some fish aquaria. During the winter they attracted many visitors who were struck with the idea of hanging them on a wall and watching the guppies or what not swish around in the illuminated water. Each aquarium is equipped with a long narrow bulb in the top which throws a soft luminous effect to the water. While most of these on sale are for hanging, there are some available for flat table use.

Quick Drying.

Summertime, as most people will agree, is most surely a bad time for keeping the hair sleek and groomed. Pins do little good, whether used by the dozen or not. And after a swim hair is an ordeal!

But it can be arranged easily in large swooping waves, or slicked back to stray if one uses a hair lotion recommended by a downtown store. It's a favorite wave set due to its rapidity in drying. A very few minutes after it's applied, one may safely put on a hat and venture out. Price, 50 cents.

Another Convenience.

There's another home convenience in a G street shop. It's a fruit strainer that fits any glass or cocktail shaker. Just place it across the top and pour in the juices, and there's nothing else to worry about.

This is particularly handy when one is fixing just a couple of cocktails. A lot of trouble saved for only 10 cents!

When Milk Turns Sour It's Time to Start Baking

Spice Cake, Pancakes and Muffins All React Splendidly to Quick-Soured Milk, Not That Which Has Had Time Really to Spoil.

By Ann Barrett.

WHEN the milk turns, so does the baking turn—for the better! Then it is that the knowing cook gets busy in the cause of light-as-a-feather spice cake. Muffins with an extra-good flavor; pancakes, so marvelously tender they practically melt in the mouth.

A point to be remembered in this kind of cooking is that quick-soured milk gives the best flavor; and that sour milk which stands around so long as to really spoil, is of course, unfit for use. Aside from this, it's just a matter of having some good recipes at hand. And here's one for spice cake that's extra-tasty, I think, on account of the lemony icing.

Lemon Spice Cake.

This is easily made. Just mix and sift together several times 3 cups sifted pastry flour, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 cups granulated sugar. Then (in another bowl) mix together 1 cup sour milk, ½ cup softened (not melted) butter, 2 whole eggs (unbeaten) and 1 egg-yolk.

Next, combine the two mixtures and beat vigorously (with split spoon) for 2 minutes. Pour batter into buttered pan (about 8 by 10 by 2 inches) and bake in moderate oven (350 F.) about 25 minutes. Then turn cake out to cool, and ice with following icing:

Put ⅞ cup granulated sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind and 1 egg-white in top of double boiler over hot water. Then beat steadily with heavy rotary beater till mixture stiffens. Remove from fire and beat with spoon till cool enough to spread.

Sour-Milk Muffins.

For those tasty sour-milk muffins, here's how: First cream ¼ cup butter and ¼ cup sugar. Add 1 whole egg, and beat vigorously. Then fold in the sifted dry ingredients (1½ cups sifted general-use flour, ⅜ teaspoon soda and ¼ teaspoon salt) alternately with ¾ cup sour milk. Pour batter into well-greased muffins tins, and bake in hot oven (400 F.) about 15 minutes. Makes 8 large muffins.

Blueberry Griddle Cakes.

If you can get hold of 1 cup blueberries, they'll add an extra-elegant touch to sour-milk pancakes. Like this: First mix and sift together 1¼ cups sifted general-use flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 tablespoons sugar. Then mix in 1 cup sour milk (to which you have added 1 well-beaten egg).

Last, stir in 1 cup blueberries (lightly, so as not to break them). Bake cakes on hot griddle, and serve with plenty of butter and powdered sugar.

Send for More Recipes.

As I have already indicated, this is only the edge of the full sour milk and sour cream story. I've told a lot more of it in my bulletin "25 Delicious Dishes from Sour Milk and Cream."

Mrs. C. Hargis Gets First for Unusual Recipe

Brandied Peaches in Old Southern Style Is Her Offering.

By Susan Mills.

PEACH recipes for chutneys, pickles, pies, cobblers and miscellaneous desserts came into the office this week. Elimination for prize-winning contributions was difficult.

For an unusual old Southern recipe for brandied peaches first prize, $3, is awarded Mrs. C. J. Hargis, Vienna, Va. Second prize, $2, is given Miss Harmonia Earmon, 1940 Calvert street northwest, for a recipe for peach chutney. Peach syllabub brought the third prize, $1, to Mrs. C. W. Clever, 125 North Oak street, Clarendon, Va.

Honorable mentions are awarded Mrs. Georgia Norman, Miss Gertrude Sibley Phalen, Miss Emma J. Grady, and Miss Emily C. Kennedy.

May we use this opportunity to thank the contributors for their very interesting recipes and letters to this department? The cooperative attitude shown by housewives makes the management of the contest doubly a pleasure.

The prize winning recipes appear in order:

Brandy Peaches.

Wipe peaches to remove fuzz; do not peel. Pack in quart jars which have been thoroughly scalded. Place a layer of fruit in the jars, then a layer of brown sugar. Stick a whole clove in every other peach. Let the last layer be brown sugar. Adjust rubber and top securely. Bury in ground at least three feet to avoid freezing.

If made now they should be ready for use in December.

Peach Chutney.

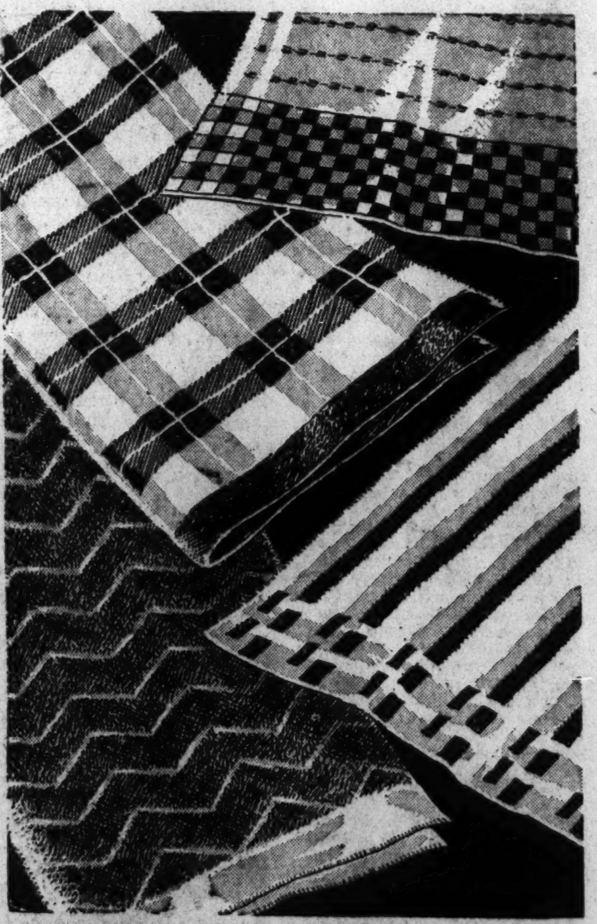
4 quarts peeled, stoned peaches
5 cups vinegar
3 small cloves garlic, chopped
½ cup of chopped onion
1 ounce hot red peppers cut up
¼ pound white mustard seed
¾ cup seedless raisins
3 tablespoons scraped ginger root
½ cup sugar

Add two cups of the vinegar to the peeled, stoned peaches and simmer till soft. Add the garlic, onion, red pepper, mustard seed, raisins, ginger root, sugar and the rest of the vinegar. Boil gently for 15 minutes. Then pour into hot sterile jars and seal at once.

Peach Syllabub.

Dry whip the whites of two eggs, add to them two tablespoons powdered sugar and two-thirds of a teaspoon each of lemon and orange juice. Then fold into the mixture, a spoonful at a time, two-thirds of a pint of cream whipped to a dry froth. Have ready four ripe peaches which have been put through a colander. Stir the fruit a little at a time into the other mixture. Chill on ice. Serve in glasses.

Bigger and Brighter Towels Strewn on Summer Beaches



By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Wear your smoked glasses when you go to the beach this summer. Against sunshine, to be sure. But equally against the dazzling brilliance of the big, bright beach towels. For never have they been bigger nor brighter—nor better looking.

Stripes certainly have the edge on the designs. Narrow stripes. Wide stripes. Combinations of narrow and wide. Six different colored stripes all on one towel are not too many . . . not the exception, either, but more the rule.

Sometimes one-half a towel will be striped in one color . . . brown, perhaps . . . while the other half flaunts stripes of an entirely different color . . . such as green.

Two-Way Stripes.

Somtimes the stripes go two ways—vertically and horizontally . . . combining into block checks on an end. And somtimes they go diagonally to make a diamond-shaped plaid.

Many plaids are used. Bold, blatant ones. Open checks, too. So that when you find a plain color towel without a design you think it most conservative, even though it happens to be scarlet or orange.

Red-White-Blue.

Blue, green, red and yellow make a good four-color combination. Red and navy stripes are used on a white ground.

Most of these towels have white backgrounds, but some are natural color. Brown-and-orange is an effective combination to use on these natural grounds.

Towels of the types described may be found in Washington in all the better department stores.

SLANDER

By Arthur Somers Roche

"SCIENCE seems to have the occasional unhappy faculty of making life too obvious, and [illegible] think are virtues are mere responses to our needs. I don't know. If it isn't too great an impertinence to think that God would deign to notice me, I would feel that I had been called by Him. But anyway, no matter why I'm going, I am going. I have to go."

"Whither thou goest," she smiled.

Ready for China.

"You can't mean that. Are you trying to tell me that you want to share the life I'll lead in China?"

"Is it gallant to refuse a lady's prayer?" she asked mischievously.

"Don't be gay; you only make it harder for me."

"And I shall continue making it harder for you until you give in. You say it's an impulse; perhaps you're right. But it's a decent impulse. And at the same time it's a selfish impulse. Peter, I just can't live without you and I'm not going to try."

"I'm a woman, Peter," Martha continued. "I'm a human being. Those two things mean that I'm changeable and flighty and not certin of myself most of the time. I'll change my mind half a dozen times this morning, but when you take that train this afternoon, Pete, you'll find that I'll be with you. Human beings aren't perfect. They hate those whom they choose to hold responsible for their entanglements. There are going to be times, Pete, when I'll actually hate you. You can't love as much as I know I can love without being able to hate, for a little while, the thing I love. You'll have to be patient with me. You'll have to realize that while your call to service buoys you up above hardship and disappointment, I will have only my love for you and your love for me. If we were to move down to Long Island and you were to establish a fashionable practice, I could promise you, in deep sincerity, that while I might be occasionally petulant, I would never be angry, never nag, never be a weight upon you.

Difficulties Recognized.

"But in the life we're going to lead, under the conditions we're going to live, I can't promise any of those things. I'm going to miss bridge, and the theaters, and gay week-ends, and dances, and nicely appointed things. I wouldn't be human if I didn't miss them, and I'd be a liar if I told you I wouldn't miss them, and our life is to start with no lie, Pete. It won't be easy; I expect to shed oceans of tears. But I expect to love you until I die. Pete, are you taking me with you?"

He looked at her.

"I'm not going to kiss you, Martha, though I'm not afraid of the people outside who can see us through the window, or of the people in the hotel lobby here. I'm not going to touch your hand. I'm going down to the railroad station. I'm going to get a drawing room to Chicago, and another one from Chicago to Seattle. Then I'm going to find a minister. I'm going to ask him to marry us. I'm going to see the railroad company's insurance adjuster. The railroad has been very kind. A man saw me this morning, to tell me that any cash I needed would be given me at once to replace my effects. They would waive formalities. I'll need that cash to buy another outfit in Chicago in the few hours I'll be there.

"I have a very few thousand dollars in the bank, but we can get a check cashed in Chicago to buy things for you. My train leaves at 3 o'clock. Between now and 2 you'll have to think. If you feel [illegible] you say you do, it wouldn't be fair to kiss you, not fair to either of us. Neither of us would think clearly if we kissed. So I'm going to walk out of here. I'll come back at 2 with everything ready for our marriage. I want you to spend these next few hours in thinking. I don't want you to let your emotions race away with you. If you tell me at 2 that you do not care enough to share my life I shall be disappointed beyond my power to express, but not disappointed in you, Martha, for I will know that you have decided what is best for both of us.

He Looked Pathetic.

He rose abruptly and walked out of the hotel. She stumbled toward the stairs that led to her room. Through the plate-glass window she saw him on the sidewalk. He looked pathetic with the bandage about his head, in his soiled and shabby clothes. She touched her fingers to her lips and threw a kiss in his direction.

Martha went to her room. She picked up the Buffalo papers which had been left at her door this morning. She tried to read the account of the wreck of yesterday, but all she saw was the recurring name of Dr. Peter Baxter. She put the paper down and stared out the window.

Remoteness Realized.

Tai Ping. The very name connoted remoteness, strangeness, loneliness. And Bert Cranston, proud though he might be, would still be glad to take her. It would be pleasant being married to Bert. That routine life which until recently she had not thought she could live without was a delightful routine. Even if one's husband left one occasionally for trips of exploration, there would be the excitement of his going and the joy of his returns. If one loved him.

But did one love a person, or did one love the things for which that person stood? But that couldn't be so, for she didn't love China, didn't love Pete's profession.

She leaned back in a chair and closed her eyes. She saw herself set down in the heart of China, surrounded by jabbering, dirty natives. She visualized the long months, the years even, when the only person with whom she could exchange speech with would be Pete.

Boredom Possible.

Would she be bored with him? The question was absurd. Of course she'd be bored with him, just exactly as she would hate him occasionally. But had she the fineness of character, the endurance of soul to survive the trials and the hardships of life with him?

But who could answer that? She hoped she could endure it. Certainly, if one loved with passion, one should give that love a chance to find out how durable it was.

The telephone in her room jangled sharply. She glanced at her watch. Hours had passed; it was 2 o'clock: she hadn't even thought to order luncheon. She trembled so that she was barely able to walk across the room to the telephone. The instrument shook in her hand as she lifted it from a table.

"Martha? I'm downstairs."

"Why, Pete, I've forgotton to pack my bag."

She heard him chuckle.

Not Such a Sap.

"What wonderful helpmeet you'll be for a missionary doctor. You know, you'll have to mix my medicines, and if you forget them——."

"I suppose you'll scold," she laughed.

"Scold? Don't be silly. A few patients will die, that's all."

"I'll pack the bag in two minutes," she promised.

In the middle of her packing she stopped and laughed aloud. What had he said? That he wouldn't scold but that a few patients would die. Oh, perhaps it wasn't the brightest witticism ever uttered, but it was gay, just as he was gay. He might have a mission, might feel himself called to service, but never would he lose the gayety that went with his red hair, his freckles, his blue eyes. She made a little prayer, that God would never let her lose her gayety, either. She snapped the lock of her bag. She must remember to wire Mrs. Gray to send her things instantly to Seattle. She must send wires to Trudie, to all her friends. She must go downstairs at once. The train left in an hour.

The clerk at the desk saw her approach the bandaged hero of the wreck. This time she didn't blow a kiss to Pete. Their lips met in full view of whoever cared to observe.

"Not such a sap after all, that guy," said the clerk to himself.

Which was, perhaps, a perfectly good substitute for rice and old shoes.

The End.

Soviet Story Will Be Run In The Post

The Escape of a Princess From Russia to Be Told, Starting Tomorrow.

DIVERGING from its policy of presenting first-run serials whenever possible, The Washington Post tomorrow will commence publication of a biographical work already in book form. "Escape from the Soviets," by Tatiana Tchernavin, has been selected because it is the most talked of book in the United States today.

Since its publication a few weeks ago, National wholesalers report it as the best selling nonfiction book in the country. Libraries can not fill the requests for the book. To give the thousands who want to read this amazing, fact story the opportunity to do so, The Post will publish it in serial form.

Tatiana Tchernavin's recital concerns the sufferings she and her husband endured from the time of the Russian revolution in 1918, until her escape to Finland last year. Every fact is authentic; every detail pertains to her own experiences for, she explains, "I can not write of other people without exposing them to the danger of imprisonment and exile."

The campaign of terrorism is not yet over, the author says. "I do not know who may survive it; but for the sake of friends who are still alive and of the dear ones killed by the Ogpu (Soviet Secret Police) I want to tell the sad truth about our life in Soviet Russia."

E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc., publishers of the book, are unwilling to reproduce photographs of the author or her husband as they fear this might enable Ogpu agents in Finland to trace them. Yet every detail of this startling story, as enthralling as any fiction writer has ever produced, is vouched for by indisputable authorities.

The first installment will appear tomorrow in the magazine section of The Washington Post.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutler.

The Nervous Child.

Through the education of the public, the cooperation of physicians, and the activities of many health associations, diseases incident to the period of childhood have been greatly reduced.

Fortunate is the family that finds itself in the hands of an understanding physician who quickly recognizes nervous overstrain or instability by such symptoms as a tendency to cry on slight provocation, resentment when justly reproved, fits of uncontrolled anger, and moody spells.

These symptoms mean that the child has a case of nerves that may have a physical basis. Undernourishment and other physical defects must receive attention. We must not regard all signs of nervousness as examples of bad behavior. These may have a definite organic basis.

In the absence of some physical disturbance the symptoms may be functional in character, requiring intelligent guidance in self-control. Specialists in children's diseases have recognized the importance of nervous and emotional strain and their emphasis upon this phase of child development will do much to prevent nervous breakdowns in adult life.

Forcing the child mentally or physically is responsible for some damage to the nervous system. Speed tests, a part of the routine in certain schools, may stimulate a few. These same tests may unduly depress, discourage, and dishearten the developing child whose progress may be a bit slower but who in the long run may outdistance his precocious schoolmate.

Perry Routs Crawford For Title

Wins, 6-3, 6-0, 7-5, to Give England Crown After 25 Years.

Lott and Stoefen Down Hopman and Prenn to Reach Finals.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6 (AP).—Fred Perry, England's great "artisan" tennis player, rose to the greatest heights of his brilliant career today to present England with its own singles championship for the first time in 25 years. A. W. Gore was the last Englishman to win, in 1909.

Where John Bull's best "public school boys" had proved inadequate for a quarter of a century to cope with the invaders, Perry stepped in and crushed Jack Crawford, the world's No. 1 player from the end of the empire, Australia, just like breaking sticks—6—3, 6—0, 7—5.

Perry, the boy who only a few years ago had to ask his employers' permission to get off work to play in park tournaments, proved himself the undoubted master of the present crop of amateurs, and possibly entitled to rank with the greatest of all time. Seldom has a player of Crawford's ability absorbed such a thorough shellacking as Perry applied.

Third Time in Year.

What's more, he was doing it for the third time in a year. Perry went to Australia to take Crawford's home title away on his own grounds, and he whipped Crawford for the American singles championship last September. But for an injured ankle, which probably cost him a quarter-final match against Gregorio de Stefani, in the French championships, he might have achieved the tennis equivalent of Bobby Jones' golfing grand slam of 1930.

What made the one-sided triumph today doubly impressive was the fact that Crawford had full control of his own smooth game at all times. Yet Perry not only proved himself able to outlast the Australian master at his own back-court driving game, but he advanced throughout behind his fiery backhand, forcing Crawford into errors, or putting the ball away with smashes that bounced into the covered stands.

At Top All Way.

Full of fire from the start to finish, Perry played at top speed for every point and never let his empire rival get a foothold. He missed the defensive court with his explosive first service only about once in each five tries. He lost his own delivery only twice in the hour and ten minutes it took him to complete his conquest, one of the shortest in Wimbledon's history.

Outside of the champion's superb play, the only thrill of the match came when Crawford broke through to take a lead of 5—4 in games in the final set. At that point Perry just opened the throttle a little wider, and went away from there with the three straight games he needed for the victory.

King, Queen Absent.

The only thing lacking to make Perry's triumph complete was the fact that King George and Queen Mary failed to occupy their gilt-colored easy chairs in the royal box. There probably was no connection, but British sportsmen have been slow to accept Perry into the inner circle. He has received little encouragement anywhere along the way. Crawford even received far more applause than Perry throughout the first set and the capacity crowd of 20,000 warmed up its hands for a countryman only after he had overwhelmed his rival at love in the second.

Improving with every match, George Lott and Lester Stoefen, American Davis Cup players, joined Helen Jacobs in the effort to salvage a few titles for the United States in other assorted finals tomorrow. The original American Davis Cup pair finally achieved the cohesion they have been seeking as they swept through the Australian-German combination of Harry Hopman and Daniel Prenn, 6—4, 3—6, 6—3, 8—6.

They are expected to make all kinds of trouble tomorrow for Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, the veteran French team, in the final. Borotra and Brugnon knocked out the highly touted British team of Ian G. Collins and F. H. D. Wilde today, 7—5, 3—6, 6—2, 6—4.

Mungo Is Hero As Dodgers Nip Giants

Leslie's Homer With 3 on Proves Big Blow in 11-2 Victory.

BROOKLYN, July 6 (AP).—With Van Lingle Mungo on the mound, the Brooklyn Dodgers today evened their series with the New York Giants by winning the second game, 11 to 2. Mungo fanned eight Giant batters and allowed 6 hits, while the Dodgers collected 18 base hits off the combined deliveries of Joe Bowman and Lefty Al Smith. It was Mungo's twelfth victory of the season.

The most important wallop in the Dodger collection was Sam Leslie's home run with the bases filled off Smith in the sixth inning. The Brooklyn first baseman's hit ordinarily was a sharp line single, but the ball bounced high over the head of Watkins and rolled to the corner of the fence in Ebbets Field.

Frederick Gets Four.

Cubs Top Pirates; Bush Gives 5 Hits

27,000 See Chicago Rout Foe by 9-1 Score.

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Guy Bush's 5-hit pitching and a 17-hit attack against Waite Hoyt and Ralph Birkofer combined to give the Cubs a 9-to-1 victory over Pittsburgh today in the opener of a four-game series before a ladies' day crowd of 27,000. The victory advanced the second-place Chicagoans to within 2½ games of the leading Giants.

A home run by Gus Suhr in the second inning prevented a shutout for Bush as the veteran right-hander turned in his season's tenth victory, but to make up for that the bronzed Southerner drove in four of the Cubs' runs.

With the bases filled in the second, Bush grounded into a double play that scored Gabby Hartnett with the tying run, to wipe out the effect of Suhr's homer. After Cuyler's double and Grimm's single made the score 2 to 1 in the fourth, Bush lashed out a double in the fifth with the bases loaded to climax a six-run spree.

Tony Galento To Fight for Dempsey

Great Future Is Seen by Old Manassa Mauler in Year or Two.

Will Oppose Tow Here on July 16 as Brown Negotiations Fail.

By Bill McCormick.

TONY GALENTO, the rollicking punch pusher from New Jersey, yesterday was tacitly nominated crown prince of the heavyweight division by Jack Dempsey when the erstwhile Manassa Mauler assumed complete control of the Mighty Monarch of the Mosquito Marshes. Galento will make his first appearance under the direction of the former heavyweight champion, who generally is credited with being the chief helmsman in piloting Mad Maxie Baer to the ring's most coveted title, at Griffith Stadium on July 16 against Bob Tow, of Alexandria, in a match that has been underwritten for $4,000 by Tow's manager.

"Galento may not be able to lick Max Baer," Dempsey told The Post from his New York apartment last night, "but right now he'll give him a good battle. He can punch, can take it, but doesn't know much. He's the only heavyweight I can see around that looks like he's got the stuff and I'm going to make something of him. I shall train him personally and figure it'll take about a year to rub off the rough edges and get him ready for top shots."

Mum on Lasky Bout.

Dempsey refused to confirm information received by The Post from authentic sources that Galento already was lined up for a bout with Art Lasky, the Minnesota mauler, who at present is creating a sensation on the Pacific Coast.

"Tony will fight any and all of 'em," the former king of the heavyweights said. "He may go to the Coast for a Lasky fight, but I wouldn't care to say yet. The kid's never had a manager before and hasn't done too much training, but he will now. In about a year or so, he'll be smartened up enough for the best of them."

Galento originally was scheduled to meet Natie Brown in the Griffith Stadium bout, but demanded a flat $1,000 for the contest. Promoter Joe Turner refused the demand, but offered Billy McCarney, Brown's manager, 40 per cent of the gate if he would pay the Galento guarantee. McCarney refused as Beverley May, manager of Tow, in some quarters considered an outstanding prospect, offered to guarantee Turner a $4,000 gate if his charge were allowed to fight the roly-poly left-hook artist. Turner accepted, as did Jimmy Erwin, who was representing Galento here, but it is not known whether Galento will receive the same guarantee against Tow that he demanded to fight Brown.

Under the financial arrangements agreed to by May, Tow will not receive a cent until the gross gate receipts go above $4,000. He will take any and all money above that figure.

Arrangements for the fight with Tow were completed several days ago by Erwin, who relinquished his interest in Galento to Dempsey yesterday, and the pudgy puncher's new manager at first demurred strongly against going through with the bout. He quickly agreed to let Galento go through with the match when the circumstances were explained to him. It is understood that Erwin will continue to act for Galento in this balliwick.

Dempsey stated that he had wished to have Galento in Washington about a week before the bout, but becaust of the scarcity of suitable sparring partners here, it would be necessary for him to remain in New Jersey until Friday.

To Wind Up Here.

"I understand there is no one down there for Tony to work with except a bunch of palookas he could knock over with a punch," the former champion falsettoed, "so, I'll keep him here and work with him myself, if necessary. He'll wind up his last two day's training in Washington, but he'll be ready to fight before that."

Galento has made two previous local appearances, knocking out Italian Jack Herman in the second round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Portner's and battering Marty Gallagher, local heavyweight, into an almost unrecognizable pulp at Griffith Stadium last month. He is 25 years old, of Italian-American parentage, was born in Newark, New Jersey, and weighs 220 pounds, although only 5 feet 9 inches tall.

Berryville Show Set August 23-24

35 Classes and 12 Races Are on Program.

Berryville, Va., July 6 (Spl.).—The Berryville Horse Show will be held here August 23 and 24, with 35 classes and twelve races carded for the two-day meet, according to the program announced by A. B. Hummer, secretary.

The management decided that two classes introduced last year—the pair of hunters and the touch and out—were successful enough to warrant their continuance. Four flat races and a steeplechase will be run each day. There will also be a pony race the first day and a consolation event the second day.

The Berryville show, one of the oldest in the State, usually draws a large number of entries from leading stables of Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and several northern States.

Keyser - Kirson Win District Doubles

Miller-Moore Beaten by 6-2, 6-4 in Finals of Women's Tennis.

IT remained for 18-year-old Peggy Keyser, left-handed little graduate of Central High School, to salvage the one lone bit of consolation for Washington out of the 1934 Women's District Tennis Championships yesterday and she did the job so thoroughly that it eased much of the rub caused by the rout of Capital City players throughout the tournament.

Paired with Reba Kirson, of Baltimore, Miss Keyser was a major factor in her team's victory in the final round of the doubles over Mrs. Dorette Miller and Sara Moore, of Washington, by scores of 6—2, 6—4 at Columbia Country Club. Miss Kirson, in sharing the title with Miss Keyser, retained the honors which she won last year with Mrs. Frances Walker Bassett, of Washington.

Singles Finals Today.

Miss Kirson will play Frances Grimes, the hard-hitting lass from Morgantown, W. Va., in the finals of the singles this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Although the Baltimore girl was seeded No. 1, two rungs above Miss Grimes, and was runner-up for the 1933 crown, she is little more than an even choice to win the championship today.

The victory which pretty Peggy and raven-haired Reba annexed yesterday completed their tournament competition without so much as losing a set. Only a few hours before their title match yesterday the attractive pair swept through Margaret Anderson, of Richmond, and Mary Cootes, Smith College champion, residing in Alexandria, 6—1, 6—3 at the Army and Navy Country Club.

Medica Sets World Tank Record

Betters by Nine Seconds Best Time for Mile; Clocked in 20:57.8.

Seattle Star Avenges Defeat by Flanagan; Effort Sensational.

By Paul Mickelson.

The 19-year-old sophomore from the University of Washington, sporting the colors of the Washington Athletic Club of Seattle, turned in his record-breaking performance to capture the National A. A. U. outdoor mile championship, making a show out of his field by swimming the distance in the amazing time of 20:57.8. His dazzling performance bettered by nine full seconds the world's record of 21:06 established by Arne Borg, of Sweden, in 1929.

High Spot of Day.

Medica's performance easily was the high spot of the day, which was featured also by the victory of Johnny Higgins, 18-year-old high school junior from Providence, R. I., in the 220-yard breast stroke; the surprise triumph of Art Highland, Lakeshore Athletic Club, Chicago, in the 100 meters free style, and the graceful form of Richard Degener, Detroit A. C., who retained his low-board diving championship with 18.26 points to spare over his closest rival, Marshall Wayne, of the Miami, Fla., Biltmore Club.

The Lakeshore A. C. Chicago, with one first and a second, took the lead in the team championship race with eight points against six for the Detroit A. C. and the Miami Fla., Biltmore Club.

Medica's triumph today, which gave him a claim on his seventh world record—four already have been recognized and three are pending—was doubly sweet, as it squared accounts with his foremost rival, 16-year-old Ralph Flanagan, of the Miami-Biltmore.

The Seattle Destroyer took the lead at the outset in the battle over 32 laps in the long course pool, widened to 50 yards at halfway and won by 100 yards, or almost two lengths of the pool. Flanagan, defending title holder, couldn't match his speed, but finished an easy second over Herbert Barthels, Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Breaks Many Marks.

Official clockers said Medica smashed virtually every existing record on his dash, notably the 350, 1,100 and 1,320 yard marks. He swam the first 350 in 6 minutes 21.9 seconds, against Walter Spence's mark of 6 minutes 38.4 seconds; the 1,100 yards in 13 minutes 4 seconds, as against Buster Crabbe's mark of 13 minutes 38.7 seconds, and the 1,320-yard distance in 15 minutes 41.2 seconds, as against Crabbe's American record of 16 minutes 25 seconds.

Higgins shattered the American record twice today in the 220-yard breast stroke. In the morning he led the qualifiers in 2 minutes 55.1 seconds. In the finals he won by a yard and a half over Max Briedenthal, Chicago, in 2 minutes 55 seconds, a tenth of a second faster. The accepted American record of 2 minutes 56.2 seconds is held by Walter Spence, New York.

Merrily On Staves Off Late Challenge to Win

Arlington Park, Ill., July 6 (AP).—A vigorous ride by Jockey L. Hardy brought Mrs. J. Grossman's Merrily On home the winner in the 6-furlong top event at Arlington Park today.

Merrily On was rushed to the front as the barrier lifted and, showing a liking for the muddy going, pulled away to what appeared to be a safe lead. Going into the final furlong, however, Eddie Arcaro, on the favorite, Mrs. Roy Carruther's Mr. James, made a brilliant drive and Hardy was forced to whip and boot his mount to win the decision by three-quarters of a length. W. C. Stroube's Croon was third.

Prince Hall Is Winner in Trotting Feature

Cleveland, Ohio, July 6 (AP).—Prince Hall, owned by Thomas Ashworth, of Charlton City, Mass., and driven by Henry Thomas, won the $1,000 Tavern "steak" for 2:15 class trotters at the Grand Circuit windup here this afternoon after dropping the first heat to Irene Hanover, the favorite, yesterday, before racing was interrupted by the storm.

The son of Laurel Hall trotted his winning heats in 2:06 1-5 and 2:05 1-5 and won comfortably. Irene Hanover faded out of the picture after the first heat. Homer Walton, with Laconic, and Charley Valentine, with Bonnycastle, furnished the only contention.

Style Corner Winner In Close Detroit Race

Detroit, July 6 (AP).—A. J. Halliwell's Style Corner, a 4-year-old bay gelding, beat Commandman and Morsun in a close finish today in the fifth race of an eight-race program given over entirely to platers at the State Fair Grounds.

Style Corner covered the 6 furlongs in 1:14 3-5, with Commandman close up and Morsun less than a length behind in third place. Form players were successful in the first five races, favorites or money choices winning in each. Another favorite won in the sixth race, when Blackstrap beat out a field of earlier winners among the 4-year-olds.

Tigers Win, 4-3, Gaining Game On Yanks

DETROIT, July 6 (AP).—Playing through intermittent rain squalls which finally forced the conclusion of the game at the end of the fifth inning, the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 3, today.

The Browns outhit Detroit in the abbreviated contest, getting to Sorrell for four safeties, one of them a homer by Burns in the first inning. Hadley, who pitched for St. Louis, allowed three hits. The Tigers got two runs in the first inning on passes to Cochrane and Goslin, a double by Gehringer and a sacrifice. Their other two runs came in the third when Goslin singled, Gehringer walked and Rogell hit a double to send both runners home.

Gain on Yankees.

In winning today the Tigers gained a full game on the New York Yankees, who were beaten by Washington, 9 to 8. Detroit is now one-half game behind New York.

Three-Length Victory Is Scored By Elwawa

Latonia Race Track, Ky., July 6 (AP).—Elwawa and Empress Wu carried the Cattell Stable's colors to one-three victory in the Elickaway Farm Handicap, today's headline attraction, the pair being split by W. F. Axton's Paradisical.

Seven of the better grade 2-year-olds accepted the five and a half furlongs issue. Ramrod, a recent winner, jumped into the lead at the break, closely followed by Elwawa. It was evident that Elwawa could pass the pacemaker whenever his rider elected and turning for home the son of Baby Grand swung into the lead and increasing his margin with each stride, won by three lengths.

Gehrig's 24th Homer Futile As Nats End Losing Streak.

Russell Holds Gotham Club Safe After Whitehill Loses Grip.

By Lewis F. Atchison
(Post Staff Correspondent).

YANKEE STADIUM, July 6 (Spl.).—On two rules of economics hinged the outcome of today's battle between the struggling Washington nine and pacesetting New Yorkers, and because Joe Cronin and his scholarly classmates hit upon the correct solution they won the ball game, 9 to 8, disposed of their recent losing streak at three games, and regained their fourth-place seat in the first division.

Working for the Nationals was the law of averages—against them was that of supply and demand. By the first it was high time they won another game from their hosts, whom they had not trimmed since May 30.

In the second instance, grave doubt existed concerning the batsmen's ability to supply the necessary hits and runs demanded by the sour brand of pitching that has crept upon the club and hindered its pennant ambitions.

Ten juicy hits, two triplets and a brace of doubles, all propelled with telling effect to proper portions of the stadium in critical situations, constituted the sum and substance of Washington's answer. It was correct.

Gehrig Hits No. 24.

Working against the law of averages, the Yanks marked down 12 safeties, including Larruping Lou (sometimes referred to as Pants) Gehrig's twenty-fourth home run of the year. But inasmuch as only one man rode around with Lou this

Good morning! Perhaps it's color. Women are certainly taking a greater interest this year in men's apparel. It's interesting to see so many more women coming to our store buying men's things as a hobby and not merely as a matter of doing an errand.

Gelding Beats In High by A Head

Palumbo's Ride Aids in Victory; Golden Measure Third.

Jockey Eddie Smith Pilots Both Ends of $22.40 Double.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., July 6.—Sam Palumbo, the Gem o' the Ocean jockey, believes the best way to cool off on a hot day is to ride on a fast horse. All of which is not a bad idea, especially when you can grab a little breeze and the long end of a purse all in the same motion. He did just that today when he booted Easter Herald to victory in the Shenandoah Valley Jockey Club's feature race.

Palumbo had ridden two other horses on the program, but finished far back where the dust was most annoying. He could do no better than next to last with Hurdy Gurdy, the favorite in the first race, and last with Sambo G. in the second race.

Has His Hands Full.

He appeared to have saved all his energy for the feature race. He rode like a high school freshman turned loose with a Ford roadster. Easter Herald was a trifle tardy on the break, but Palumbo gave the gelding a couple of bounches and he was in front. Americana tried to match strides with the ultimate winner, but soon bit the dust. In High took up the job of chief chasing at this point and barely missed being a catcher in the stretch run. Palumbo had his hands full in keeping Easter Herald in front. A head separated the pair at pay-off time.

The $15 show part of the purse was collected by Golden Measure, which was in a challenging position all the way around, but never challenged.

Easter Herald went to the post the favorite and rewarded the faithful with a $5 mutuel.

Jockey Eddie Smith, of Washington, did the saddle work on both ends of the daily double, which paid $22.40. He piloted Viva Pete to the wire in the first and Thurnbergia in the third. But between the two he could not win with his mother's Repeal, which trailed Crossing Over by a length and a half.

The biggest disappointment of the day came in the sixth race, when Worthington ran a miserable race after being played down to 60 cents on the dollar. Echelon supplied the banner mutuel of the day, paying $17.20 in winning the fourth race.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

First race—Ado and Viva Pete run coupled as the Overcash entry and seem to have a strong grip on this purse. Both are at tops and Viva Pete comes off a winning effort today. By Surprise and Sea Finn have fighting chances.

Second race—Clear Knight is asked to carry 116 pounds and I can't see the assignment halting this one. He will have the consistent Dutiful to beat, bu the latter must move off the also eligible list. Clocker Mike is looking for Sand Bell to spring a surprise.

Third race—Flageolet and Scotty Don will battle it out for the main end of the purse here, I do believe. Both as ready as those recent races indicate. I prefer them in the order named. The Gen might awake for a big get-away mutuel.

Fourth race—Lodorus probably will go postward at liberal odds in this sprint. No cinch but a fast thing with a fair chance of scoring. Small Change picks up a wad of weight. Veritas for the show end.

Fifth race—Wandrel moves up a couple of pegs here. Has several encouraging races to his credit and will have the honest Jackson in the saddle. Bonsoir and Bright Bird to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Hacky H. is Clocker Mike's closing-day special. Mud would help this one, but Mike says any track will do. We shall see what we shall see. Nora's Grace and Nay Nay for the other awards.

Seventh race—Royal Lassie, with Wisner up, gets the Bennings call here. Will have Modern Times and Worthington to take care of. If the last-named wins after that exhibition today, I'm recommending a permanent twitch for his nose.

Eighth Race—Luke Connell is the champion of this sort of horseflesh. I'm looking no further for the winner. Nisia might awake to make a race of it. Forest Faun for the show.

Ninth race—The mile and a quarter should be what No Mistake wants. This one packs a strong finish and will have plenty of time to wind up. Dark Star and Charley J. S. for the other money places. Mike warns that Charley is a sleeper from Sleepersville.

British Lead Australia In Cricket Encounter

Manchester, Eng., July 6 (AP).—England today started its third test cricket match against Australia in impressing fashion, rolling up 355 runs for the loss of only five wickets at the end of play for the day. The first two tests were divided.

Patsy Hendren, colorful Middlesex professional, had a field day to amass 132 runs, while Maurice Leyland was 93 not out when stumps were pulled, and Herbert Sutcliffe, veteran first-wicket batsman, played steadily to score 63.

CROSSING OVER raced KING OF HEARTS into submission going to the far turn, drew out slightly and, under vigorous handling, held REPEAL safe. The latter was rated off the early pace, moved up stoutly on outside entering the stretch, but was not good enough. THIS PLAY was slow to get her best speed, gradually worked her way up, and finished well.

THIRD RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:26. Off at 3:26½. Winner, Miss H. Baker's ch. f. THURNBERGIA had good speed from the start, raced MORDROM into submission after a half-mile, drew out into command leaving the back stretch, and outgamed TRUE JOHN in the drive. The latter, forced to race on the outside in the run for the first turn, moved up stoutly on the back stretch, closed well, but was not good enough. MORDROM had good early speed, but stopped.

DAILY DOUBLE (FIRST AND THIRD RACES) PAID $22.40.

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 3:58. Winner, F. E. Patterson's lt. b. g. ECHELON, rated behind the pace of LAUNCELOT, came around the leader in the stretch and drew out easily on his own courage. LAUNCELOT had good early speed, saved ground on the turns and hung on well, but was no match for the winner. DUNAIR, reserved from the early pace, closed with a rush.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:22½. Winner, Mrs. C. M. Feltner's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAR GENERAL, $7.20, $3.00, $2.80; SELFISH GAIN, $19.40, $14.20; RUBE SAMUELSON, $4.80.

WAR GENERAL, far back in the early stages, moved up quickly between horses entering the stretch and drew away under urging. SELFISH GAIN, closer up than usual in the early racing, moved up stoutly on the last elbow and closed well. RUBE SAMUELSON, a trailer in the early racing, closed very fast. LIGHT ACTION closed a big gap. WORTHINGTON, sluggish in the first part, made up some ground. LADY CLAGETT had some good speed, but tired. PERSIAN STAR quit. MISS PATCHES stopped badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Voco. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 5:12½. Off at 5:13. Winner, F. C. Frisbie's br. h. (5), by Traumer—Sunbranji. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:24, 0:50 1-5, 1:15 4-5, 1:43 2-5, 1:50 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK VISION, $6.20, $4.20, $3.60; MERRY MISS, $3.60, $3.20; ROZELL, $4.20.

DARK VISION had speed to go to the front at once, was rated in the lead throughout, and held MERRY MISS safe. The latter moved up stoutly entering the stretch, but was not good enough. ROZELL had good speed, but was tiring. BENDROMEL had no excuses. The others were outrun. VOCO broke in the air.

Sobieha Captures Rockingham Race

Takes $1,200 Race Easily; First Choice to Win.

Salem, N. H., July 6 (AP).—Mrs. Ed McCuane's Sobieha, 5-year-old mare which formerly campaigned in stake races before breaking down, successfully maintained her position as the favorite by easily defeating four rivals in the $1,200 sprint race which featured today's Rockingham program.

Sobieha had little difficulty wearing down F. A. Griffith's Cutie Face in the battle to the stretch and then breezed to a four-length victory, with J. D. Mikels' Gold Step finishing third.

Sabieha was the first of the favorites to come through, with Grandpa's Boy, owned by the Misses D. and S. Knight, paying $11.50 for the win in the first race, E. B. Townsend's Unlawful paying off $36 in the second and Miss L. C. White's Dornoch, the second choice, taking the third race. Another second choice, Mikels' Polyfon, beat the favorite, Mrs. E. Edwards' Macadam, in the fifth.

McCreary's Subpar 68 Wins at Clifton Forge

Clifton Forge, Va., July 6 (Spl.). T. J. McCreary, 1933 city golf champion, shot a subpar 68 over the Clifton Dale Country Club course here to win the midsummer golf tournament. Preceding the tournament E. G. Rice carried off honors in a driving contest with three drives which averaged 251 yards. McCreary won the approaching contest and A. C. Cobb won the putting contest.

Mrs. K. C. Sydenstricker was the star performer for the women, winning all four events.

Finishing Fast, Royal Guard Triumphs

Comes From Rear to Beat St. Stephens Under Coucci's Urging.

EMPIRE CITY RACE TRACK, July 6 (AP).—Mrs. Henry Ughetta's Royal Guard, winner of his last race at Aqueduct in a gallop, came right back with another sterling performance here today in the Interstate Purse, a dash of about 6 furlongs, occupying second place on a featureless program. Spotting his five rivals an advantage at the start, the Light Brigade colt overtook the faster beginners and won going away by three parts of a length. Maxwell Howard's St. Stephen was an easy second, four lengths before Mrs. C. Phillips' Longford.

Royal Guard, picking up 9 pounds off his last effort, was backed from even down to 3 to 5 with Silvio Coucci in the saddle. His time was 1:09 1-5.

St. Stephens, a colt possessed of high early speed, started out as if to make it a runaway race. Johnny Gilbert had him winging along several lengths in front as they rounded the bend. The Rock and then Longford tried to catch the pacemaker, both failing. Meanwhile, Royal Guard had found his stride after a sluggish beginning. He came between the leaders in the stretch and ran over St. Stephens in the final drive under Coucci's strong urging.

Zachary Now a Dodger.

Tom Zachary, veteran left-handed pitcher released by the Boston Braves, wasn't long without employment. The Brooklyn Dodgers, who have been suffering with pitching pains, took the southpaw shortly after his release by the Tribe.

Nats Nose Out Yanks, 9 to 8, In Slugfest

time, and the other blows were strewn judiciously about the premises by Earl Whitehill, this was a wrong answer for the examination paper. Whitehill hurriedly departed in the eighth for an early shower-bath and Jack Russell replaced him, but all that is unimportant. Washington won.

Charles Ruffing, sometimes called Red the Rough on Washington, who usually can be relied upon to keep the Nats in their places on any given afternoon, attempted to gag the lads again this afternoon, but this time the boys knew all the answers. They pelted him out in the seventh after rolling him for six runs. Kind of rough on Red, as it were.

Van Atta Is Wild.

Van Atta was wild in the New York mound role, and he parted with the final three runs before heaving his last. Johnny Murphy, another of these former collegians cluttering up the Yankee roster, worked the ninth and, for some unexplainable reason, got the Nats out.

It was a thrilling game, one of those exhibitions where your heart is continually trying to move up with the tonsils. Manush, who hiked his batting average up another notch or so with three out of five, thrilled the fans with one of his patented fade-away catches to retire Crosetti in the third.

Johnny Stone went him one better in the fourth to retire Ruffing with a dive, a 10-yard slide on the running track and a nifty catch that sent the Yank twirler back to the bench talking to himself. It was a peach.

Washington broke the ice in the third, getting two runners home and having three on when Schulte popped up to Gehrig for the final out. Whitehill and Myer walked, and all were safe when Crosetti dropped Heffner's peg on Stone's grounder. Manush tied a big hunk of hickory on one of Ruffing's fast balls for a clean single to center, scoring Whitehill and Myer.

Myer led off in the fifth with the third of his four walks and came galloping home on Manush's double down third. Heinrich, himself, was moved around by a lusty two-bagger off the bat of young Cecil Travis.

Meanwhile, the Yanks had scored one run in the third on Gehrig's single which brought Saltzgaver home from second, after he had walked and moved up on another pass to Ruth.

Cronin's crew stepped out in the sixth for a run and again in the seventh for two more. This splurge was featured by Red Kress' healthy triple to center. The eighth brought the final and decisive uprising against Yankee supremacy.

Myer opened with his fourth Annie Oakley of the game, and went to third on Stone's single to right. Manush knocked one down to Heffner, who heaved the ball to Dickey at home only to discover that Buddy had scrambled back to the bag. But Stone was there too, and he was tagged out by Crosetti.

Cronin had a big hand in the affair. He contributed a long triple up against the razor blade ad in center field, which, of course, brought the others around and decided the ball game.

Whitehill left in the eighth when the hosts became boisterous and began breaking the furniture on his pitchers. A generous gesture by Earl put Byrd and Heffner on base and Jorgens with a help-your-self attitude, smacked the next pitch to left field for a double — and two runs. He made the rest of the circuit on a double by Hoag who was doing very well for himself in the Babe's right field position.

St. Louis, July 6 (AP).—The Reds and Cardinals hit and run themselves dizzy today, Cincinnati finally winning a sandlot ball game, 16 to 15.

The Cardinals paraded seven pitchers to the mound. Jesse Haines, who started for the Cardinals, was driven out in the first inning when the Reds scored seven runs. The Cardinals made 16 hits to 15 for the Reds, but the visitors included home runs by Schulmerich, Lombardi and Slade, while Rip Collins' round tripper was the only one for the Red Birds.

Werber Is Star As Red Sox Win

Ferrell Goes Route As A's Succumb by 18-6.

Boston, July 6 (AP).—The Red Sox, paced by fleet Bill Werber, today slaughtered four Philadelphia pitchers for 20 hits and an 18-6 victory in the second game of the series. This heavy hitting delighted Manager Bucky Harris, but his greatest thrill came when Wes Ferrell went the entire distance.

It was the first time in ten days Harris has seen one of his hurlers complete a full game.

Philadelphia, July 6 (AP).—Left Fielder Hal Lee swung a mighty bat today, hammering out three homers and a single to lead his Boston Braves teammates to a 16-to-13 triumph over the Phillies in the second straight free-slugging, loose-pitching affair between the two clubs.

Like yesterday's series opener, which the Phils captured, the power of both teams was at bat, as the Braves collected 23 hits off four Phils hurlers, while the local National Leaguers were pounding a quartet of Boston moundsmen for 18 safeties. Joe Moore hit a homer for the Phils.

Parker Nips Bryan In Chicago Tourney

Wins Uphill 4-Set Battle; Faces Donald Bridge.

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Frankie Parker, youthful Milwaukee tennis ace and defending champion, swept into the semifinals of the National clay court championships at the Chicago Town and Tennis Club today after a brilliant uphill battle that went four sets against Robert ("Lefty") Bryan, of Chattanooga. The scores were 3—6, 6—0, 6—3, 7—5.

By virtue of his victory over Bryan, Parker will meet Donald Budge, of Oakland, Calif., tomorrow. Budge advanced to the semifinals yesterday by whipping Jack Tidball, of Los Angeles, former intercollegiate title holder, in four sets.

Both Parker and Bryan were hampered by the slow footing due to rain-soaked courts. Parker got off to a shaky start in the opening set and after splitting the first two games, Bryan took the next three with sharply angled volleys that left the young Milwaukeean flatfooted near the base line. Parker came back to win the sixth and seventh, but Bryan left-handed his way through the next two.

2 U. S. Entries Reach Finals At Henley

Princeton Eight, Winthrop Win in Day Marked by Record Feats.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England, July 6 (AP).—Men of Princeton — Sculler Winthrop Rutherfurd and the fast Tiger varsity eight—pulled into the finals today of the two principal events of another record-smashing day in the historic Henley regatta, but their chances for the morrow were anything but bright.

Tomorrow the Princeton varsity, stroked by big Aikman Armstrong, jr., will row the powerful Leander eight in the final for the Grand Challenge Cup, and the performances of the English crew of Cambridge and Oxford graduates has been so impressive that the Tigers are 1 to 3 underdogs.

Opposes Dr. Buntz.

Rutherfurd, amateur coach of the Princeton eight, meets Dr. Herbert Buntz, the Germon who won in 1932, in the finals of the classic diamond sculls, and here, too, the American is conceded small chance.

The Princeton Varsity, making its first start, whipped through to a length victory over Pembroke College, of Cambridge, and Rutherfurd defeated R. F. Winstone, of England, by a length.

The Yale crew of 150-pounders, only other American survivor in the field of six entries two days ago, lost out in the quarter-finals of the Thames Cup competition to the Thames Rowing Club, of London, by half a length in a thrillingly close race.

Lower Course Mark.

The performance of this big Leander eight overshadowed everything else on the flower-banked Thames today. For the second straight day the "Old Blues" lowered the course record, this time to 6 minutes 44 seconds for the mile and 155 yards, beating the Thames Club by 7 seconds. Yesterday Leander hauled the record down from 6:51 to 6:45.

It took another record-breaking performance to blast Yale from the running as the Thames Club tore over the Henley distance in 7:$3, third crew of the dy to come home in the Thames Cup competition under the course record of 7.6 the Elis tied yesterday. The Westminster Bank crew won its quarter-final brush in *:59, and the London Rowing Club did the same a full second faster.

Culpeper Winner; Takes First Place

Route Charlottesville Nine Behind Beale, 12-0.

Culpeper, Va., July 6 (Spl.).—The three-cornered tie for first place in the Valley League between Culpeper, Charlottesville and Harrisonburg was broken here this afternoon when Culpeper defeated Charlottesville, 12 to 0.

The locals collected 13 hits from the offerings of Daughtrey and Titcombe, one tripe and two doubles being included. Beale, on the mound for Culpeper, allowed five hits and was never in danger, as only two men reached third base and two the midway station, and he struck out ten.

Culpeper goes to Harrisonburg tomorrow for a game with the second-place club.

Chisox Triumph, 7-5, Drop Tribe to Fifth

Cleveland, Ohio, July 6 (AP).—The White Sox took the second game of the series, 7 to 5, today, dropping the Indians from third to fifth place as Boston and Washington won.

Off to a 2-run start in the first inning, the Sox piled up 2 more runs in the fourth inning and 2 in the fifth, with Al Simmons leading the batting attack with a pair of doubles.

Milton Gaston, veteran Chicago pitcher, allowed seven hits in six innings. He was replaced by Joe Heving in the seventh, but was credited with the victory.

Ralph Winegarner, Cleveland pitcher, helped in his own undoing with a pass in the first inning and by hitting a batter in the fifth.

Hurja Visions Big Fall Gain By Democrats

Unconcerned Over Absent Votes While G. O. P. Plans Drive.

At leas six Senate seats and many additional House seats will be won by the Democrats in the ovember elections, Emil Hurja, right-hand man of Postmaster General James A. Farley in Democratic National headquarters, predicted yesterday.

So confident is he of the outcome that he attaches little importance to the task of getting District residents to cast their ballots in the elections.

Getting thousands of absentee votes into the mails and persuading additional thousands of District residents to go home to vote was a major task of the District Democratic and Republican organizations in the Presidential campaign. Both carried most of the burden of that job but both were given some aid by the National organizations.

Despite the apparent belief of the present directors of the National Democratic campaign, the Republican District organization is preparing to collect funds and conduct a vigorous drive to find voters in the National Capital ready to support their candidataes and send their ballots or their persons home to vote.

Thorough Drive Planned.

"Our committee is planning a thorough campaign to get into the ballot boxes the votes of Washington residents who have voting residents in the States," Edward F. Colladay, Republican national committeeman for the District, said.

"Such a campaign costs money, which is a little difficult to get at present, but we are going ahead with our plans, which we expect to have functioning as soon as the various primaries are done with."

More than 70,000 inquiries of voters were answered at the Dis-Circle, during the last Presoidential campaign, Mr. Colladay estimated. usual in other than Presidential campaigns, Mr. Colloday observed.

The Democratic National headquarters, Mr. Hurja said, believes the claims of the local organizations are exaggerated and the number of votes sent home from Washington are unimportant. Only a small organization has been launched by the National headquarters. This is headed by Mrs. Lester J. Pollock. Mrs. Pollock some time ago headed an abortive effort to take over direction of local Democratic affairs from the Democratic central committee, of which John Colpoys, United States marshal, is chairman, and in which John F. Costello, National committeeman, is aactive.

Pennsylvania Gains Seen.

The Democrats, Mr. Hurja predicted, will win at least ten House seats in Pennsylvania. "Material" gains will be made in New England, in New Jersey and in up-State New York. he said.

Local Democratic organization leaders do not regard the absentee voting as light as National headquarters apparently does. Mr. Costello has placed Maurice Wentzell in offices in the Earle Building to develop plans for getting out the vote.

In the last campaign the local headquarters was manned by 146 workers, of whom 22 were notaries public on duty day and night to aid in preparation of ballots, answer questions and give advice and attest ballots and statements. Approximately 60,000 votes were sent : the support of Democratic candidates in the various States, it was said.

There were 8,485 Democratic votes sent into West Virginia, which for the first time elected a solid Democratic delegation to Congress, it was pointed out. Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, said the aid of votes from Washington assured his election. In recent elections, it was pointed out, Martinsburg, W. Va., went Republican.

Large Ballot Forecast.

Mr. Colpoys believes the number of Democrats in Washington who will vote this year will be larger than two years ago.

"It was a Republican Administration then," he said. "Many were afraid to raise their heads up because they feared it might affect their jobs. Of course our campaign will not be as spectacular as in a Presidential year but we intend to go ahead and do what we can."

A suggestion that the Administration's ignoring of local organization leaders might cool their ardor was denied by Mr. Colpoys.

"Both Mr. Costello, myself and all other good Democrats in the District will continue to fight for the party," he said. "Our loyalty is not dependent on our appointment to jobs."

Lead Tonnage In Movement Is Increased

Metal Sells at Lower Prices As Zinc Advances; Copper, Quiet.

New York, July 6.—The tonnage of lead and zinc sold in the last week was good, the former moving under the stimulating influence of lower prices, and the latter because of brighter prospects for sharp curtailment in the production of concentrate in the Tri-State district, Metal and Mineral Markets reports in its issue today.

"Copper was dull in the domestic market," the report continues, "but moderately active abroad, notwithstanding the unsettling political developments in Germany.

"Little occurred in tin to influence the price of that metal one way or the other. Silver advanced steadily on the knowledge that the Treasury has been a heavy purchaser.

"Under the incentive of a 25-point mark-down in prices, sales of lead last week exceded 8,000 tons. From a 4-cent, New York, and 3.85 cents, St. Louis, basis, which prevailed over the preceding week, the price of the metal was reduced a week ago to 3.85 cents, New York, and 3.70 cents, St. Louis, and on the following day to 3.75 cents, New York, and 3.60 cents, St. Louis.

"Prices continued at the latter level throughout the remainder of the week. Practically all of the various consuming interests were represented in the buying, with battery manufacturers and corroders placing a fair share of the total business.

"In the last week about 1,300 tons of copper were sold in the domestic market, which was considered fair under the present set-up of the industry. The price was maintained on the basis of 9 cents, Valley.

"Further progress was made during the week in the matter of inducing consumers to operate under the marketing provisions of the copper code. Some of the large electrical manufacturing companies have not as yet committed themselves.

"Actual domestic consumption of refined copper is said to be holding around 40,000 tons a month.

"The price of zinc concentrate advanced to $28 on reports that pointed strongly to an agreement on curtailment in production in the Tri-State district that may extend over the whole of July.

"A $30 concentrate basis is expected shortly. This news stimulated activity in Prime Western zinc, and about 4,500 tons of this grade alone were traded in during the last week.

"The future of the market for zinc, so far as the price trend is concerned, hinges on the success of the latest curtailment plan. The price of Prime Western settled at 4.35 cents, though demand at the advance was very quiet."

Stocks Creep Forward in Listless Sales

Market Rises Seven-tenths as Trading Climbs to 457,727 Shares.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Stocks crept forward at a listless pace today, but were unable to shake off speculative inertia.

Fractional gains were the rule as the market dragged to a quiet close. A few strong spots contributed gains ranging as high as about 3 points and investment demand lifted various preferred issues for sizable advances.

Wall street continued to sizzle in a heat wave, and, without news from Washington or trade sources to re-awaken speculative impulses, traders preferred to stay out of the market while waiting for a definite trend to develop out of the present drift.

Commodities Decline.

Reactions in commodities tended to slow down buying. Investment demand for stocks was based chiefly on hopes that the late summer and early autumn months would bring a resumption of the major recovery movement in business. A set-up in steel and other industrial operations was expected next week following sharp curtailment this week, partly prompted by the Independence Day recess.

Volume on the stock exchange increased a little to 457,727 shares, compared with 440,466 yesterday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks moved seven-tenths of a point higher to 78.7.

Allied Chemical, which closed up 2¾ points; Cuban American Sugar preferred, up 2⅜ to a new 1934 peak; Coca Cola, up 2¼ to a new peak, and Lehman Corporation, up 2⅝, were outstanding strong spots. American Can, Chrysler, Bohn Aluminum, Commercial Investment Trust and Commercial Credit contributed gains of a point or more.

Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, New York Central and other prominent rail shares were only fractionally higher coincident with a favorable weekly car-loading report.

The brightest aspect of the business picture at present, according to the weekly Dun & Bradstreet Review, is the strength of retail trade. Hot weather, that agency said, has stimulated movement of seasonal goods into consumption, and curtailment of manufacturing schedules holds out prospect of an abrupt upturn in production later in the year if distribution continues at current levels.

Robey's Review

Were We to Use England's Tactics in Forcing German Payments Our Stakes Would Be $141,000,000 Against $67,000,000.

By Ralph West Robey.

England's success in getting a modification of the German moratorium, while we apparently sit helpless, is almost certain to cause resentment against our State Department. Many people, without taking the trouble to consider trade balances, simply will draw the conclusion that if England can force a continuation of payments on the Dawes and Young loans, there is no reason why we should not be able to do likewise. They will hold that if England can confiscate current balances, or threaten to confiscate current balances, we should be able to follow the same course with just as much success.

Such a position will reflect a failure to realize that only a country with an unfavorable balance of payments with the potentially defaulting nation, can use such a weapon. A country with a favorable balance that used this method for forcing a debtor country to pay merely would be cutting off its own nose. The debtor country could follow the same course, or block all trade, and the creditor country in consequence not only would fail to get the greater payments it wants, but would lose some payments it otherwise would get. All of this is clear if one turns to a few simple figures.

England Had Unfavorable Trade Balance in 1932.

In 1932, the latest official figures I can find, Germany imports for consumption from the United Kingdom amounted to approximately $62,000,000. In the same year she sold German products in the United Kingdom amounting to $106,000,000. The favorable trade balance of Germany in that year in so far as this one country was concerned, therefore, was $44,000,000. What this means is that Great Britain had to pay Germany a net balance during the course of the year of $44,000,000. Or, more accurately, it means that if other items—interest on investments, payment for services, capital remittances of various sorts, &c.—had not offset the trade balance, England would have had to hand over to Germany such an amount.

In the same year the German imports from this country amounted to $141,000,000, and we bought from Germany goods valued at $67,000,000. Our position, thus, was the exact reverse of that of the United Kingdom in so far as net balance was concerned. In other words, whereas Great Britain had an unfavorable trade balance which must be covered by other payments if funds were not to flow from England to Germany, we had a favorable balance which, if not offset, would necessitate funds flowing from Germany to the United States.

Makes It Possible for England to Force Issue.

Now, consider what this means from the point of view of threatening a trade war if payments are not continued on the Dawes and Young bonds. When England makes such a threat the stake she is gambling to lose is trade amounting to $62,000,000 a year. Germany's stake, however, is $106,000,000 a year. Obviously Germany will try to reach an agreement and prevent getting sucked into a conflict in which she is at such a disadvantage.

Were we to make the same kind of a threat, however, the tables would be turned. Our stake would be $141,0000,000 against Germany's $67,000,000. It would be quite safe, accordingly, for Germany merely to sit back and say go ahead. She would know that the United States, regardless of how displeased it may be with the moratorium, would not be foolish enough to carry out the threat.

When our Government says, therefore, that our creditor position with Germany makes it impossible for us to follow the course taken by England in forcing a modification of the moratorium, it is not just using a nice excuse for the purpose of warding of criticism. Rather, it is recognizing the simple economic fact that a creditor nation can not continue indefinitely to get payments from abroad unless it is willing to accept goods.

Foreign Markets.

London, July 6 (A.P.).—Trading was very quiet on the stock exchange today. German bonds were weak, notably the Dawes issues, while Kaffirs were firm. Tin issues were dull following the decline in that metal and rubber issues were better despite the reaction in that commodity. Transatlantic shares remained steady. The closing tone was irregular.

Paris—Prices on the bourse were steady to slightly higher. Royal Dutch shares advanced 10 points despite the disturbances in Amsterdam, and rubber stocks also advanced. The closing was firm.

Berlin—The boerse continued its upward trend, although only fractional gains were registered and closed sustained.

Flour Markets.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Rye irregular; No. 2 western, 62⅝ f. o. b. New York and 79½ c. i. f. New York, domestic, to arrive.

Minneapolis, July 6 (A.P.).—Flour 10 higher. Carload lots, family patents, 6.90@7.10 a barrel, in 98-lb. cotton sacks. Shipments, 21,821. Pure bran, 19.50@20.00.

Chicago Egg Futures.

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—Egg futures, fresh graded firsts, July 13⅞; refrigerator standards, October, 18⅛.

Butter futures, fresh standards, July, 23⅝; storage standards, November, 24¾.

Bonds Climb One-Tenth in Slow Session

New York, July 6 (AP).—Continued firmness in prime investment issues and Government loans was the feature of an otherwise diffident bond market today.

No less than 12 separate issues of Treasury notes and Liberty bonds attained new high prices for the year, and a number of corporate obligations sold at the highest prices in several years.

Transfers approximated $11,817,000, par value, compared with $9,362,000 on Thursday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced one-tenth of a point to 86.5.

The turnover in Government loans aggregated $3,500,000 contrasted with $1,800,000 yesterday.

High Grade Bonds Scarce.

While there was no special developments in the day's news calculated to influence price trends, brokers reported there was apparently a scarcity of high grade bonds in the market and these could be purchased only by meeting offered prices.

Issues establishing new peaks for the past year or longer included Oregon Railroad & Navigation 4s, Kansas Gas & Electric 4½s, Detroit Edison 5s of 1952, Burlington 3½s of 1949, C & O. 4s of 1945, Santa Fe convertible 4½s and American Telephone debenture 5s.

Among bonds that moved up within striking distance of their old highs were American Telephone 5½s, Illinois Steel 4½s, New England Telephone 4½s, Norfolk & Western cons. 4s and Union Pacific 4s.

Included in the Treasury issues making new highs were the 4¼-3¼s, which advanced 10-32; the 3s of 1846-48, which gained 7-32, and Liberty 3½s, which improved 3-32.

Slightly Lower.

A few of the lower-priced bonds sold slightly lower, including Paramount Publix 5½s, Pressed Steel Car 5s, Wabash 5½s, Studebaker 6s and Wisconsin Central 4s.

The foreign list was quiet. German issues lost around a point and French 7s gained 1½.

Curb's Prices Hold Steady In Quiet Sales

Oils Stirred Slightly as Transfers Approximate 136,000 Shares.

New York, July 6 (AP).—The curb market maintained a steady tone throughout today's quiet dealings. Advances of the previous session were modestly extended by a number of issues, particularly specialties.

Oils stirred slightly from their recent rut, Gulf oil running up a gain of nearly 2 points. Utilities showed some improvement, while metals were narrow.

Glen Alden coal encountered moderate profit taking in approaching its recent high mark. Greyhound Corporation again edged forward in rather active dealings. Other firm spots included Down Chemical, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Sherfin Williams and A. O. Smith, all finishing around a point higher.

Transfers, which approximated 136,000 shares, were virtually the same as yesterday.

Maryland's Wheat Is Bumper Crop

Frederick, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—Frederick County farmers will complete today or tomorrow the best wheat harvest for a number of years. Every indication points to a yield almost 25 per cent above the normal and the grain is of excellent quality.

Notwithstanding the severe weather, the wheat came out of the winter much better than was expected. Reports that wheat as well as apples, peaches and berries were badly damaged, and that fruit and berries would be a total failure, were greatly exaggerated.

While very few farmers have threshed their wheat, the indicated yield is from 20 to 30 bushels per acre. In some localities the yield will be more than 30 bushels per acre. The effect of the new Federal licensing provisions on the storage of wheat in county elevators has not excited much interest here. As a rule farmers sell their wheat as early as possible after it is threshed. While some hold on expecting an advance in price, the risk is considered by many farmers too great to undertake.

Banque Regionale Reported Bankrupt

Niort, France, July 6 (AP).—The Banque Regionale, which had a capital of 3,000,000 francs (about $198,000), was declared bankrupt today.

The bank was closed recently after its president, Maurice Proust, had been sentenced to 15 days' imprisonment for "abuse of confidence."

Only a few securities were found in the safe of the bank, which had a number of branches.

Trend of Industry Improves; New Laws Aim to Elimate Factors Retarding Recovery

Government's Home Building and Renovation Program Designed as Frontal Attack on Unemployment; NRA Continues to Play Important Part.

By Alexander R. George.

(Associated Press.)

Industry at midyear looks back on some solid gains this spring, is set for the summer letdown and looks ahead to a seasonal advance in the fall.

Meanwhile, Uncle Sam is preparing for more "priming of the business pump" to offset such retarding factors as the prospect of reduced purchasing power caused by drought losses, dullness in the construction industry and lack of new investments in commercial enterprises.

The major business indicators show the trend from the first of the year was generally upward until well along in May, when a moderate curtailment of industrial activity developed. This was ascribed by economists to seasonal influences and the fact that production in many important lines had run ahead of apparent consumptive demand.

Recovery Seen Handicapped.

Automobile, steel and bituminous coal production made particularly striking gains this spring compared with a year ago, freight car loadings and electric power productions were up, rural general store sales advanced 60 per cent, department and chain store sales rose less spectacularly, and newspaper and magazine advertising increased substantially.

A large percentage of corporations turned losses into gains, others slashed their deficits, factory employment was the highest since December, 1930, factory payrolls attained the level of June, 1931, and the railroads continued to steam slowly out of the red.

Some trade observers, however, see the recovery movement handicapped by increased merchandise prices, which tend to offset the bolstered purchasing power of farmers and factory workers, the prospect of heavy crop losses in drought areas, the failure of the building industry to show vigorous spring expansion and the lack of private investment confidence.

The Government's home building and renovation program is designed as a frontal attack on unemployment in the heavy industries related to the construction trade where the jobless are said to number 5,000,000.

Other big weapons available for use by the Administration are continued benefit payments to farmers, Government loans to small industries, hundreds of millions of dollars for unemployment relief and aid to drought sufferers, public works expenditures and the special powers vested in the President to buy silver and change tariff rates.

Government economists recognize the vast number of unemployed and the price problem as serious maladjustments.

Due to the drought, rising prices on most staple food products are forecast for next autumn, a development which would tend to absorb increased buying power and in turn serve to curtail production.

NRA Held Helpful.

Meanwhile, NRA continues to play an important part in the business picture with Gen. Johnson and his aids tackling the task of administration of the codified industries, the revision of certain objectionable features and the working out of policies on the controverted price-fixing.

President Roosevelt, NRA officials and supporters point to a year of progress under the codes, the President declaring "we are not through yet." They cite millions returned to work at fixed wage levels, curtailment of price cutting, increases in industrial production and general stabilization of industry as achievements of NRA.

Critics contend that under NRA prices have been raised too quickly, running ahead of farm and labor purchasing power; that code administration has tended toward monopoly to the injury of the small business man, and that the interests of the consumer have not been safeguarded.

Russian Black Sea Exports.

Exports from Russian Black Sea ports passing Istanbul during the first four months of the current year registered an increase of 18 per cent compared with the corresponding period of 1933, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache Julian E. Gillespie. The total volume exported during this period amounted to 3,295,681 long tons against 2,795,987 long tons in 1933.

Wool Market.

Boston, July 6 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. of Agr.).—The wool market in Boston was almost at a standstill. Asking prices showed no definite change, even though there was not enough business to establish them. The declines in opening prices at London and the weakness following the opening early this week were, however, having an unsettling effect upon the price situation in this market.

Wall Street Briefs

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Improved employment figures were reported today by William B. Stead, associate director of the United States Employment Service. He told a conference of State directors that 78,861 names were taken off the unemployed lists by the PWA and private employers during April and May, with the same trend continuing into June.

Wool goods markets were moderately active last week as clothing manufacturers placed duplicate orders on men's wear suitings and overcoatings says the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. Buying of women's wear fabrics showed signs of expanion, but actual business placed was not heavy, being limited mostly to sample lots of the new fall cloakings, according to the service.

Prices of alloy steel bars, both hot rolled and cold finished, and alloy steel billets, blooms and slabs have been reduced $2, a ton, effective July 13, at several principal centers, according to schedules filed with the American Iron & Steel Institute.

S. G. Crowell has been elected a director of the Brazilian Traction Co., succeeding the late R. O. Haywood.

Norfolk & Western Railway Co.'s pay roll will be increased approximately $75,000 monthly as a result of the 2½ per cent salary restoration for rail employes under the agreement of last April 26, according to A. C. Needles, president of the system.

Sales of S. S. Kresge Co. in June totaled $11,522,566, an increase of more than 11 per cent over the $10,304,867 reported in the same month in 1933. For the first six months sales totaled $63,291,643 against $54,726,073 last year, or an increase of 15.6 per cent.

E. S. Burke Elected.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Edmund S. Burke, senior vice president of the Kelly Springfield Tire Co., has been elected president, succeeding W. H. Lalley, resigned, it was announced today. The resignation of D. R. Weedon as vice president was also accepted by the board.

Wilkins Coffee Votes Dividend On Preferred

The board of directors of the John H. Wilkins Co., coffee merchants, has declared the regular semiannual dividened of 4 per cent on the outstanding preferred stock and a dividend of $1.50 per share on the outstanding no-par common stock. Both dividends are payable July 16, 1934.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Directors of the Homestake Mining Co. declared an extra dividend of $2 and the regular monthly disbursement of $1, both payable July 25 to stock of record July 20. Previously, Homestake, a leading domestic gold mining company, paid extras at the rate of $1 monthly.

Directors of the Maytag Co. today declared a dividend of 75 cents on the $3 cumulative preferred stock and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the $6 preferred, both payable August 1, to stock of record July 16.

The payment on the $3 preferred marks a resumption of dividends, the last payment having been 75 cents a share on February 1, 1932.

On May 1, last year, the directors ordered a dividend of $9 a share on the $6 preferred, which represented the regular quarterly payment of $1.50 and $7.50 on accumulations, which cleared up all back dividends on this issue.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Cotton cloths were inactive today as most of the larger gray goods operators were away. Moderate sales of wash fabrics in cleanup lots were reported. Rayon yarn prices were somewhat irregular due to offerings of lots of varying qualities through brokers. More inquiry was reported for rayon fabrics to be made. Improvement was reported in the demand for wool goods for early cutting. Silk converters did more buying of greige goods. Satins and taffetas sold well in finished lines. Burlaps were very quiet.

Wheat Values Pushed Higher; Corn Declines

Market Rallies in Late Trading After Early Losses; Oats Lower.

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Tightening up of the wheat market as a whole resulted today from the fact that wheat available for immediate use was bringing a liberal premium.

The price of immediate delivery wheat went to the highest point in 15 years, as compared with future delivery contracts.

Wonder was expressed in some quarters as to where the Chicago market would be able to obtain any large quantity of cash wheat after the prevailing movement from Illinois and Indiana was ended.

Closes Irregular.

Rallying late in the day from early losses, wheat futures closed irregular, ⅛ lower to ⅝ higher than yesterday's finish; corn ½@1 down, oats at ¼@⅝ decline, and provisions 2 to 7 cents gain.

An outstanding circumstance in the wheat market was that for the first time in a long while No. 2 hard wheat at Kansas City was reported as changing hands at quotations well above the December delivery there.

Furthermore, it was announced a Nebraska mill had made an unsuccessful bid yesterday afternoon in Omaha for No. 2 hard at a price equal to 98 cents a bushel in Chicago. Another strengthening influence was a let-up of selling that has been associated with pressure of arrivals of newly harvested wheat from rural sources.

Millers were reported as active buyers of car-lots of wheat in the Chicago market, whereas offerings to arrive were of only fair volume.

Moreover, frost was reported in Manitoba, as well as in Southern and Central Saskatchewan, with ice formed at some points, causing apprehension as to possible crop damage, the wheat plant in some districts north of the Canadian border being described as in bloom.

Weakness of wheat values earlier in the day was ascribed largely to corn market setbacks resulting from timely rains over parts of the corn belt.

Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska sent word of good rains beneficial to corn, with showers in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. There were also forecasts of additional moisture both in Oklahoma and Texas. Oats followed corn.

Provisions advanced as a result of packers' buying.

HOLC Reports Distribution Of One Billion

After an existence of slightly more than one year (under the act of June 13, 1933), the Home Owners' Loan Corporation was enabled to announce today that more than $1,000,000,000 have been disbursed in Federal mortgage relief to distressed urban home owners.

The summary of operations by the HOLC covered figures available as of June 29, 1934.

During the past week 17,510 loans, amounting to $51,911,690 were closed, the report revealed, bringing the total of mortgage refunding and other advances by the corporation to date to $1,027,991,565, distributed among 341,162 individual homes throughout the country. The average loan is $3,013.

More than 99 per cent of these transactions were effected by exchange of the fully guaranteed bonds of the corporation for past-due mortgages, the balance representing cash loans to take up arrearage of taxes and for reconditioning.

Twenty-two States have each closed more than 5,000 loans to date. These are Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Maryland, Ohio Pennsylvania, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Missouri, Illinois Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Texas, California and Washington. Ohio leads with loans numbering 38,557. Hawaii reports 216 loans closed.

During the week 22,277 applications for loans were received. To date 1,510,750 applications, amounting to $4,856,269,830, have been filed. A large portion of these are ineligible, largely because many of the applicants are not in genuine distress, and such applications will be rejected as rapidly as investigation discloses the facts.

Chase National Declares Dividend

Shares May Be Placed on Semiannual Basis.

New York, July 6 (Spl.)—Directors of the Chase National Bank yesterday declared a 47-cents-per-share dividend on common stock of the bank, payable on August 1 and covering the four months ending on that date.

In accord with expectations expressed by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman, in a recent letter to stockholders, this disbursement places common shares on a semiannual-dividend basis, so that payments coincide with dividends on preferred shares.

A dividend was also declared on preferred stock, payable August 1 and covering the period from March 15. Dividends to individual holders of preferred stock will be at the rate of 5 per cent annually, while dividends on preferred shares held by the RFC will be at the rate of 4 per cent for the period from April 1 to August 1.

The 47-cents-a-share dividend on common stock, the bank announced, is to compensate for the postponement by one month from July 1 to August 1 of the dividend payment date, as against previous quarterly payments of 35 cents a share. Dividend payments hereafter will be on February 1 and August 1.

Annual capacity to produce pig iron and ferro-alloys rose 654,086 gross tons in 1933 to a total of 51,110,061, while capacity for steel castings declined by 29,104 gross tons to 1,963,151.

Coffee Destruction Is Pushed Higher

Coffee destruction in Brazil during June totaled 1,227,000 bags, the highest monthly total since September last year, according to the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange.

During the crop year July 1, 1933, to June 30, 1934, 10,816,000 bags were destroyed, against 9,949,000 bags in 1932-33 and 8,376,000 during the 1931-32 year, which marked the beginning of the program to eliminate surpluses. Since the beginning of the program, Brazil has destroyed 29,141,000 bags or more than one year's consumption for the entire world.

Brazilian production for the 1933-34 crop year amounted to 29,880,000 bags, according to official estimates, of which some 2,700,000 bags were retained on plantations. This indicated that about 27,200,000 bags had left plantations. Exports amounted to 16,317,000 bags and there were 10,816,000 bags destroyed, or a total of 27,133,000 either exported or destroyed during the crop year.

Sugar Sales Rise To New High Point

Sales of refined sugar by the United States cane sugar refiners and beet sugar companies on the "buying move" of June 22, when the cane sugar quotation was advanced from 4.65 cents per pound to 4.75 cents per pound, approximated 25,168,000 bags of 100 pounds each, or 1,258,400 short tons, according to an estimate made by Lamborn & Co.

The sale of 1,258,400 short tons refined sugar (or 1,346,500 short tons, raw sugar value) is one of the largest bookings on record, and approximates 21 per cent of the 1934 United States quota of 6,476,000 short tons, raw value, fixed by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Cotton Prices Decline Under Liquidation

July Closes at 11.92 as General Market Falls 15 to 17 Points.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Cotton made a feeble recovery today after an early decline of $1 a bale. After a rally from 12.07 to 12.17, October closed at 12.10, or within 3 points of the lowest. The final tone was steady, with last prices showing net losses of 15 to 17 points.

The opening was 10 to 18 points lower, with active months showing net losses of 17 to 20 points during the early trading under scattered selling and liquidation.

The relatively easy showing of Liverpool and reports of showers in the Southwest were among the chief factors in the selling.

The failure of the detailed weather reports to show as much rain as was calculated in the Southwest brought in covering or rebuying by early sellers during the early afternoon.

Later, however, buying was checked by the forecast of additional showers in Texas, and after selling up to 11.97 for July and 12.32 for December, prices eased again under renewed liquidation in the late trading. Final quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest for the day.

A private report estimated the acreage at 28,820,000 and another at 29,157,000 acres. According to a canvass New York Cotton Exchange members on the average are looking for a Government acreage estimate next Monday of 29,150,000 acres.

Exports today, 8,603, making 7,432,360 so far this season. Port receipts, 12,778. U. S. port stocks, 2,528,984.

Responding to a Double.

It is one of the sound basic principles underlying the Takeout Double that a Double of one major suit implies strength in the other, and ordinarily if a minor is doubled, the doubler holds strength in the dominant major suit, spades. The alternative of this is that the Doubler has a suit of his own so strong that he is willing to show it over his partner's forced response. This basic principle permits the Responding Hand much greater freedom in determining his course of action.

As an example, observe the bidding on the hand below, which was played in a team-of-four match in New York City recently. As a matter of fact, East would have been much better advised had he made a Preemptive bid of four hearts on his holding. The result might have been the same, but at least it would have required considerable courage on the part of North and South to reach their best contract.

East, dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

The bidding (figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs):

East	South	West	North
1♡	Pass	Pass	Dbl.
4♡(1)	4♠(2)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—Too late now to serve its best purpose. It may of course crowd the bidding greatly for North and South, but would have been much more effective as an Opening bid.

2—North's Double of one heart guarantees spade support or a good minor suit, and in view of South's holding in the minors, the latter is improbable. In any case, South is prepared for a bid of five clubs or five diamonds.

In the play, East overtook West's Opening lead of the heart Queen and returned another heart, which was ruffed in the closed hand. Three rounds of trumps were now led and East was marked, by the bidding and play, with eight hearts, three spades and two cards in the minor suits. A small diamond was led to the King, to which all followed, and at this point South decided that East's other card must be the lone club King, since, had West held that card, he would have had sufficient strength for a shaded one-no-trump response to his partner's Opening bid. So Dummy's Ace of Clubs was next played, dropping East's King. Now South assured himself of making six-odd by leading Dummy's last spade and discarding a small diamond; for this play reduced West to five cards—he could not hold three diamonds and guard his club Ten as well. This line of play also protected South in case he was mistaken in his reasoning and East actually held only seven hearts originally, for then East would have held two diamonds and the diamond eight would win the last trick.

A Slam contract, however, could not be reached as it depended too much upon Fortune's favors. Not all Slams made in the play should be reached in the bidding, nor, it might be said in passing, should all Slams reached in the bidding be made in the play.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Chatter Squirrel Is a Good Hunter

A wild turkey has the right name, for he certainly is wild. The truth is that there is hardly any bird or animal that it is harder to slip up on than a wild turkey. It is a fact, as you know, that Mr. Man had killed several of them down on the creek, but he had been hunting them for years and years, and knew where they went to get their dinners, and he could hide and wait till they came to eat. But it's a hard job for most people to get near enough to a wild turkey to kill him with a gun.

There were lots of turkeys in the woods away up above Blackie's house, but he hadn't ever been able to catch them, and when Chatter Squirrel came Blackie asked him if he could help him get the turkeys.

"Well," said Chatter Squirrel, "I have mixed around a good deal with turkeys, and I always noticed that they seemed to think there was plenty to eat around where they found me, and they would follow me all over the woods. I reckon if Jocko would take his gun and hide behind a rock or big tree, I could make some turkeys follow me close enough to him to let him shoot them."

They talked it over and planned to take the wagon next day and go away up the mountain, where there were lots of berries and acorns and other things that turkeys like to eat. Wild turkeys get up mighty early for their breakfast and so the creek folks had to start away before day. Jay Bird flew ahead as soon as it was light enough to see, and he looked all round for turkeys.

And he found them! There were about a dozen of them scattered all about and they didn't seem to be finding much to eat. Jay Bird flew back to the wagon and told them what he saw.

"Just let me do this," said Chatter Squirrel, "and we will get more than one turkey. They will follow me wherever I go. All of you except Jocko stay here. Jocko, get your gun and come with me."

So Jay Bird, Jocko and Chatter Squirrel hurried back toward the turkeys. When they got to a big rock not far from where Jay Bird had seen the turkeys, Chatter told Jocko to sit down behind it and wait till the turkeys came in sight.

Then Jay Bird flew along and showed Chatter Squirrel where the turkeys were. Just as soon as they saw Chatter running about all the turkeys began getting together around him, for they thought he would lead them to a good breakfast. He just played around for a little while, and then he began to hop along toward the big rock, where Jocko was. And every one of those turkeys, with a great big gobbler in front, started out, one right behind the other, following Chatter Squirrel!

Well, you can just guess what happened. When that row of turkeys got in sight of Jocko Monkey, Chatter Squirrel scooted up a tree so he wouldn't get hit and Jocko shot both barrels of his gun right at that row of turkey heads. He killed the big gobbler and six others, and, before they were through fluttering, all the folks from the wagon had run up and were grabbing turkeys just like they had never had anything to eat before.

Culbertson on Bridge

Responding to a Double.

It is one of the sound basic principles underlying the Takeout Double that a Double of one major suit implies strength in the other, and ordinarily if a minor is doubled, the doubler holds strength in the dominant major suit, spades. The alternative of this is that the Doubler has a suit of his own so strong that he is willing to show it over his partner's forced response. This basic principle permits the Responding Hand much greater freedom in determining his course of action.

As an example, observe the bidding on the hand below, which was played in a team-of-four match in New York City recently. As a matter of fact, East would have been much better advised had he made a Preemptive bid of four hearts on his holding. The result might have been the same, but at least it would have required considerable courage on the part of North and South to reach their best contract.

East, dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

The bidding (figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs):

East	South	West	North
1♡	Pass	Pass	Dbl.
4♡(1)	4♠(2)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—Too late now to serve its best purpose. It may of course crowd the bidding greatly for North and South, but would have been much more effective as an Opening bid.

2—North's Double of one heart guarantees spade support or a good minor suit, and in view of South's holding in the minors, the latter is improbable. In any case, South is prepared for a bid of five clubs or five diamonds.

In the play, East overtook West's Opening lead of the heart Queen and returned another heart, which was ruffed in the closed hand. Three rounds of trumps were now led and East was marked, by the bidding and play, with eight hearts, three spades and two cards in the minor suits. A small diamond was led to the King, to which all followed, and at this point South decided that East's other card must be the lone club King, since, had West held that card, he would have had sufficient strength for a shaded one-no-trump response to his partner's Opening bid. So Dummy's Ace of Clubs was next played, dropping East's King. Now South assured himself of making six-odd by leading Dummy's last spade and discarding a small diamond; for this play reduced West to five cards—he could not hold three diamonds and guard his club Ten as well. This line of play also protected South in case he was mistaken in his reasoning and East actually held only seven hearts originally, for then East would have held two diamonds and the diamond eight would win the last trick.

A Slam contract, however, could not be reached as it depended too much upon Fortune's favors. Not all Slams made in the play should be reached in the bidding, nor, it might be said in passing, should all Slams reached in the bidding be made in the play.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Chatter Squirrel Is a Good Hunter

A wild turkey has the right name, for he certainly is wild. The truth is that there is hardly any bird or animal that it is harder to slip up on than a wild turkey. It is a fact, as you know, that Mr. Man had killed several of them down on the creek, but he had been hunting them for years and years, and knew where they went to get their dinners, and he could hide and wait till they came to eat. But it's a hard job for most people to get near enough to a wild turkey to kill him with a gun.

There were lots of turkeys in the woods away up above Blackie's house, but he hadn't ever been able to catch them, and when Chatter Squirrel came Blackie asked him if he could help him get the turkeys.

"Well," said Chatter Squirrel, "I have mixed around a good deal with turkeys, and I always noticed that they seemed to think there was plenty to eat around where they found me, and they would follow me all over the woods. I reckon if Jocko would take his gun and hide behind a rock or big tree, I could make some turkeys follow me close enough to him to let him shoot them."

They talked it over and planned to take the wagon next day and go away up the mountain, where there were lots of berries and acorns and other things that turkeys like to eat. Wild turkeys get up mighty early for their breakfast and so the creek folks had to start away before day. Jay Bird flew ahead as soon as it was light enough to see, and he looked all round for turkeys.

And he found them! There were about a dozen of them scattered all about and they didn't seem to be finding much to eat. Jay Bird flew back to the wagon and told them what he saw.

"Just let me do this," said Chatter Squirrel, "and we will get more than one turkey. They will follow me wherever I go. All of you except Jocko stay here. Jocko, get your gun and come with me.

So Jay Bird, Jocko and Chatter Squirrel hurried back toward the turkeys. When they got to a big rock not far from where Jay Bird had seen the turkeys, Chatter told Jocko to sit down behind it and wait till the turkeys came in sight.

Then Jay Bird flew along and showed Chatter Squirrel where the turkeys were. Just as soon as they saw Chatter running about all the turkeys began getting together around him, for they thought he would lead them to a good breakfast. He just played around for a little while, and then he began to hop along toward the big rock, where Jocko was. And every one of those turkeys, with a great big gobbler in front, started out, one right behind the other, following Chatter Squirrel!

Well, you can just guess what happened. When that row of turkeys got in sight of Jocko Monkey, Chatter Squirrel scooted up a tree so he wouldn't get hit and Jocko shot both barrels of his gun right at that row of turkey heads. He killed the big gobbler and six others, and, before they were through fluttering, all the folks from the wagon had run up and were grabbing turkeys just like they had never had anything to eat before.

Progress.

In olden times our village lent high privilege to every gent, and we had stables, styes and pens, in which we kept cows, hogs and hens. A rather rancid smell arose from all these shacks in rows on rows, and they drew flies in endless swarms, which settled on our human forms, and hit our elbows and our knees and spread abroad a punk disease. And there were cranks who rose at times and said our hogs and cows were crimes; they should be banished to the farms, where live stock had admitted charms. These cranks would sometimes hire a hall, and there display their matchless gall; but as a rule we spoiled their hats with cabbage heads and old dead cats, and sometimes dumped them in the stream, for boosting so absurd a scheme. The village papers called them down, and said they wished to spoil the town; the poor man to the dump would jog if not allowed to slap his hog; the children would be famished now if no one kept a bob-tailed cow. And so we fussed to beat the band till cows and hogs and hens were vanned; a while we talked, indignant chaps, of tyrants grinding down our maps; then we got used to tyrants' wiles and viewed this modern scheme with smiles and now we'd hunt the fellow down who tries to bring a cow to town.

3-Man Board To Rule NRA Part of Plan For Revision

Adoption Would Result in Retirement of Gen. Johnson.

Changes Studied To End Criticism

Hot Springs Parley Backs Division of Functions.

Plans for fundamental reorganization of NRA to meet increasing criticism are under discussion among Administration officials with the probability that definite recommendations will be ready to present to President Roosevelt soon after his return from his Hawaiian cruise, it was learned yesterday.

One suggestion which has been advanced calls for creation of a three-man board to govern NRA. This is one of many that are being advanced.

It is possible, but by no means certain, that Gen. Johnson would retire as a result of such reorganization. It is fairly certain that NRA would cease to be the one-man show which it has been in its first year.

There is wide recognition within the Administration that Gen. Johnson, with his energy and picturesque talents as a showman, performed an exceptional feat in stamping NRA upon the face of the Nation in a quick and emphatic manner. But there also is wide recognition that NRA has entered a new phase, in which other types of leadership are necessary.

Given Complete Latitude.

There is also a desire, particularly in view of the nature of the political opposition which is now developing, to get away from a one-man set-up with the implications of arbitrary action which that suggests. A board, it is felt in some quarters, would provide more sure-footed direction and would be less likely to resemble a personal dictatorship that many read into the "crack-down" utterances of Gen. Johnson. There is every indication that Gen. Johnson can remain a leading figure in NRA as long as he chooses, no matter what reorganization is decided upon.

Under the recovery act, the President has authority to delegate any of his functions and powers "to such officers, agents and employes as he may designate or appoint," and to establish an industrial planning and research agency to aid in carrying out his functions under this title.

This gives the President complete latitude in heading up the recovery

3 Men Killed In Ditch Slide

2 Others, Also Working on Relief Project, May Be Dead.

Waynesboro, Pa., July 6 (Spl.).—Three men were killed and two others were believed dead in a cave-in which occurred this afternoon on the Waynesboro sewer project. The cave-in was believed caused by the breakage of a water main and the subsequent sliding of tons of macadam into the ditch where the men were working.

Pinned beneath the heavy macadam, George Moudy, 30; Edward Miller, 35, and George Hartman, 30, were dead when rescue workers reached the floor of the sewer ditch.

John Baker, 25, who escaped and ran for aid for his imprisoned companions, collapsed upon returning to the scene of the tragedy and is under a physician's care.

Gerald Creager, who was buried beneath the macadam, was rescued when almost suffocated.

Clock-Watchers Get Warning From Ickes

Manicuring on Job and Propping Feet on Desks Hit.

By Gerald G. Gross.

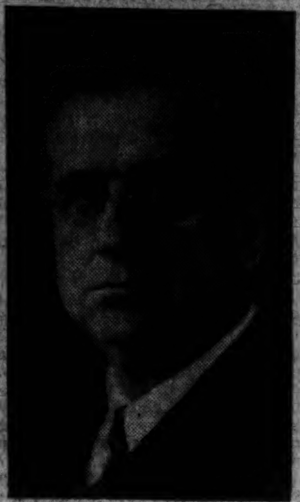
At 3 p. m. the departmental auditorium and the full length of the corridor were filled as thick as a rush hour loading platform with bureau chiefs, $800-a-year clerks and hundreds in between, all on the spot to hear Ickes express his opinions on breakfasting after 8 a. m., stampeding for exits at 3:30 and foot-on-the-desk-propping.

Verily, they were on the spot, the guilty with the innocent. For the Secretary of the Interior and Public Works Administrator had decided a lecture was in order on the evils of manicuring on Uncle Sam's time and the most expedient thing was to assemble the combined forces, Interiors and Public Workers.

He cited the case of a woman employe who had the misfortune to be caught in a 3:30 home rush recently.

"She was run over and stamped on in the stampede to elevators," Ickes said sympathetically, "and no one even stopped to pick her up."

After several days she recovered, the worse for her experience.



SECRETARY HAROLD L. ICKES

"So I plead with you to refrain from committing mayhem on your fellow laborers," he concluded.

The corridor crowd, hanging onto every word from the numerous loud speakers, kept silent.

M'Nider Raps 'Rule Without Constitution'

Calls on G. O. P. to Unite for Fight to "Protect Nation."

Jackson, Mich., July 6 (AP).—Hanford MacNider, former National commander of the American Legion and former United States Minister to Canada, in an address here today charged the Democratic Administration with conducting a socialistic experiment and placing upon the Nation the greatest "debt ever borne by the American people."

"There can be no doubt," he said, "that the Constitution is being undermined today."

MacNider was the principal speaker today at a two-day gathering here of Republicans celebrating the birth of their party 80 years ago. Tomorrow Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican National committee, and United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg will speak.

Socialist Platform.

"There was nothing in the Democratic platform nor in the utterances of that party's candidates," MacNider said, "that even suggested any such program as we are undergoing today. Nor did any one suspect—and this holds for many stalwart Democratis—that it was the platform of the Socialist party which was to be implemented instead of the one upon which they appealed for votes. On the Socialist platform their performance for one year is practically 100 per cent. * * *

"What our Government needs right now, as only once or twice before has it ever needed anything, is a vigorous, fighting, unified Republican party, reinspired in the cause which originally gave it birth—the preservation of the Constitution."

MacNider asserted that a group of "brilliant young men of no admitted party allegiance, dizzy with sudden and unrestricted power, are experimenting with every phase of National life. The industrial and business body of America is securely strapped to the classroom table."

Hits Debt Burden.

The Administration, he went on, "has put upon our backs and those of our children the most crushing burden of debt ever borne by the

French Parliament Out; Riot Danger Removed

Paris, July 6 (AP).—Parliament packed up tonight and got out, leaving Premier Gaston Doumergue free to run the country for the next four months.

It was believed Parliament was dismissed in order to avoid all temptation of a new march on the Chamber of Deputies.

Two More Die; Break in Heat Is Due Today

Another Prostrated With Mercury at 96; Rain Is Promised.

Two more deaths and one prostration attributed to excessive heat were recorded yesterday as Washington sizzled through the twenty-first day of its heat wave. Yesterday's high was 96 degrees at 3 p. m.

Thundershowers, which will drive the mercury down to the 70s, were forecast for today by the Weather Bureau.

Lillian Heck, 1-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Heck, of 1710 Bay street southeast, was drowned yesterday afternoon as she played in the bathtub with her brother, Alfred, 2 years old.

Mrs. Heck said she left them alone a few minutes while she went downstairs. When she returned the baby was lying on the bottom of the tub. She was pronounced dead when taken to Casualty Hospital.

William H. Hoover, 53, of 608 F street northwest, collapsed from the heat at his home last night. He was taken to Casualty Hospital, but died before aid could be administered.

James E. Butler, 27, colored, of the 1400 block of T street northwest, Library of Congress truck driver, was overcome while at work. He was taken to Emergency Hospital, where it was said his condition was not serious.

The "real relief" from the heat, promised by the Weather Bureau, will come in the form of local electrical storms. The torrid wave will be definitely broken, and cool, pleasant weather will prevail over the week-end, the Weather Bureau said. The showers are expected to continue this afternoon, but clear weather is predicted for tonight.

Because of the intense heat division heads of the National Recovery Administration were instructed at 3:30 p. m. yesterday to dismiss all employes for the day who could be spared.

4 Drowned as Tug Sinks After Crash

Port Huron, Mich., July 6 (AP).—The tug Monarch and four of its crew of eight lay at the bottom of the St. Clair River near here tonight, victims of a tangled hawser that upset the tug in midstream while it was towing the hulk of the old S. S. Bielman from Sarnia, Ont., to Cheboygan, Mich.

The dead were Capt. Dick MacDougla, 55, Algonac, Mich.; Manuel Larin, engineer; Duain Precious, 22, a fireman, and "Frenchy" Bernard, a deck hand. The four surviving members of the crew swam ashore.

The hawser became tangled and whipped the two vessels together. The stern of the tug struck the Bielman with such force that the tug was tipped over.

2 Brothers Die Side by Side In Gas Chamber for Murder

State Prison, Florence, Ariz., July 6 (AP).—Two youthful brothers, convicted of murdering an aged prospector in a $25 holdup a year ago, were strapped side by side and put to death in Arizona's new lethal gas chamber at dawn today—the first time in this country two persons have been executed simultaneously by use of gas.

The brothers, Manuel Hernandez, 18, and Fred Hernandez, 19, were convicted of murdering Charles P. Washburn, Needles (Calif.) prospector, near Casa Grande, Ariz.

As they were strapped into their seats in the death chamber the blindfolded youths were seen to move their lips. Their words were not audible to some 40 witnesses outside the tightly sealed chamber who peered through a double glass window to watch them die.

At 5:09 a. m., a cord concealed behind a white curtain was severed. A mesh bag containing 15 pellets suspended inside the chamber dropped into an acid container on the floor. Gray wisps of deadly gas curled upward. Within three minutes, the boys were dead.

Two physicians listened through elongated stethoscopes taped to the boys' bare breasts and extending outside. They said Manuel died a minute before Fred.

Manuel tried to save his brother by shouldering all blame for Washburn's death, but the pardon board rejected his story.

The boys' last meal was eaten with the relatives in a corridor of the death row.

'Frisco Hit By City-Wide Strike Peril

Parley Weighs Walkout of 45,000 as Riot Protest.

Dock Work Continues Under Heavy Guard of Soldiers.

San Francisco, July 6 (AP).—In a martial atmosphere heavy with the promise of cold steel and hot lead for the violent, steps were taken here today to ward off a general strike in protest against the shooting down of water-front pickets and the use of the National Guard, and the idea spread quickly to Portland, Ore.

Only a few steps removed from a three-mile line of National Guard machine guns and bayonet-tipped rifles commanding peace on the strike-torn water front, a call for a general strike was formulated by a joint committee of 50 representing the union ranks in the long maritime walkout.

John O'Connell, president of the San Francisco Central Labor Council, said the agents of 120 unions with a membership of 45,000 were meeting to discuss the advisability of a complete walkout. A two-thirds vote was necessary to carry the question.

General Meeting Is Called.

Representatives of 80 unions in Portland approved a resolution calling upon a committee to meet not later than Monday to formulate plans for a general strike in sympathy with the walkout of 27,000 Coast longshoremen and marine workers.

The Portland move for a general strike consensus, as in San Francisco, followed the hurling of gas bombs into picket ranks last night as strikers sought to prevent the non-union movement of cars from an oil company plant. Bullets were fired over the heads of the Portland strikers.

President Roosevelt's labor disputes board, which for days had worked in vain toward getting all sides together voluntarily for a settlement, decided tonight to use its authority under the newly enacted Congressional resolution governing employment controversies.

The board, invoking for the first time the provisions of the new law, announced it would hold public hearings beginning here Monday to determine issues, facts and practices in the controversy. It has the power to subpena witnesses and records, and to act as arbitrator upon request.

Shipping Conditions.

Prior to ordering the hearings the board issued an appeal to both sides to accept arbitration.

The movement of long-delayed cargo from the State-owned water-front area—a nonunion operation

27 U. S. Sailors Injured in Riot

Liberty Turns Into Brawl At Nice; Two Men Are Badly Hurt.

Nice, France, July 6 (AP).—A shore leave of frolicksome American sailors tonight turned into a brawl in which 2 were seriously hurt, 25 were cut and bruised, and 10 were arrested.

James Kline, 25, U. S. S. Arkansas, shot through the neck by a policeman, is in a Nice hospital. One other American, authorities said, was badly hurt.

Several hundred sailors and marines came ashore from the battleships Arkansas and Wyoming. Merry parties gathered in a dozen cafes, and fights broke out simultaneously in five places. Police said the sailors broke crockery, tossed furniture about and fought among themselves and with Frenchmen.

The city police had their hands full. The situation was almost out of control when Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis rushed a riot squad of sailors from the Arkansas. The riot squad used blackjacks vigorously to round up the revelers.

$107,000 in Gems, Cash Taken from Wall Safe

San Antonio, Tex., July 6 (AP).—Cash, bonds, and diamonds, with a total value of $107,000, were taken in the burglary of a wall safe in the home here of Mrs. Mattie Bolling, across the street from Sheriff Albert Hausser's residence, it was reported today by Mrs. Bolling, mother of R. S. and L. S. Bolling, oil operators.

The burglary occurred while members of the family were absent from the city.

Armour Stockholders Favor Reorganization

A plan of replacing present stock issues with new ones, allowing the company to prune $55,370,000 in non-profitable properties from its books, won the votes of stockholders owning 3,420,235 shares. A total of 4,572,313 shares were eligible to be voted.

5% Federal Salary Cut Continued

President Orders Slash in Effect for Six More Months.

Action Based on Survey Showing Living Cost Under 1928 Scale.

Federal employes must continue to take a 5 per cent cut in their pay checks at least for another six months, the White House disclosed yesterday.

An Executive order, formally continuing the remaining 5 per cent salary reduction until January 1, took its place on the long roster of orders signed by the President before he sailed away on vacation.

The President based his decision on cost of living statistics of the Department of Labor, showing that living expenses throughout the Nation are still 20.2 per cent lower than for the six months ended June 30, 1928—the basic period under the economy act.

Hope for Relief Blasted.

The order blasted whatever hope Government workers held out for further relief than was granted them by Congress in the independent offices act.

At that time, 5 per cent of the original 15 per cent slash was returned to them, retroactive to February 1, and another 5 per cent was remitted July 1.

But not even the most optimistic Federal employes' organizations expected the President to wipe out the pay cut this year entirely, especially in the face of his record in vetoing the independent offices bill, carrying the rebate, as first passed by Congress.

Based On Living Costs.

But White House attaches pointed out that Mr. Roosevelt's action was mandatory under the economy law requiring him to base his pay-cut proclamations every six months on the amount of curtailment in living costs under the 1928 basic period.

Whenever living costs rise to the point where they completely wipe out the differential between 1928 and the current six-month period, he is empowered to proclaim the salary slash at an end.

Yesterday's report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed index figures for the six months ended June 30 at 136.4, more than 20 per cent lower than the 171.0 index figure for the 1928 basic period.

An increase was shown, however, over figures announced early this year for the six-month period ended last December 30, when the index was 135.0.

Critics Prompted Survey.

At that time a furore was aroused in local Government employe circles, where it was claimed Labor Department surveys were based on antiquated methods of appraisal. To quell the disturbance, President Roosevelt authorized Secretary of Labor Perkins to make a special study of local living expenses, with a view to bringing the Labor Department data up to date.

When Congress returned last January, both the American Federation of Government Employes and the National Federation of Government Employes drove for

Police Raid Club—Not for Liquor, But To Still Saxophone

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—Police swooped down on a night club here early today and arrested 27 persons—but it wasn't for liquor. It was to silence the saxophone.

Through hot nights neighbors tossed and stood the tooting of the saxophone, the main instrument in a three-piece band. They complained to police.

Today police backed a patrol wagon up to the establishment and hauled away every person in sight.

Magistrate Joseph O'Donnell heard three complaints of the tooting.

Attorneys promised the saxophone would be silenced at midnight.

Said the magistrate:

"I'm going to dismiss you, but next time anybody plays that saxophone after midnight, it's going to cost him $26.45. By the way, which one is the saxophone player?"

"He got away," Sergt. Joseph Say said sadly.

Plot to Attack Caffery Charged

Havana, July 6 (AP).—Thirty-two former army officers were arrested today as the result of a raid on an office in a bank building and accused of planning terrorist attacks, including one against United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery.

Chief of Police Jose Pedraza, who directed the raid, said many incriminating documents were found in the office and that evidence was turned up to indicate the former officers planned to raise money for a revolution by incriminating prominent persons.

Fifteen of the prisoners were taken in the office where the names of the other 17 were found. Each of the latter group went to the office in response to a telephone call advising him he was wanted there.

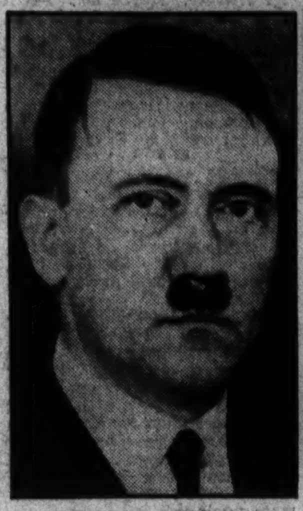
Papen Seeks to Retire; Will See Hindenburg



ADOLF HITLER.

EDMUND HEINES.

Berlin, July 6 (U.P.).—A fresh drive against monarchistic conservatives was feared tonight when it became known Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen is determined to go over Chancellor Adolf Hitler's head, carrying his case directly to President Paul von Hindenburg.

The United Press was informed by reliable sources that Von Papen intended to proceed to Neudeck, East Prussia, and explain the futility of his continuing in a cabinet dominated by Hitler. He has remained through the events of the past bloody week only at the Presi-

Government Acts On Trade Problems

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press.)

Berlin, July 6.—Fears of a new uprising against Adolf Hitler kept Nazi forces on the alert tonight, as the first week after the summary killing of "traitorous" sub leaders came to an end.

That Hitler himself barely escaped death in his "purge" of the revolting Storm Troop chieftains was related at Breslau today on good authority.

Edmund Heines, Breslau police chief and Storm Troop leader, an American citizen there was told, ran up to Hitler with a revolver when the chancellor raided Ernst Roehm's house at Munich.

One of Hitler's aids shot Heines down, saving the chancellor, said the American, who heard the account from a former friend of Heines whom he regarded as absolutely reliable.

Papen Aids Released.

The position of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen appeared somewhat improved tonight when it was announced that three members of his staff, one of whom had been reported killed, had been released from police custody.

While keeping close watch for new outbreaks, the government was busy with its economic problems.

Realizing the acuteness of the economic situation, the authorities took steps to tighten their hold on industry.

There was talk of wartime regulations, including the enforced use of many home-produced substitutes for materials heretofore imported.

Kurt Schmitt, minister of economics, was given sweeping powers to carry out the commercial policies, an act interpseted as a move in the direction of the conservative elements.

Schmitt was even expected by some observers to bring about a relaxation of the anti-Jewish policies as a means of improving foreign trade.

Nazi spokesmen told of the renewed vigilance against revolt after hearing rumors that friends of the executed Roehm, supreme Storm

Ten Killed As Amsterdam Riot Spreads

Reds Join Unemployed in Battling Police; Many Injured.

Amsterdam, Holland, July 6 (AP). Nine or ten persons were reliably reported to have been killed tonight as riots spead throughout Amsterdam.

Confined for 48 hours to the Jordamm district, new disorders tonight broke simultaneously in 16 other sections.

Police and rioters engaged in numerous district conflicts, and so many were injured that the sanitary service was scarcely able to handle the rush of the wounded.

The disorders were started in the Jordamm district by unemployed men protesting a cut in the municipal dole. They were joined by Communists and for many hours the rioters completely dominated the Jordamm area, a section of workmen's homes.

Troops patrolled the streets on horses, on bicycles, and afoot, and police armored cars, equipped with machine guns, sought snipers.

The district was described as a seething mass of revolt, and police feared that they would be able to end the disorder only after a great deal of bloodshed.

Most of the bridges connecting Jordamm with the rest of the city were closed, but rioters burned two of them.

Several hundred building trades employes and timber dock workers started a strike in sympathy with the rioters.

A delegation of Communist deputies sought a conference with the minister of the interior, but were told that they would first have to stop the disorders.

Former Kaiser Becomes A Great-Grandfather

Berlin, July 6 (AP).—Former Kaiser Wilhelm II, at the age of 75, has become a great-grandfather.

Announcement was made today of the birth of a daughter to Prince Welhelm of Prussia, oldest son of the former crown prince, who broke the Hohenzollern tradition by marrying Dorothea von Salviati, a commoner, in June, 1933.

U. S. Traders Threaten to Leave France

100 Million in Back Taxes May Be Demanded Under Old Law.

Paris, July 6 (AP).—Faced with the prospect of being called upon to pay excess taxes, estimated to aggregate $100,000,000, executives of American firms doing business in France, gave serious consideration to quitting the country as Parliament adjourned today without ratifying the anti-double taxation treaty.

The taxes represent a levy on dividends of American firms estimated to result from their business in France, but many firms have not been paying them and there has been no effort at collection for several years.

A spokesman for American interests said that some concerns already are talking of leaving the country and of the possibility of retaliation in the event efforts are made to collect the taxes now due.

The action of a Chamber of Deputies committee in holding up ratification of the treaty, with an intimation that the matter would be connected with war debts, indicated that Franco-American trade may be affected by the tax issue.

The treaty, under which France agreed to abolish the double taxes, was signed in April, 1932, but has been pushed aside each time when it has been brought up for application.

Germain Martin, minister of the treasury, had promised on July 4 to make an effort to get the ratification approved, but the Doumergue government failed to make it a matter of urgent business.

Persons connected with the movement in behalf of the treaty regarded it as unlikely that the matter will be taken up promptly when Parliament reconvenes in October.

Official comment was withheld at the State Department last night on whether or what weapon the United States might wield against France, if that nation presses for collection of $100,000,000 in taxes due from American firms, according to the Associated Press.

Neither was there immediate comment on word that action had been

Michigan Storm Fatal to Seven

Property Damage in Detroit Area Is Unknown; Car Driver Electrocuted.

Detroit, July 6 (AP).—Wind and rainstorms sweeping across lower Michigan and the Detroit metropolitan area today caused the deaths of seven persons, and caused an unestimated amount of property damage.

In Detroit, Mrs. Fannie Clemons, 83, and Frank Peak, 8, were killed when they were struck by falling trees. Near Jackson, Louis Conners, 60, a farmer, was electrocuted when he attempted to disentangle his automobile from a high-tension wire blown down with a tree. At Waldron, in Hillsdale County, Robert A. Moine, 23, died similarly attempting to move a wire which had fallen outside a tavern.

Mrs. Lavina Frederick, 47, of Jackson, was drowned in Gillett's Lake, 4 miles east of that city, when waves swamped the boat from which she and her husband, D. H. Frederick, were fishing.

Henry Van Unen, 67, Holland, and his adopted son, Edward, 11, were drowned in Black Lake, near Holland, when their rowboat overturned.

Throngs Cheer Roosevelt On Puerto Rico Motor Tour

San Juan, Puerto Rico, July 6 (AP). President Roosevelt's long vacation journey brought him at sunset this evening to San Juan, capital of Puerto Rico.

For ten hours he had been traveling across the island from Mayaguez, but the familiar smile lighted his face as his automobile paused in front of the San Juan City Hall. Thousands of Puerto Ricans cheered tumultuously. Once they broke through police lines to swarm about the President's automobile, and many managed to shake his hand before police and Secret Service agents steered them away.

The ride from Mayaguez was long and at times precarious, but the President showed his lively interest in the countryside. For much of the distance rain fell and pavements through the mountains at many points were slippery.

Gov. Blonton Winship rode with the President. The hill folks came down to the highway, and hundreds gathered in the villages through which the American President passed.

All waved in joyous greeting, and the President's hand was up almost continuously acknowledging his welcome.

From the city hall here the President was escorted to the 400-year-old Governor's Mansion. There he shook hands and chatted briefly with 200 leading citizens and legislators.

President Roosevelt passed the night at the Governor's palace. Before retiring he yielded to the insistent demands of cheering crowds by appearing on a balcony.

Tomorrow the Chief Executive will board the cruiser Houston for the next leg of his vacation cruise, which will take him to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

NRA Revision Plans Studied By Officials

Recommendations May Be Ready on Return of Roosevelt.

agency under any sort of organization he desires. The act does not provide for the office of recovery administrator, that having been fixed by an Executive order.

Gen. Johnson, after his recent illness, has been taking a rest in New York with his close friend and for employer, Bernard M. Baruch. He denied reports yesterday that he was still ill. However he is greatly fatigued and has made three trips to Walter Reed Hospital this year. Many of his friends are urging him to take a long rest, though not with the idea of resigning.

It is certain that any new set-up which eventuates will be developed to checkmate critics who have charged NRA with fostering monopolies and to win the public support necessary to insure favorable legislation when Congress considers what is to follow the present recovery act which expires next June.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, already had initiated a speaking campaign to stir up sentiment against renewal of a clause in NIRA suspending antitrust laws.

Business Men Back Plan.

The three-man board plan was understood to have originated with business men. Should their program be adopted President Roosevelt, it was said, would be requested to name to the posts men of National reputation. Each of the three members would directly supervise some phase of NRA activity in which he is a specialist.

Much of the board's time, its champions suggested, would be devoted to policy-making. Cognizance would be taken of the lessons learned in the trial and error experimental stage of the recovery unit.

Advocates of the plan said direction of NRA is "too big a job for any one man."

As the board proposal came to light it became known for the first time that a recent conference of 80 prominent business leaders in Hot Springs, Va., voted to seek separation of the work of NRA into two general classifications, one to deal principally with code enforcement and administration and the other to handle code amendments and matters of policy.

The business leaders, all present or former members of the NRA Industrial Advisory Board, were said to have decided to use their influence to have NRA as such continued and to be opposed to transfer of part or all of its duties to the Federal Trade Commission.

Establishment of a five-man board to represent business before NRA was decided on at the Hot Springs gathering. The members of that group, yet to be appointed, would receive salaries from trade associations and would devote all of their time to the task.

Unified Management Hit.

Meanwhile, an editorial in the American Federationist, organ of the American Federation of Labor, edited by William Green, Federation president, complained NRA "unified" management had failed to provide machinery to maintain the right of workers to free organization.

"Code compliance machinery," the editorial commented, "has been inadequate, and workers find that management is better organized and unified than ever before, while there is no machinery that maintains their right to free organization.

"On the code authorities—the new governing bodies of industries which the Government has set up—only where they were strongly organized in trade unions were workers able to get representation with authority to know what was happening and with a voice in decisions. In other cases labor has nominal representation without access to all facts, able only to protest after decisions are reached."

Labor believes the fundamental ideas underlying NRA are sound, the editorial added, "and hopes that its second year will be marked by wiser administrative methods and policies that will make for real industrial democracy.

"As a guide to balanced development within industries and between industries, labor looks to the recovery administration for the data and the research necessary for planning that will provide jobs for the 10,000,000 still unemployed at incomes that will make possible a return to higher standards of living."

U. S. Army Captain Faces Dismissal

F. H. Jack, jr., Is Convicted of Embezzlement.

Leavenworth, Kans., July 6 (AP).—Capt. Francis H. Jack, jr., 47, U. S. Infantry, has been sentenced to dismissal from the Army by a general court-martial at Fort Leavenworth which convicted him of embezzling mess funds.

The verdict has been indorsed by corps area headquarters at Omaha and forwarded to Washington for review, Army authorities said today.

Capt. Jack was born in Illinois. He entered the Army as a private during the World War and rose from the ranks.

"Goat Gland" Doctor In Kansas Primary

Topeka, Kans., July 6 (AP).—The State contest board ruled by unanimous vote today that the name of Dr. John R. Brinkley, "goat gland" specialist, should appear on the August primary ballot as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Dr. Brinkley, twice unsuccessful as an independent candidate for the governorship, will oppose Gov. Alf M. Landon, who is seeking a second term.

Politics and People

By Elliott Thurston

Politicians will discover a knotty hot weather puzzle in the final results of the Literary Digest's special poll among bankers. They are the only ones who record a majority against "Roosevelt's policies." Of the 26,323 bankers who voted, 13,795 voted "no" on the question of whether they approved New Deal policy "on the whole," while 12,528 voted "yes." This is a majority of 52.41 per cent against.

However, the figures become far more striking when the bankers of the Solid South and the border States are counted out of the totals. Eliminating the 15 States of the Democratic South and the border, the result shows 11,483 bankers against and but 6,914 for the Roosevelt policies. This is not so far removed from a two-to-one opposition.

While the bankers of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas voted overwhelmingly for—the vote in Georgia, for instance, was nearly 7 to 1 for New Deal policies—the bankers beyond the Southlands were almost as overwhelmingly against. The vote of the New Yorkers, for example, was 1,036 against and only 491 for. Illinois bankers stood 1,021 against, 514 for. Massachusetts, in which Mr. Coolidge had faith, was 4 to 1 against. In fact, outside of Dixie and the border regions, California, with 471 for and 411 against; the District of Columbia, with 17 for to 15 against, and North Dakota, with 110 for to 102 against, were the only approving areas. Every other State returned a majority against the New Deal.

* * * *

The clergymen, business men, educators, lawyers, physicians and undergraduates of 17 colleges whose votes were likewise tabulated separately all gave majorities for the New Deal. While out of 1,772,163 votes tabulated in the entire poll, 1,083,753 were for, 688,411 against, or more than 3 to 2 in favor of the New Deal, the bankers beyond the Southlands were registering an even greater ratio against.

This presents no mean puzzle. Why should the bankers alone find the New Deal bad on the whole while their fellow citizens were finding it good. Is it because bankers are dumber or brighter than other groups? Or is it because the New Deal has cracked down harder on bankers than on other classes? Is it because they have been made scapegoats? Is it because the New Deal had such a carnival of exposing bankers?

In theory, at least, the bankers ought to know more about economics, about monetary matters, about budgets, than other classes. Perhaps they do not. But they should. They ought, in theory, to have a clearer insight into the meaning and consequences of Prof. Warren's commodity dollar, the gold manipulations, the silver purchasing, the Federal spending program, among other things, than clergymen or college boys, for instance. Maybe not. But it would seem so, offhand.

If they are just being resentful, or spiteful, or partisan, then the 13,795 of them who do not like the New Deal should learn to be magnanimous. Or do they need to read up on economics? Or what is the trouble anyway?

* * * *

Bankers are the backbone of the Nation—or is that farmers? At all odds, it is a sad commentary on something or other that alone of all the kinds of people that go to make up a country, the bankers should put a blot on this poll.

Possibly the politicians will be able to ferret out the reasons for these dissenting banker voices amid the chorus of acclaim for the New Deal. Two things can be said with certainty: First, that if the bankers think they have been called harsh names by the New Dealers they haven't heard anything yet. They were in bad enough before. They are in much more worse now.

And, secondly, it is clear that if it had to rely upon the votes of the bankers for re-election, the New Deal wouldn't stand a chance.

$100,000 Back Pay Is Ordered By NRA Board

Baltimore Firm May Lose Blue Eagle for Ignoring Code.

Precedent was established when the NRA compliance board yesterday ordered wage restitutions of approximately $100,000 by L. Greif & Sons, Inc., of Baltimore, one of the country's largest men's clothing manufacturers.

The board charged the Baltimore firm failed to pay full code wage scales in its 11 offices and plants in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia About 4,000 persons are employed.

A further hearing by the men's clothing industry code authority was ordered to decide whether the company should be exempted from making restitution. The board held that unless an exemption were granted, the firm's Blue Eagle would be withdrawn and the case would be referred to the NRA litigation division if the company refused to make restitution. The right of the concern to use NRA labels also would be rescinded.

Greif employes in the higher wage classifications, the board charged, were paid $35,785.94 less than the code required between November 27 last and February 17. The board reported exact figures for short-wage payments since February were unavailable, but probably would reach $100,000.

Meanwhile, more than a score of compliance board investigators were said to be delving into books of the concern in search of additional information.

New Deal Raids On Constitution Hit

American people. If the clutch of the deadening hand of bureaucracy could be pried off America's business and National life we would see tomorrow a new deal that would be a new deal."

Asserting the Democrats wrote the legislation "which has created within the last year the greatest juggernaut of bureaucracy any government has ever known," MacNider said the Administration is busy "encouraging and extending Government competition in private business, instituting Federal control of every known industrial activity and regimenting and disciplining every move of our daily lives."

MacNider declared "it is high time that leadership be given those who value their free citizenship and their hard-won heritage under the Constitution of the United States."

"The Tugwells, the Ezekiels, the Wallaces and the Ickes will scream 'But this is treason; the Constitution is out of date and any man who dares to criticize this benevolent Administration in times of such emergency is a traitor.' A traitor to what or to whom? Emergency? Do they mean to compare their little emergencies with the one that gave our Constitution birth?"

Mrs. Pat Rooney Dies; Widow of Comedian

Known herself on the variety stage for 35 years as Josie Granger, she once was premier dancer in the Humpty Dumpty show. Besides Pat and another son, four daughters survive.

Nation's Police To Confer Here In Crime War

Cummings States Plans for Conference as Drive Gathers Power.

With its law enforcement agencies being strengthened by additional man and machine power, the Federal Government today was laying plans for a National conference for the purpose of launching a gigantic campaign against crime.

Attorney General Cummings announced yesterday he planned to call the conference either in November or December. Representatives from every State and other law enforcement agencies will be invited, he said.

Plans for the conference follow publication in The Post yesterday of statements by both Cummings and Edgar Hoover, chief of the Justice Department's Investigating Bureau, that additional men and motor equipment were being procured to aid in the war on crime.

While the agenda has not been completed, the Attorney General said in an address before the National Press Club that the conference "will consider practically every aspect of crime and approach the problem of law enforcement in a way never before attempted."

Cummings informed the Press Club membership that the campaign had the full indorsement of President Roosevelt. The conference, he said, would take place in the new Department of Justice Building.

"We are engaged in a grim and serious business," he declared. "The solution of the problem is a matter of time and constant, unrelenting work." He requested full cooperation of newspaper men.

The Cabinet official said he felt justified in reporting great progress in the Federal campaign.

"The common gangster, the corrupt corporation, the crooked official and the conniving lawyer certainly can find comfort neither in the record nor the outlook," Cummings said.

"And the law-loving citizen can be assured that there has been a substantial measure of recovery in an important sector of the Administration's efforts to bring peace and plenty in the Nation—recovery from the ravages of lawlessness. That lawlessness has taken not only human life but its economic toll."

He declared the Federal offensive so far has shown that unscrupulous lawyers and dishonest public officials are among the most sinister elements.

"In some communities politics and corruption were so interwoven, gangsters and officials so interlinked, that the trails followed for criminals led also to men supposed to be holding public trusts. In some instances, police officials who gave aid and comfort to fugitive desperadoes were arrested and convicted.

"Along with those things was encountered silly, coddling antics of some minor officers, who, if nothing worse, lost their heads in the glare of the limelight. But for behavior of this kind, some of the most notorious gangsters would never have been at large after their first capture.

"I regret also to report that a segment of the public has exhibited a maudlin sympathy toward the most despicable of gangsters. Those who, at this hour, romanticize crime are in a very real sense aiders and abetters of the criminals."

The Attorney General said the unscrupulous lawyer was one of the chief reliances "of predatory criminals who would defy the law and laugh at its agents. To meet this situation the Justice Department is enlisting the assistance of bar associations throughout the country."

Final Digest Returns Back New Deal, 3-2

Popularity of Roosevelt Gains; Only Vermont Hits Policies.

New York, July 6.—Final returns on the Literary Digest's poll of public opinion on President Roosevelt's acts and policies, on the whole, show today that three out of every five persons approve.

Of the poll taken in 48 States, Vermont alone registered disapproval. This opinion was held by 53 per cent of those balloting.

The total number of votes cast was 1,772,163, divided between 1,083,752 for the general policies of the New Deal and 688,411 against them.

On a ratio basis, the magazine found that President Roosevelt's popularity had increased over the popular vote of 1932 by 3.83 per cent.

Compared to their balloting in 1932, 459,338 of the poll voters indicated they had changed their minds about the President since the election. An analysis of the switching showed an average gain for the President in the 48 States of 5.39 per cent.

The same analysis indicated that Mr. Roosevelt had increased net losses of support among voters in the poll in 20 States and net gains in the other 28 States. The larger losses were tallied in the Southern and agricultural sections. The larger gains were registered in New England, Eastern industrial and Pacific Coast States.

The greatest switch from Roosevelt was shown in South Carolina. California showed the greatest swing, over 14 per cent.

In six special polls conducted among bankers, the clergy, business men, educators, lawyers and physicians, only the bankers opposed the New Deal. The bankers voted 13,795 to 12,528 against the general acts and policies of the President.

In the other groups, the percentages in favor of the New Deal were: Clergy, 54 per cent; business men, 56 per cent; educators, 67 per cent; lawyers, 53 per cent, and physicians, 56 per cent.

U. S. Traders May Evacuate France

deliberately withheld on the treaty, so as to have a bargaining weapon in war debts revision and to obtain favorable treatment in a new trade agreement with the United States.

Any war debts bargain would have to receive Congressional approval and there is widespread opposition to the downward revision of any war debt agreements. No negotiations with France for a new trade agreement under the Administration's new tariff bargaining program have yet been initiated.

The United States has a weapon of retaliation in the new revenue act, which permits imposition of 80 per cent taxes upon the nationals of any nation which discriminates against American firms in taxation.

France's double taxation program was instituted in 1872, but has never been enforced, so that actually no American firms have as yet been forced to pay the excess taxes. Excluding taxes assessed which are not outlawed by the statute of limitations, it was estimated that American firms would be required to pay approximately $2,000,000 in back taxes, if forced to meet the French law's requirements.

After a series of diplomatic discussions, France and the United States signed a treaty in 1932 under which American firms would have been excluded from the double tax. The treaty was ratified by the United States Senate the same year, but does not become effective until ratified by both governments.

Aside from protests based on broad principles of equity and commercial policy, the United States faces a difficult task in obtaining the French government's approval of the treaty in the face of the French Parliament's failure to ratify.

Belgium and Italy have signed treaties with France under which their nations are exempt from the double taxation, however, and administration officials predict it may be possible for this country to register a valid protest because of the discrimination against Americans and the preferential treatment accorded Belgians and Italians.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Frances McCorkle, Annapolis, Md., and Mrs. Wendell H. Kline, Panama, and two sons, Lieut. Comdr. Leland Lovette, U. S. N., now en route to China, and Frank H. Lovette, New York City.

Control Board Bans Employes Playing Stocks

Commission to Pick Men for Leading Positions in Few Days.

By Robert C. Albright.

Bleaching its own linen before dousing Wall street's family wash in its first tub of Federal regulation, the new Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday issued a pronunciamento banning stock speculation by its own personnel.

It was the first official act of the commission since taking office Tuesday, and Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy promptly made it the last for this week by entraining for Massachusetts for the week-end.

With Ferdinand Pecora in New York, still meditating the prospect of early retirement from the board to resume a private law practice, three members of the commission remaining in Washington wrestled with routine personnel and housing problems.

The commission's move to prevent stock gambling by its own employes had no visible effect upon large numbers of job seekers, who continued to pour applications into the commission's temporary quarters.

A few important posts must be filled in the next few days. Benjamin Cohen, PWA lawyer and coauthor of the stock control act, is being mentioned for general counsel, while John Mothershed, Washington broker, has been talked of for secretary.

Determined to safeguard the commission from any "glass house" insinuations, the order promulgated yesterday placed an effective ban on stock speculation by employes.

Kennedy, the former market trader, made haste to explain that the order reflected no general policy that might be extended to employes of security exchanges or others.

At the same time, he declared the commission has no intention of preventing the sale and purchase of stocks by employes for bona fide investment purposes. But such buys as are made by employes must be made on an outright purchase basis, and subject to commission scrutiny.

The new rule read:

"To the end that this regulation shall be properly observed, it is ordered that

"(1) No employe shall carry any securities on margin, and

"(2) Every employe shall report every transaction in any security, whether exempted or otherwise, to the commission within 48 hours after the making of such transaction, exclusive of Sundays or holidays.

"Violation of this regulation shall be regarded as instant cause for dismissal."

Chairman Kennedy, who yesterday took a year's lease on Marwood, 125-acre estate, overlooking the Potomac between Seneca and Potomac, Md., plans to call a commission meeting Monday.

Conference Held.

Before leaving for Massachusetts, he was said to have conferred with Gov. George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Board. As the Reserve Board must determine margin requirements under the new law, it was assumed their conversation took this tack.

The commissioners, it is understood, are in no haste to throw the complicated machinery of Federal regulation into full operation until they have ample time for study and deliberation.

One prominent member pointed out that there has been no evidence of manipulation in the market for weeks. While he is not satisfied that this would continue, he concludes this is one reason the commission is under no compulsion to act hastily.

Early next week the commission will move into its new quarters in the old Interstate Commerce Commission building. The organization of a staff of around 20, many of them drafted from the Federal Trade Commission's security division, will get under way.

U. S. Recovery Hailed by Pope

Audience with Ryan Finds Pontiff Pleased with Bishop's Reports.

Vatican City, July 6 (U.P.).—Improved economic conditions in the United States was seen as a good sign for a return to world prosperity today by Pope Pius XI.

The Pope, in an audience with the Most Rev. James H. Ryan, rector of Catholic University, Washington, D. C., said conversations with several of his bishops in the United States indicated a strong upward trend economically.

"We are pleased," the Pontiff said, "for if the United States marches on, all the world marches on."

The audience lasted 40 minutes, taking place in the Pope's private library. The Pontiff seemed pleased also with a report on the work in the Catholic University.

The rector introduced Senator and Mrs. Warren Barbour, of New Jersey; Mr. and Mrs. John Carrere, New York, and Mrs. D. C. Stepleton and her daughter, Stellita, 18, of Washington, to the Pope.

On learning Stellita is making her debut in the fall, the Pope said, "I wish you a happy life, and extend a special blessing." He also handed her a gold medal.

Two Murderers Hanged In California Prisons

Sacramento, Calif., July 6 (AP).—Two convicted slayers were hanged in California prisons today. John Mick, 22, colored, died on the gallows at San Quentin and Daniel Harris, 38, was executed in Folsom.

Mick was sentenced for slaying a Kern County service station operator in a holdup. Harris was convicted of slaying Harry L. Whitted, Crockett jeweler, in 1933.

U. S. Spending Attacked

Senator Vandenberg Sounds Warning Note in Magazine Article; Controlled Inflation Also Draws Fire.

There is "no such thing as controlled inflation," Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, declared in a magazine article yesterday in which he assails the "present epidemic of lax borrowing and money-making."

In an interview for the Magazine of Wall Street, the Michigan Senator, erstwhile leader of the Republican Young Guard in the Senate, warns that the public must call a halt if the Government is to be kept from ruinous demoralization of the currency.

After citing the unprecedented Government spending, the creation of "a fictitious profit" by devaluation of the dollar, and the widespread indifference to "monetary abstractions," he said:

Inflation Rapped.

"In other words, we have reached a point where it will be easy to dally with out-and-out inflation of the currency. Indeed, it may not be a matter of choice but of necessity. At the same time that we are spending as no other nation has spent in all history we are wobbling mightily in our conceptions of the nature of money.

"We have a callous indifference to treasury deficits and a growing belief that we can manufacture money even more expeditiously than we can make debts.

"Inflation of a nation's currency always begins with a chronic budgetary deficit. Sometimes the deficit is inevitable, sometimes it is recklessly accumulated.

"Once deficits become chronic and cumulative there is no way to pay governmental bills except by borrowing, by onerous taxation, or by printing money, either directly or through the central banks.

"So far we have had no difficulty in borrowing stupendous sums of money at low interest rates. But there will come a time when lenders will become fearful and reluctant and the price of borrowing prohibitive. Then we will have to turn to heavy taxation. Our people, I think, after these years of sacrifice, deprivation and unemployment for millions, will not endure such taxation. Then the money printing presses will come into their own. The only escape from the horrors of inflation is an early cessation of our huge spending. That is possible and probable if prosperity soon returns, but not likely if business activity continues at about 60 per cent of normal and 10,000,000 of idle workers must be cared for out of the public purse.

"There is no such thing as rigidly controlled fiat money. The only Governmental control is merely a limitation imposed by Congress, which always has the power to change its mind and its limitation; and once the inflation avalanche starts, it will be compelled to raise the limit just as certainly as water runs down hill. Currency inflation is a sort of monetary perpetual motion, which generates its own speed of growth.

"I asked one of my colleagues, on the floor of the Senate awhile ago, what would happen if we could put into actual circulation even the $13,000,000,000 of existing currency, as against about $6,000,000000 in use. He promptly replied, although an inflationist, that the dollar would fall to about 10 cents in worth. And there are observers in Washington who predict that that is where the dollar will land before we get through this present epidemic of lax borrowing and lax money-making.

Result of Process.

"The result of such a process of putting 'lots of money' into the hands of the people would be to take their money-wealth away from them—all their cash surpluses, all their working capital, all their savings—except as they were in substantial property, whether in the form of title deeds, possession or equity stocks. And the real value even of these might be annihilated or turned over to smart and shifty speculators in a chaotic final crash. All business confidence would be completely shattered as money progresively declined to zero. In my judgment, the one calamity which the United States could not survive would be uncontrolled inflation through the printing press.

"I am confident that the American people will not permit the creation of a condition which will leave no alternative but fiat inflation, and its train of disasters. I am sure that if they are not already informed of the terrors of uncontrolled inflation, which always fall most heavily upon the middle class of professional people, merchants, and the great army of salary and wage earners, they will learn the truth in time to prevent a catastrophe. Nobody profits from a full cycle of inflation except shrewd and experienced speculators who have the means, the courage, the opportunities, and the foresight to turn money into things of enduring value and liquidate real debts with unreal money."

Party Chairman to Talk Today at Jackson, Mich., Fete.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Henry P. Fletcher, aggressive new National chairman of the Republican party, headed for the Middle West today to organize the party's younger element to fight for election of Congressmen with "forward-looking viewpoints."

Reiterating his assertion that the principal issues will be against "monopolistic features" of the NRA and bureaucracy, the former diplomat said:

"The Republican party must enlist the younger men who can and will fight for election of Congressmen who have viewpoints representing their interests."

He discussed the issues dispassionately as he concluded conferences with party leaders after an overnight stop here.

After addressing the Jackson, Mich., celebration of the founding of the party tomorrow, he will return to Chicago to start organization for the campaign.

His first task will be organizing the younger men. Conferences on July 10 and 11 will be devoted to this purpose.

John Hamilton, of Kansas, general counsel to the National committee and the man Fletcher defeated for the chairmanship, will participate as head of the subcommittee to carry on this particular part of the campaign.

The chairman plans to spend a couple of days "looking over the Western field" and conferring with leaders in Michigan and Illinois.

Describing Senator Borah's opening speech in his individual campaign against what he considers the monopolistic and bureaucratic tendencies of recent recovery laws as "excellent," Fletcher said:

"The monopolistic and other features of the NRA referred to by Senator Borah will undoubtedly receive fullest attention in the course of the campaign. I am delighted that Borah has decided to discuss them.

"Failure of the AAA to help the farmer will be discussed generally. The slightly increased agricultural prices the farmer receives do not affect the prices he has to pay for the things he needs."

Jobless Texan Kills Family of 3 and Self

Wife and Two Children Shot to Death.

Benjamin, Tex., July 6 (AP).—Four members of the Hollis McGuire family died today of gunshot wounds. Mrs. Odessa McGuire and her two children, aged 10 and 2, were found shot in their home in the Vera community. The husband, Hollis McGuire, 32, died of a self-inflicted bullet wound shortly afterward at Seymour.

McGuire had been in ill health and was unemployed. Investigators said he apparently had killed his family.

McGuire drove to Seymour and ended his life while seated in a car in front of the home of a brother.

U.S. Questions Reich on Plan To Pay Loans

Dodd Sees Von Neurath As Germany Installs Trade Dictator.

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

Berlin, July 6.—The Reich's critical financial condition, almost forgotten in the welter of events in the past week, was brought sharply to the fore again today by United States Ambassador William E. Dodd.

He called on Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath. Reliable reports indicated he asked information on Germany's arrangements to pay the interest on the Dawes and Young plan loan bonds during the six months' moratorium on foreign debts now in effect.

Ambassador Dodd told Von Neurath if Germany discriminated against American bondholders, the effect on public opinion in the United States would be "very severe," it was understood.

England and Germany, in London earlier in the week, signed an agreement whereby the Reich agreed to pay British bondholders on these Young and Dawes plan loans during the moratorium. Britain had threatened to seize German cash and make the payments.

The Dodd call emphasized that the third Reich was facing a crisis in her foreign relations as well as domestic, due to disturbed economic conditions, growing swiftly worse.

To combat this danger, the cabinet approved a law elevating Kurt Schmitt, minister of economy, to practical trade dictatorship. He will be director of commerce in future, with almost limitless power over trade, industry and business. Schmitt is known as a conservative.

Hitler feels that only by unified control can Germany's unfavorable trade balance be successfully attacked, imports and exports properly adjusted to alleviate the drain on the mark, and the reemployment campaign assured of success. One man also can better see that industrial raw materials are properly distributed to processing units.

Evidences of his unification policy have been seen in Schmitt's industrial regimentation program, the appointment of three supervisory commissars of commerce and industry, and the departure of a delegation to South America to investigate the possibilities for developing new opportunities for barter.

Germany in the last six months has been in a precarious economic situation which the government's sweeping measures have done little or nothing to alleviate, and which were aggravated recently by cutting imports to the bone to save the Reichsbank's dwindling stock of foreign exchange.

Undoubtedly the big question mark in Germany's immediate future is far more economic than political. The fact that in their efforts to push their reemployment program the Nazi government had to depress wage levels is a source of ever-present danger.

Retail trade is going through a bad slump. Further, harvests will probably be considerably below normal, due to pronounced droughts all spring, though not as disastrous as early reports indicated. There is no visible ground for assuming anything approaching a food shortage faces Germany.

General Strike Threatened in San Francisco

Meeting Called to Decide on Walkout as Riot Protest Move.

which precipitated the clashes and the calling out of 2,000 guardsmen yesterday—continued today with the bristling machines of war commanding peace.

On a 3-mile front along the Embarcadero, the State-owned thoroughfare skirting the dock area, machine guns poked their noses into the street at intervals of about a block and bayonets glittered in almost a solid line all the way. Atop two piers where the fighting was thickest yesterday other machine gun crews commanded the situation.

A possibility the strike might spread sympathetically among ports of the Atlantic Coast appeared in the statement of Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, who said in New York:

"We can not be expected to keep our men at work on the Atlantic Coast for employers who are calling out troops to shoot down men who simply want a decent system of hiring."

Plea to Roosevelt.

In Washington after the San Francisco joint strike committee sent a telegram to President Roosevelt asking him to intervene in the situation here, Secretary of Labor Perkins examined reports from the Labor Disputes Board here, but her aids said she was planning no new action.

About 1,500 guardsmen were in position on the waterfront early today, and Maj. Gen. David P. Barrows, in charge of the local operations, announced two more companies from Sonoma County, north of the bay, would be moved in immediately.

Only scattered handfuls of strikers appeared near the scene, and they kept strictly beyond the western boundary of the Embarcadero, the tentative deadline set by the guard with warnings that persons venturing beyond it without sufficient reasons would risk serious injury.

Tribute to Slain Workers.

The chief outward activity of the strikers was their tribute to the two men shot to death in the fighting which saw 32 others felled by bullets and scores more gassed and beaten.

On the sidewalk where the men died—in front of the International Longshoremen's Association Hall, a block from the frowning machine guns—strikers outlined with chalk the spot and laid an American flag and bouquets of roses upon it.

Inscribed on the pavement in chalk was the phrase "Two men killed here—murdered by police."

A guard of strikers stood watch over the spot.

Charge "Reign of Terror."

The appeal of the joint strike committee asserted the San Francisco Industrial Association and the police had "started a reign of terror on the water front by shooting, gassing and bombing the workers, who, as American citizens and union men are trying to protect their jobs."

Under the Guardsmen's guns, water-front traffic moved with increasing speed. Trucks rolled from piers to warehouses, and the State-owned Belt Line Railroad, which operates freight trains to and from the docks, was working at capacity. Construction on the $75,000,000 bay bridge between San Francisco and Oakland was resumed, after having been discontinued yesterday during the fighting.

In Oakland, Clayton Miner, 27, a steamship company electrician, was shot, perhaps fatally, when attacked by four men. In San Pedro a Belt Line switch engine and one car were derailed and a strike picket was shot in the arm by a man who fled. Harry F. Coolen, 31, of Wilmington, was held for allegedly having thrown a switch that derailed the engine and car.

Cargo working continued on a small scale in Seattle and Portland, and several vessels reached Tacoma for loading with shipments to Alaska.

Bomb Is Reported In Dollfuss Office

Two Others Exploded in Austria During Day.

Vienna, July 6 (AP).—A report that a bomb had been discovered in the federal chancellery increased uneasiness over the prospects of a troublesome week-end today.

Two bombs exploded in the country during the day—one at the headquarters of the government party, the Fatherland Front, at Knittelfeld, Styria, and the other at Gratcorn, Styria, where an electric transformer was destroyed.

Some doubt was cast upon the report that an infernal machine was found in Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' office by the fact that the place is heavily guarded.

Permits Denied 60 Rectifiers; Demand Filled

FACA Places Clamps on Further Expansion of Industry.

Declaring that the capacity of rectifiers who have received Federal permits now far exceed market demand, the Federal Alcohol Control Administration yesterday announced it was clamping down on further expansion of this phase of the liquor industry.

About 60 applications for blanket rectified distilling permits will be denied as result of this decision, FACA stated. To grant them, it was explained, would be to allow production of rectified spirits which could not be absorbed. However, FACA announced that disappointed applicants might file new requests for permits to produce specified products of specified capacity, indicating the particular types and quantities which it is proposed to manufacture.

It is the purpose of FACA to hold down production generally to market needs, but to permit leeway to increase production in any particular types for which there seems to be additional demand.

On April 13, FACA announced that no applications for permits to engage in rectifying received after May 1 would be acted upon until the Administration had opportunity to determine whether there was a probable market demand for the proposed products.

Prior to May 1, a large number of defective applications had been received and FACA allowed applicants until July 1 to correct these defects. Forty of those applications had not been corrected satisfactorily on July 1. In addition 15 or more applications were filed after the May 1 deadline, all of which are now being rejected.

Farley Hits Postal Surplus Prediction

Mail Chief Optimistic, but Is Against Prophecy.

Postmaster General Farley hopes that figures for the fiscal year just ended will show progress toward a self-sustaining postal service, but he doesn't want any advance predictions of surpluses, the Associated Press reported yesterday.

A few hours after Comptroller William L. Slattery had forecast a surplus for the year of $5,850,000, figuring 1 per cent of an estimated $585,000,000 worth of business, Farley issued a formal statement, saying accurate figures could not be assembled until after July 20, and that he would not comment on the year's record before they are available.

New Rail Union Merges 15 Company Societies

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—A new National railroad union, the Brotherhood of Railroad Shopcrafts of America, took a bow on the labor stage today.

Delegates from company unions of 15 lines chose this name for an organization which merges the individual shop societies. It was formed because recent amendments to the railway labor act, providing for a National board of 36 members to handle labor negotiations, frown on company unions.

Prize Setter Is Given Blood Transfusion in Sharp Contrast.

Gayety and tragedy stalked Washington's dog world in sharp contrast yesterday—much as they do the human scene.

At the suburban home of Rudolf Schramm, orchestra leader, on Cherrydale avenue, Lyon Village, Va., a famous German police puppy celebrated his second birthday with a party fit for the champion he some day may be.

Health and Sickness.

While Schramm's dog, Wolf, wagged his tail and licked the hands of 27 neighborhood children who brought him presents, ranging from rubber bones and rubber mice that squeak realistically enough to fool even a rat terrier, Dil Kusha ran a high fever, and turned her soft brown eyes on her master and boon companion, M. W. Meier, world traveler and free-lance writer.

Veterinarians gave Dil Kusha o' Shagstone a blood transfusion yesterday, and she rallied and wagged her great, bushy tail bravely.

She has traveled half around the world with Meier since he bought her in Oakland, Calif., more than seven years ago. Twice she rescued Meier from drowning. Once a backtrack tidal wave from the Japanese current swamped and upset his small yawl off the coast of Alaska. Dil Kusha dragged Meier, partially stunned, to the temporary safety of the capsized boat. Later, when Meier fell from a dock on Puget Sound, Dil Kusha swam with him to shore.

Missed Kennel Club Show.

Dil Kusha was unable to compete in the National Capital Kennel Club Show here last April because she was to become a mother. When the stork came, it left a single puppy, and Dil Kusha nursed four other thoroughbreds for an institute for the blind in New Jersey as she suckled her own infant.

When Meier went on a tour with a circus as its publicity agent, Dil Kusha went along. She liked the lion cubs, and played with them. But that was natural, for her own mother had nursed her along with two lion cubs in a California circus.

Once, in Indiana, a copperhead sank its fangs into Dil Kusha's forepaw, and Meier opened the wound with his own knife, and sucked the poison with his own lips.

"Good dog," said Meier sadly yesterday, as he stroked Dil Kusha's head. "Good, good dog."

Out on Cherrydale avenue Wolf romped with the children, then ate many saucers of ice cream.

Schall Calls Election Day Bargain for Voter

Senator Schall (Republican), Minnesota, said last night that election day would be "bargain day" for the voter, "to trade his consitutional liberties for the questionable security of the New Deal," according to the Associated Press.

Referring to government regulations in Europe he said, "Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini in rendering these services call their governments dictatorships; in America we call it emergency."

Moscow, July 6 (AP).—The eleventh anniversary of the adoption of a constitution for the U. S. S. R. was celebrated today throughout Russia.

5 "Pirates" Steal $200,000 Gems; Ships, Plane Join Hunt

Magnolia, Mass., July 6 (U.P.). — Five brazen bandits, who from their dress looked more like a group of resort musicians, held up a fashionable branch jewelry shop in this exclusive North Shore watering place today and escaped with jewelry valued at $200,000.

Wearing smart sport coats, white trousers, and sport shoes, the heavily armed quintet covered three employes and two wealthy customers in the vacation store of Hodgson-Kennard & Co., Inc., of Boston. With a taste befitting gem connoisseurs, they calmly selected the pieces that interested them. The getaway was made in two automobiles.

Manager Charles A. Orcutt and his two clerks, who since the late forenoon robbery have been attempting to draft a list of the missing jewelry, said tonight that it included:

Every ring in the store—about 130 in all—including diamonds, rubies, emeralds, and sapphires; as well as bracelets, gold necklaces, brooches, pendants, bar pins, and watches with stone settings.

"They cleaned us out of our stone jewelry," said Orcutt. "They left all the unset gold and silver. They knew their jewelry."

Search for the bandits was in progress tonight by land, sea, and air—for the departure of what were described as "two mysterious yachts" from nearby Gloucester near the time of the robbery gave rise to a theory that the thieves may have been "land pirates" who used both automobiles and boats. Coast Guard patrol boats and a Coast Guard seaplane sought the reputedly strange craft.

Patronage Row Only Dormant, Byrns Reveals

Democrats Still Irked by Lack of Jobs, Party Survey Discloses.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, disclosed yesterday that several House Democrats still are dissatisfied with the way Federal jobs are distributed.

The House leader revealed this in commenting on returns to the Democratic Congressional campaign committee's recent questionnaire. The committee asked Democratic members a lot of questions, among them whether they were satisfied with patronage, and, if not, why not.

"There has been some criticism of the way patronage is being handled," Byrns said. "In fact, the only objections we've got so far have been on that."

"What's the trouble?" Byrns was asked.

"Why, Democrats are just not getting the Federal jobs," he replied.

Patronage has bothered House Democrats and leaders since early last session. The first session after President Roosevelt took office, few jobs were passed out. But Democrats believed the jobs would come along later.

Few had developed, however, when the last session convened. Those dissatisfied forced a party caucus, which Postmaster General Farley addressed. That held things in check.

Just before the session ended, however, renewed objections were heard. So the Congressional committee took it up with members. Byrns said the questionnaire was sent only to about 100 House Democrats who had not been consulted personally. The leader said he was pleased by answers to the question whether President Roosevelt's popularity was increasing or decreasing.

"They all phrase it a little different," Byrns said, "but the sum and substance is that if Roosevelt were running this fall he would get a bigger majority than two years ago."

Papen on Death List, Army Saved Him, Vienna Hears

Vienna, Austria, July 6 (U.P.).—Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany, was slated to have been murdered on "bloody Saturday" in Berlin, but was saved by the Reichswehr at the last moment, the newspaper Neuigkeits Weltblatt said today.

The newspaper said a murder squad was already on the way to Von Papen's quarters in Berlin last Saturday, when a company with two machine guns was rushed to the Von Papen residence by the German army.

They set up the machine guns before his home, and halted the execution squad.

It was intimated Von Papen was listed along with Gen. Kurt von Schleicher and his wife, and other monarchistic conservatives to be put to death by the Nazis.

dent's insistence, and may again ask permission to quit the Nazi ministry.

Failing to gain satisfaction in any quarter, he determined again to proceed to Neudeck and lay the facts before the aged president. What upheaval may occur from such a talk can only be conjectured, but it is known that Von Hindenburg has high admiration and affection for the vice chancellor and may go far to protect him.

Von Paper's face clearly shows the strain to which he has been subjected since his bold speech at Marburg June 17, openly criticizinig the Nazi administration. Yet he appears now willing again to risk everything on a final plea to Von Hindenburg, on whom he counts for understanding and support.

Gen. Kurt von Schleicher and his wife, killed by Nazis, were buried quietly shortly before noon in a cemetery at Lichterfelde. After the original funeral plans had been canceled two days ago the household answered all questions, "We are not permitted to say anything."

Nazis Alert, Fear Renewal Of Revolution

Troop commander, and other victims of Hitler's firing squads were considering a new attempt to overthrow the present government.

Storm Troopers in civilian clothes were said to have met in Berlin secretly today and to have shouted "Revenge!"

This and other reported developments caused the guard in Berlin to be strengthened.

The Nazi press department said that the list of those executed has been withheld to prevent excitement among their friends.

A full communique from Hitler, telling all about the mutiny, will be forthcoming within a few days, the press department reported.

Victor Lutze, who succeeded Roehm as head of the Storm Troopers, today gave the first official confirmation that the force of 2,000,000 will be reduced after the July vacation.

Reduction Intimated.

Reorganization, he wrote in Der Angriff, Propaganda Minister Goebbels' newspaper, might involve a reduction in number.

Most persons in close touch with the situation believe that less than 20 per cent of the present number will be retained.

Lutze expressed the view that the former leaders had opened the ranks to Communists and other anti-Nazis and declared that hereafter only true Nazis can belong to the organization.

Assurances that the old enmity between the Storm Troopers and the Stahlhelm (veterans' organization) was ended was given by Franz Seldte, cabinet minister and head of the Stahlhelm.

Long Conference Held.

Seldte told leaders of the organization that he had a long conference with Lutze and that fraternal cooperation will prevail hereafter.

Less than two weeks ago, Hitler turned down a Storm Troop demand—from some of the men who since have been executed—that the Stahlhelm be dissolved.

Throughout Silesia, which was particularly disturbed by the killing of the powerful Heines, intense efforts were made to impress the public that the "second revolution" is over and that there is nothing more to be expected except loyal Nazi cooperation.

Commander Herzog, who succeeded Heines and Storm Troop chief for Silesia, indicated that his forces will not be reduced and that students who were serving compulsory terms, must continue in the ranks.

In this connection, however, it was recalled that until Lutze's statement today the policy had been to soft-pedal reduction of the uniformed party force.

Reports that Michael Cardinal Faulhaber at Munich was molested or placed under guard were denied, and it was stated that an unofficial communique to that effect will be forthcoming.

Plea Made to Single Men.

One of the economic steps of a rather drastic nature so far as individuals are concerned was an appeal from Nazi leaders for all unmarried persons under 25 to give up their jobs in favor of married men.

The young men were appealed to offer themselves for farm labor and the young women to give up factory or office to prepare for "later duties as German housewvies and mothers."

Among its other troubles Germany found itself in a "newspaper war" with Switzerland, as a result of the banning of Swiss papers because of their accounts of Hitler's "liquidation" of the opposing Storm Troop leaders.

The foreign office was advised that three German papers—Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter, Goebbel's Angriff and the Boersen Zeitung—had been barred for two weeks.

If the German ban remains on after that date the retaliation will continue, it was indicated, although this was said to be the first time Switzerland ever placed an embargo against a foreign newspaper.

Plans of French Minister Andre Francois-Poncet to carry any further his protest against the intimation that France was the "foreign power" involved in the Roehm plot appeared to have been abandoned in return for the generous publication in the German press of his vigorous denial.

2 Prominent Names Put on Munich Death List

Munich, Germany, July 6 (AP).—The names of two prominent figures of pre-Nazi Germany were added today to the list of those known to have been killed in Munich last Saturday as the total of known dead reached 21.

Former Lieut. Richard Scheringer, well-known personality in early days of the Nazi movement, who later turned Communist, was found dead near Dachau Concentration Camp, along with several other victims.

Karl Stuetzel, former minister of interior of Bavaria, who was turned out of office by the Nazis, was another of those slain.

Scheringer was one of the three Reichswehr officers convicted of attempted treason in the famous trial at Liepzig in 1930, at which Adolf Hitler testified that "heads will fall."

(The three young officers were sentenced to short prison terms, a verdict which Hitler, who had testified as to the aims of his movement, denounced at the time.)

The total of 21 dead compared with seven officially announced and included three minor followers of Ernst Roehm, executed Storm Troop commander.

Alexander Glaser, a lawyer, was shot down in the presence of his wife, it was learned, as he turned to reach for a hat.

William Schmid, music critic for the newspaper Neuster Nachrichten, was killed "accidentally," the paper recorded.

Excursionists told of seeing bodies on a moorland near Dachau Concentration Camp Sunday morning.

One of the victims whose death was confirmed only today was Hans von Seasser, aristocratic leader of the Munich state police.

Three members of the family of Baron Erwein von Aretin, former head of the now dissolved Royalist "Home and King" Society, were among those arrested.

quaint practice of placing the seated body in such a position that the legs are elevated with the heels reposing on the desk. He bared his horror at witnessing one day the spectacle of six men seated with 12 feet waggling on one desk.

Reading newspapers in the offices is another objectionable habit, he said. Having invited newspapermen to the hastily-called lecture, however, he did not press this point much.

Debt to Taxpayers Cited.

"I don't think there are any magazine correspondents in the audience, though, so I say that the reading of magazines on office time is a most reprehensible practice."

His 3,000 or so hearers roared.

Becoming serious again, by his own admission, Secretary Ickes said the Interior and PWA forces owe it to the taxpayers to put in a full day's work—not every week but every day. As a little persuader, he threw out the information that there are 66,000 names on application for employment in his precincts.

He frankly disclosed that the building has been "patrolled" the last few days by "observers" and that their reports had been quite distressing. Many of the offices they visited were wholly bereft of executives. Stenographers were usually found on the job.

Nose powdering, manicuring, etc., should not begin at 3 o'clock or 3:15 but after 3:30, when the work day ends, advised the chief.

"You owe it not only to give full return for value received to the Government and to the taxpayers," he said, "but to feel your responsibility not to set a bad example."

Posies and Brickbats.

Posies were tossed out along with the brickbats. Reminding that the first full year of PWA is just coming to an end, Ickes said it had been a very successful year and that "man for man and woman for woman, I'll stack up this staff against any emergency organization in Washington."

"I want to keep this organization intact as long as possible," he told the assemblage. "I hope the next Congress and succeeding ones will make appropriations which will continue a public works program indefinitely."

Then, in his droll brand of humor: "Though Lord knows how long I'll be administrator of public works."

Quick Delivery Of Plane Made

Taking advantage of a holiday and staying away from his desk one day, Lieut. H. B. Temple, U. S. N., attached to the Bureau of Aeronautics here, completed a round trip to San Diego, Calif., to make delivery on a new airplane.

The speedy trip was made in routine fashion with no special preparations. Temple flew from the Anacostia station at 4:45 a. m. July 3. He proceeded to Midland, Tex., by way of Fairfield, Ohio; Bellville, Ill., and Fort Sill, Okla. Arriving at the Texas town at 4:35 p. m., he spent the night.

Leaving Midland the following morning he flew to San Diego, where he turned the ship over to the officer of the day at the San Diego station. Then he boarded a commercial liner, flew the rest of the day and that night and was back at his desk in Washington the morning of July 5.

The delivery of the plane by flight is in accordance with Navy plans to give fliers training on cross-country flying and to save on shipping charges. The ship was an experimental scout built by Grumann. Temple was accompanied by P. H. Eagle, Navy bandmaster, who was on his way to join the U. S. S. Wright on the West Coast.

The President, in a message to the House, announced his willingness to return 5 per cent, but declared the situation justified no further restoration.

McCarran Pushed Demand.

But so strong was Federal worker sentiment in the Senate, coupled with demand for restortation of veterans' benefits, that when Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, offered an amendment for rebating the entire 15 per cent Government cut, the Senate speedily accepted.

House conferees were inclined to stand by the President, however, and when the conference agreement finally was worked out, it called for gradual restoration of only 10 per cent of the total.

The President's action yesterday assures that this agreement will hold force at least until the President issues his next pay proclamation next January, or Congress acts.

President to Get Ocean Mail Data

Contract Changes Await His Return to Capital.

General revision of the Government-subsidized ocean mail contracts will be one of the first tasks facing President Roosevelt when he returns next month from his Pacific voyage, the Associated Press reports.

Postoffice Department investigators who since last October have been studying each of the 45 contracts, have nearly completed their work and in a week or ten days will assemble their findings.

Postmaster General Farley will go over the complete record and the results then will be transmitted to Mr. Roosevelt.

The Right Angle on Clean Rugs

THERE'S still another angle to rug cleaning which is an important one, if appearances are to be considered.

After a rug has been cleaned it should lay absolutely flat on your floor. But remember this—it won't unless it has been glue-sized by the cleaner.

There are so many angles of this sort which the careful housewife should bear in mind about her rugs that they're almost confusing.

You can forget them all, however, and rest assured that your rugs will come back to you looking like new—if you send them to REGAL RUG CLEANERS, for REGAL methods combine the highest skill with the most modern equipment. And REGAL prices are reasonable.

Upholstered furniture is also our specialty. We are fully equipped to handle such work.

Britain, France Plan Technical Defense Pact

Viewed As Limit London Will Go in Answer to Paris Safety Plea.

London, July 6 (AP).—Military collaboration of a technical nature in lieu of a Franco-British defense alliance emerged today as a possible answer to French attempts to gain security guarantees.

It was reported that France and Great Britain already have exexchanged private views on the matter.

French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou will raise the point officially next week on his visit to join in preliminary naval conference conversations, and expects a formal affirmative reply.

Barthou also will ask the British to State formally whether they still stand by all that the Locarno pact implies, and the British will make an affirmative reply.

France has not asked and does not expect, it was learned, any sort of political defensive alliance with Great Britain, not because the French do not want it, because months ago Britain plainly informed Paris that the Locarno pact was the only one to which she wished to adhere.

Acting Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin told the House of Commons today that Great Britain has no intention of making such a defensive alliance.

He had been questioned by members of Parliament concerning the significance of the visit here of Gen. Maxime Weygand, head of the French army, and a tour of French battlefields by a party of British army officers.

But an informant close to inner British circles said that France had been openly seeking Britain's technical military collaboration, and indicated that she may get it. It would become operative, it was indicated, in the event Belgium is invaded.

Campbell Held As Bogus Agent

Herbert M. Campbell, who was acquitted of the murder of Mary Baker, Navy Department clerk, was the first man arrested in the campaign against unlicensed insurance agents, representing bogus companies in the District of Columbia.

Campbell was taken into custody yesterday by Policeman John O. Patton, who has been assigned to the office of Superintendent of Insurance John A. Marshall, to assist in the clean-up of bogus agents. [illegible] was released in $300 bond for appearance in Police Court.

Violation of the District insurance law was charged in a formal information filed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal.

While he was in the real estate business four years ago in Arlington County, Va., Campbell turned over to authorities a pistol, which ballistics experts said, had fired the fatal bullets into Mary Baker. At the time, Campbell attempted to incriminate Hermann H. Barrere, who was subsequently charged with the crime, but was later exonerated.

After Barrer's arrest in Canada, Campbell was taken into custody. A sensational trial followed and Campbell was acquitted. Campbell now lives at 3500 Fourteenth street northwest.

Liquor Company Admits Violations

Claims Acts Not Wilful; Board Studies Case.

The Hopfheiser Co., a wholesale liquor establishment at 806 Twelfth street northwest, yesterday admitted to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board that it violated five provisions of the liquor regulations, but contended the infractions were not wilful.

The board, which is considering revocation of the company's license, took the case under advisement. An opinion is not expected until next week.

The principal charges were that the company moved into new quarters without having obtained permission from the board and failed to stamp properly a small number of liquor bottles.

Rites in Virginia For River Victim

Body of Mrs. Smith to Be Taken to Old Home.

The body of Mrs. Lottie Smith, 23, of 1432 N street northwest, who was drowned Thursday while swimming in South River, at Woodland Beach, 8 miles below Annapolis, Md., will be taken today to Gilbert, Va., her former home, for funeral and interment.

Mrs. Smith, on an outing, was not a good swimmer, it is said, and became exhausted and sank while trying to reach a float. Her body was recovered about 20 minutes later.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, Allen Smith, an automobile salesman, and a daughter, 4.

Harrisonburg Air Raid Fails In Maneuvers

Regiment From District Repulses Imaginary Attack.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 6 (Spl.).—The 260th Coast Artillery, District of Columbia National Guard, under the command of Maj. Walter W. Burns, repulsed tonight an imaginary air attack upon Harrisonburg as the pivotal city of the Shenandoah Valley in advance guard maneuvers. The 260th represented the "imaginary" Twenty-ninth Division of National Guard units of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and District of Columbia, which is opposing the march of an invading army landing on Virginia soil at Norfolk.

The regiment, accompanied by U. S. Coast Artillery officers to watch the maneuvers, arrived unexpectedly in Harrisonburg today and encamped in the spacious high school grounds. The unit was composed of 260 men and 25 officers and was carried by 32 trucks. Thousands watched the drills, parades and maneuvers.

The spectacular scene came when a number of balloons were released. As these took to the air, they were supposed to represent "enemy airplanes" seeking to destroy Harrisonburg. Two 800,000,000 candlelight searchlights flashed in all directions through the skies, "spotted the enemy airships." The aircraft guns, placed on Grace street, were then trained on the "planes" and brought them down. Practically all of the released balloons were "tracked" in the air as they spun heavenward.

Republicans Gain Votes In Roosevelt's Bailiwick

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 6 (AP).—The Republican margin of victory in yesterday's special election in President Roosevelt's home Senatorial district was larger than that of 1932 when Mr. Roosevelt was elected to the Presidency.

Complete but unofficial figures compiled today gave the Republican nominee, millionaire Frederick H. Bontecou, a majority of 11,047 over George Glenn Newell, Democratic nominee.

Her companions said Mrs. Roosevelt planned to inspect Berea College tomorrow, and that the length of her stay here was uncertain.

Alec Francis, Veteran Movie Actor, Is Dead

Hollywood, July 6 (AP).—Alec Francis, old-time character actor of the motion pictures, died late today at Hollywood Hospital.

Francis, whose death came unexpectedly after an illness of only three days, was 65 years old. He had been in motion pictures since 1910. Born in England, he practiced law before going on the stage.

Robber-Preacher Studies Law, Then Eases Conscience

Kansas City, July 6 (AP).—Ulysses Samuel Taylor, evangelist, who served a term in Missouri's State prison, bolstered his knowledge of the law before he walked into a grocery store here last night and asked the proprietor for forgiveness for robbing his store in 1918.

Taylor told Max Cohen he wanted forgiveness for "blowing your safe 16 years ago."

The proprietor countered with, "Do you have the $340 in cash that I lost?"

Taylor said no. Cohen said there would be no forgiveness. Shortly afterward Taylor was arrested.

Today police officials found Evangelist Taylor was right about the statute of limitations, and he was released.

Public Warned On Paralysis

Protect Children From Undue Exertion, Says Surgeon General.

(Associated Press.)

Although the danger of paralysis was described as "numerically slight," Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming warned the public that "nowhere in the United States is there freedom from danger of infantile paralysis infection during the summer months."

"With the exception of protecting children from this risk so far as practiable," said the Public Health Service head, "the circumstances do not justify any interference with or discouragement to normal business and recreation."

Describing the outbreak in California as "not so dangerous as might be thought from the number of cases reported," Dr. Cumming said protection of children against undue exertion "is wise in the presence of infantile paralysis in any community."

The surgeon general added, regarding California, that never before "has such a large proportion of mild nonparalytic cases been brought to attention in metropolitan centers," and, except for this predominance of nonparalytic symptoms, the California outbreak "is typical."

Mme. Curie Buried At Silent Services

Radium Discoverer Laid to Rest Without Prayer.

Sceaux, France July 6 (AP).—Mme. Marie Curie was buried today beside her husband and co-scientific worker in the little village cemetery with the same simplicity that characterized her life.

As she had requested, there was no religious service, no ceremony, no eulogy and no prayers.

Before the woman who helped discover radium was laid in her grave, 25 laboratory assistants and 150 friends marched past the closed casket, each placing a rose on it. Then all, including Mme. Curie's two daughters, passed out of the cemetery in silence.

Huge 125-Ton "Magic House" Moves With Touch of Finger

McDonald Observatory to Be Shipped Soon to Western Texas.

Cleveland, July 6 (AP).—A veritable "house of magic" which revolves on wheels and does numerous other engineering tricks despite its weight of 125 tons, was given a final demonstration today preparatory to becoming one of the world's most ingenious astronomical laboratories.

This massive structure, with its base also weighing 125 tons, soon will become the McDonald Observatory at an elevation of 7,000 feet in the Davis Mountains of western Texas.

Not unlike an Indian mahout directing the tricks of a circus elephant, the operator of the observatory will make it perform by the merest touch, yet the power equipment is startlingly small.

The revolving dome of the observatory, assembled for the test by its builders in Cleveland, is so finely balanced up 26 large steel wheels, running upon a single rail circular track, that a five horsepower motor turns it.

When once the astronomer focusses the telescope upon an astral body, the operator may set the entire dome revolving at exactly the speed required to follow the movement of the object in the sky.

Inside the dome a circular pair of tracks, extending from the base to the top and then down the other side, along the inner curve of the ceiling, is suspended a large platform to carry the astronomer and probably 20 persons with him to whatever height they desire. The dome itself is 62 feet in diameter and 73 feet high.

The purpose of the bridge is to take the astronomer to a position where he may gaze downward toward the 3-ton, 80-inch glass mirror at the telescope's base.

The entire structure will be disassembled within a few days for railroad shipment to Marfa, Tex. From that point it will be trucked into the mountains. The telescope, not yet finished, will be shipped later.

McGuire Asked To Make Study Of Nicaragua

Economist Is Invited to Survey Economic Conditions.

Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, President of Nicaragua, announced yesterday that he had invited Dr. Constantine McGuire, of Washington, an economist, to come to Nicaragua to study economic and financial conditions, according to the Associated Press.

Dr. Don Henri de Bayle, Charge d'Affaires at the Nicaraguan Legation here, said McGuire has received the invitation but has not as yet accepted.

At Dr. McGuire's home, 3053 P street northwest, it was learned that he is on a business trip to New York but that he was planning to visit Nicaragua during the next three months.

McGuire is one of the American members of the board of directors of the Nicaragua National Bank and the Nicaraguan National Railways, both incorporated in New York.

In 1926, Dr. McGuire, then assistant director of the Institute of Economics here, was decorated by the Pope with the order of the Knight of the Order of St. Gregory the Great.

Loans Exceed Billion Mark

341,162 Home Owners Get Average Grant of $3,103.

Approximately $1,000,000,000 has been disbursed in Federal mortgage relief to distressed urban home owners during the last year, the Home Owners Loan Corporation said today.

Reviewing its first year's work, the corporation asserted that, although the corporation has only $3,000,000,000 to loan, 1,510,750 applications on file total $4,856,269,830.

"A large proportion of these are ineligible, largely because many of the applicants are not in genuine distress," said a statement issued by the corporation. "Such applications will be rejected as rapidly as investigation discloses the facts."

It was disclosed that the total number of homes spared from foreclosure proceedings during the year was 341,162.

The statement further pointed out that during last week 17,510 loans, amounting to $51,911,690, were closed, bringing the total of mortgage refunding and other advances by the corporation to $1,027,991,565.

The corporation said the average loan was $3,103.

Long Ignores Legislature's Ouster Attempt

"Kingfish" Just Grins as Members Pass His Pet Measures.

Baton Rouge, La., July 6 (AP).—"Kingfish" Huey P. Long just grinned today as the Louisiana Legislature fretted and fumed and sought to chase him from the deliberative halls, only to find itself pushing through his pet measures at a breath-taking pace.

Representative Rupert Peyton jumped up early today and heatedly served notice that he would invoke the rule to bar nonmembers from the floor of the House if Senator Long "and other notorious characters continued lobbying among members."

After his tirade against "His Piscatorial Majesty, the Crawfish," the House passed, under Senator Long's direction, one of his tax reform measures, an income tax levy.

The Senate approved the "Kingfish's" bill to wrest control of the New Orleans police from his arch enemy, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley. The Senate also passed the administration liquor bill to vest control of the business in the State.

As Senator Long nonchalantly swept up and down the House directing the passage of the income tax measure, Peyton, author of many fantastic measures and a bitter foe of Long, rose and shouted angrily:

"I call for the invoking of Rule 20." (The ejection rule.)

Senator Long's speaker, Allen Ellender, jumped up, looked around the House, and asked:

"Does anyone join Mr. Peyton in the request?"

One member did so, but as ten are required, the rule was not invoked.

Other members then noisily shouted "Question," and the favorable vote was recorded on the income tax bill.

Senator Long, grinning from ear to ear, walked to a swinging railing gate at the rear of the chamber, climbed atop it, and swung to and fro, smiling all the time.

Aid for Housing Plans Studied

Moffett Considers Set-up of Divisions; 200 Persons Needed.

Formation of organizations in every State to push the Administration's home building and improvement program was reported authoritatively yesterday to be under consideration by James A. Moffett, Federal housing administrator, the Associated Press said.

Sources close to Moffett, who is in New York, said he has before him definite recommendations for setting up technical, legal, financial, research and statistical divisions here.

A widespread "ballyhoo" and publicity campaign to put the housing program on a patriotic basis is not favored by some advisers, who have been in close contact with Moffett.

The emphasis, in the opinion of at least one person who has conferred extensively with Moffett in New York, will be on education and information.

He said that probably not more than 200 persons would be required in Washington in the housing administration's offices. Probably one or two men would be needed in State offices and perhaps 25 in the field in each State, he added.

Money Order Fee Imposed

Cashing Charge Applies Only to Offices Not Specified.

The Postoffice Department announced yesterday that after August 1 a fee will be charged for cashing postal money orders at offices other than that on which they were drawn.

The fee will be equal to that paid when the order was issued. In other words, if an order for $12.50 is issued at Washington and drawn on the Chicago postoffice, and is forwarded to Kansas City the payee at Kansas City will be charged 13 cents. If the order had been cashed in Chicago no fee would have been charged.

Postoffice officials said the fee was designated to halt abuses in cashing money orders.

Dorothea Holliedt Estate Is $128,653

Home Is to Be Endowed After Death of Sister.

Dorothea Holliedt, 4604 Thirteenth street northwest, who died July 1, left an estate valued at $128,653, it was shown yesterday when a petition for probate of her will was filed in the District Supreme Court.

Through Attorney John E. Larson it was disclosed that real estate valued at $13,653 and personal property valued at $117,000 had been left. After several small bequests are taken from the estate, the residue is to be held in trust by the American Security and Trust Co. for the benefit of Mathilda Holliedt, a sister.

Upon her death, the estate is to be used in the endowment of a home for women over 55 years old. It is to be known as the Dorothea and Mathilda Holliedt Memorial Home.

MacVeagh, Taft Treasury Head, Dies in Chicago

Yale and Columbia Man Was Wholesale Grocer, 96 Years Old.

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Franklin MacVeagh, pioneer Chicago business man, civic leader and Secretary of the Treasury from 1909 to 1913 under President Taft, died tonight of pneumonia.

MacVeagh was 96 years old. He had been ill about ten days and died at a local hospital. He was born in Phoenixville, Pa., in 1838 and graduated from Yale in 1862. At the time of his death he was the oldest graduate of Yale.

MacVeagh later studied law at Columbia University and was admitted to the New York Bar. In 1866 he abandoned law and came to Chicago, where he established the wholesale grocery firm of Franklin MacVeagh & Co., which became one of the foremost institutions of its kind. The firm was dissolved in 1931 when MacVeagh retired.

His first political activity was noted in 1896 when he ran for United States Senator on the Democratic ticket, but was defeated. MacVeagh was prominent in civic affairs, being a member of many clubs and business associations.

His wife, the former Emily Eames, died in 1917.

His son, Eames MacVeagh, and a nephew, Lincoln MacVeagh, now Minister to Greece, survive.

R. L. Anderson Is Dead at 77

Retired D. C. Commission Merchant's Rites Set for Monday.

Robert L. Anderson, 77, retired local commission merchant, known for his many philanthropies, died yesterday at his home, 1401 Fairmont street northwest, after a short illness.

Born near Camp Meade, Md., he came here as a boy and later took over his father's commission merchant business, formerly conducted at 919 B street northwest. There are no immediate relatives surviving, his wife, Rose Anderson, having passed away three years ago.

Anderson was past master of Federal Lodge, F. A. A. M., and a member of Columbia Commandery, No. 2, Knights Templar; Almas Temple, Mystic Shrine, and Ruth Chapter, No. 1, O. E. S. He was a former vice president of the District Commission Merchants Exchange and retired from active business 12 years ago.

Masonic funeral services will be held Monday, at 2:15 p. m. from the chapel at Glenwood Cemetery where burial will take place. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Harry Lee Doll, assistant rector of the Church of the Epiphany.

Col. Tumulty Passes Away

Picturesque Indian and Civil War Veteran Dies at 85.

Only silence will answer the roll when G. A. R. comrades call the name of Col. Patrick Tumulty, 85, uncle of President Wilson's secretary, who died yesterday at Jersey City.

Beloved of children, who listened with awe to his tales of Indian fights, and a familiar figure in his silky white hair and "Buffalo Bill" goatee on Memorial Day, he had long been guest of honor at G. A. R. gatherings.

Known to his intimates as "Curley," Col. Tumulty was famed for his tales of the capture of the famous Indian, Sitting Bull, at which event he was present.

Picturesque in his garb, always in the mayor's car during parades, he joined the Union forces as a water boy when he was 15. Retired from active business for the past decade, his chief delight was living again thrilling moments of the past.

COMMANDER ALFRED E. MONTGOMERY, United States Navy, new commanding officer of the Anacostia, D. C., Naval Air Station.

Commander Montgomery Succeds Capt. Child at Air Station.

Commander De Witt C. Ramsey, U. S. N., will succeed Commander Montgomery in the office of Naval Intelligence.

Aero Meeting Will Analyze Crash Causes

Airway Operators and Chief Pilots to Convene.

(Associated Press.)

Rules, regulations and customs governing America's thousands of miles of air line are to get a thorough analysis and overhaul in mid-August.

The Commerce Department's aeronautics branch has summoned all air line operators and chief pilots to a meeting August 15-16. They will consider, among other things, all major airplane accidents in recent years, their causes and how they might have been prevented.

J. Carroll Cone, assistant chief of the Aeronautics Bureau, said "we benefit as a result of the discussions."

Among the accidents to be discussed is that of the American Airways plane which crashed on a New York State mountainside June 9, killing nine persons.

Changing Routes Banned.

The ordinary route on which the ships of that line flew was changed because of adverse weather. The pilot of the wrecked plane, however, got off the new route and flew into a mountainside.

To avoid such accidents in the future, the Commerce Department has specified that air line operators may not change their routes without Commerce Department permission. That is one of the regulations to be discussed at the meeting.

Cone referred also to the laws passed by the last Congress requiring publicity on fatal accidents and making it optional with the Secretary of Commerce in other cases.

Will Announce Findings.

Demands had been made for publication of departmental reports in connection with the American Airways crash. Commerce Department officials said, however, all the data they had been able to obtain in that case was based purely on "hearsay" evidence not obtained under oath.

For that reason, the department probably will not make public any of the investigator's reports. Cone denied the department believed there had been any sabotage involved.

He said in future fatal accidents, hearings would be held, witnesses put under oath, and formal findings made public.

New Screen and Stage Programs Are Brought to Your Notice by Post Reviewers

Old Favorite Attempts Comeback

At one time rated in the top flight of Hollywood motion picture stars, Charles Ray is reported from the West Coast to have fallen on lean days. Beginning all over again, Charlie is taking such "bit" parts as present themselves in pictures. He is shown here as he appears in "Ladies Should Listen," a Paramount production in which the leads are played by Cary Grant, Frances Drake and Edward Everett Horton.

Earle Presents Mortuary Cast In Hecht Play

Cody and Dell in Fine Bits; Mystery-Comedy at Fox; the Other Bills.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"SHOOT THE WORKS," Paramount picturization of "The Great Magoo," by Ben Hecht, Gene Fowler, Leo Robin and Ralph Grainger, adapted to the screen by Howard J. Green and Claude Binyon, featuring Jack Oakie, Ben Bernie and his Orchestra, the late Lew Cody and Dorothy Dell, Alison Skipworth, Arline Judge and Roscoe Karns. Directed by Wesley Ruggles. Reviewed Friday morning.

This ostensibly lively story of the ragged fringes of show business, which goes in more for sideshow ballyhoo and night club entertaining than it does for the familiar aspects of the usual "back-stage" yarn, possesses an unfortunate, but inescapable, funereal quality, since two of its leading players have passed from the living scene since the film was made.

In Lew Cody and Dorothy Dell, "Shoot the Works" has two of its principal assets, and yet these are the two players who never again will be seen otherwise than in posthumous performances.

The principal burden of the development of a story of struggling "artists," seeking a foothold in the world of amusement, however, does not rest upon the shoulders of the two players whose sudden deaths shocked all of Hollywood and the theater world. Jack Oakie and Ben Bernie and his orchestra, not to mention Roscoe Karns and Arline Judge, Mrs. Wesley Ruggles, wife of the director, as his strangely promiscuous "sweetie," provide, perhaps, the preponderance of the picture's most engaging sequences.

Oakie Is Well Cast.

Oakie has precisely the type of role that he does best in the part of the young songwriter, vaudeville-actor, sideshow-spieler who falls in love with a songstress whose rise to fame is much speedier than his own. Karns also is well cast and Miss Judge make a fascinating figure as the orchestra boy's "girl friend," whose affections will not stay put.

It is in this picture that Miss Dell and Mr. Oakie introduce one of the most popular of the current song hits—"With My Eyes Wide Open, I'm Dreaming." The picture would be worth seeing and hearing for this one item alone, even if it does not blaze any wholly new trails in the direction of inspired "back stage" drama. Miss Dell had a deep-throated and seductive voice and Mr. Oakie, an old musical comedy fellow on his own account, does not do so badly with the tune and lyrics. Together, they are pretty splendid.

Alison Skipworth, the late lamented Cody and many others lend touches of genuine distinction to fleeting scenes in a film which as a whole is of no significance whatever.

Ben Bernie proves himself no actor, but, as background music for the development of the major movement of the plot, he and his orchestra do extremely well. Most of the Bernie japery that goes over the air will be encountered in his lines and purported announcements to huge cabaret crowds attracted by his melodies.

Unusual Vaudeville Headliner.

The stellar feature of the vaudeville portion of the bill is provided by "The Voice of Experience," which, in persona propria, is Dr. M. S. Taylor, a radio broadcaster who has personally dealt with the intimate problems of an unbelievable number of harassed people.

Dr. Taylor's "act" consists wholly of a talk on the many fascinating qualities of his radio "contacts" and an evident eagerness to meet his listeners face to face. "The Voice of Experience" scored an emphatic personal success at yesterday's first performance, although there is nothing dramatic about his simple recitation of why he feels that his "job" is the best available to any human being.

The Supplementaries.

Miss Audrey Sieber also announces the Gilbert Brothers in extraordinary hand-balancing and horizontal bar work; the "Russian Revels," a miniature revue, that has its moments of orchestral, terpsichorean and comic preeminence, and Benny Ross and Maxine Stone in an unique interval of singing, pianoing and feminine lethargy.

Freddie Clark's overture of popular melodies, with Bert Granoff supplying the vocal interpolations to rousing applause, and the Universal News complete a bill that will compare favorably with any on view in the Capital this week. If that is flattery, make the most of it. This isn't such a week!

Loew's Fox

"MURDER IN THE PRIVATE CAR." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of Edward E. Rose's stage play of "The Rear Car," adapted to the screen by Ralph Spence, Edgar Allen Woolf and Al Boasberg, with scenario by Harvey Thew, featuring Charles Ruggles, Una Merkle, Mary Carlisle, Russell Hardie, Burton Churchill, "Snowflake," Winifred Lucas and Willard Robertson. Directed by Harry Beaumont. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Here is an old-time silent "movie" come back to life with appropriate dialogue and commotions.

As a play, this piece flourished about a decade ago under the title of "The Rear Car" and caused gooseflesh to pop out on susceptible audiences much after the then-approved fashion of "The Gorilla," "The Bat," "The Cat and the Canary" and other similar exhibits that combined comedy with the eerie business of making the hair stand on end and the spine to frappe.

There is not, as a matter of fact, half so much terror in "Murder in the Private Car" as there is the flippant laughability of farce. It is only necessary to examine the personnel of the cast to be sure that this is so. One does not customarily look to Charles Ruggles, Una Merkel, Mary Carlisle and the other deft players named in the small-type paragraph preceding these remarks for the blood-chilling melodramatics of shuddery drama. They are comedians and comediennes, all of these charming people concerned in the present goings-on, and they live up to their reputations with a fine sense of fidelity in their present assignments.

A Few Deaths in Passing.

"Murder in the Private Car" is just a lot of fun, despite the mortuary implications of the title. There is, to be sure, a murder or two scattered along the transcontinental trek by which a young telephone operator is supposed to be restored to her multi-millionaire, railroad-owner father, but the people whose demises are celebrated were no good, anyway, so the sudden termination of their earthly usefulness falls with none of the stunning effects of calamity upon the senses of those watching out front.

When King Kong's twin brother, from the wrecked circus train, begins to do his stuff in the private car; when mysterious voices come from nowhere and all manner of fiendish devices are made use of to terrify and threaten the occupants of the car, and when finally the car is cut loose from its train and, heavily laden with high explosives, goes careening down the steep mountainside, there is, to be honest about it, a bogus thrill or two. But most of the way, the picture is precisely so much of what a picturesque vernacular might denominate the old hooey, or yet the old malarkey!

The principal players do well all of the foolish things that are trusted to their talents during the hectic action. The final fadeout, participated in by Mr. Ruggles and Miss Merkel, is extremely amusing. So is much of the rest of the film. None of it, however, will overcome any discerning observer by its power of conviction.

Mary Brian Charms.

On the stage, Mary Brian completely fulfills all of the nice things that have been said about her by those who ought to know. She is a charming young woman who seems about as you would expect her to, after having seen her so often in pictures of a youthfully romantic trend. She is poised, graceful and articulate, and gives the impression across the footlights of being a very genuine and unaffected young woman.

Miss Brian is supported in her act, which consists mostly of dancing, with a little friendly badinage thrown in for good measure by Gordon and King, two of the most expert of the contemporary stage's trickiest "hoofers." Miss Brian is the attractive sort of ingenuous young actress one hopes to appraise more intimately before the week is over.

Auxiliaries and Such.

Other acts on the bill include the Five Di Guschis, Japanese acrobats, gymnasts and upside-down foot-jugglers of the first rank; Joe Morris and Dorothy Doyle, supported by two helpful stooges, in their characteristic type of nonsense, and the Radio Aces, three vocalists and a guitarist, who stopped yesterday afternoon's second show cold in its tracks.

Prof. Phil Lampkin's "Musical Cocktail" overture, in which he does a little Grade A trumpeting; a Charley Chase comedy, "It Happened One Day;" a card-sharp reel, "Attention Suckers," with humorous explanatory comment by Pete Smith, and the Fox Movietone News complete a program that is as irresponsible as the weather man!

"THE GREAT FLIRTATION." Paramount picturization of Gregory Ratoff's play, "I Love an Actress," adapted to the screen by Humphrey Pearson, starring Eliassa Landi and Adolph Menjou, supported by David Manners, Lynne Overman and Adrian Rosley. Directed by Ralph Murphy. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

There's just a little Jekyll and Hyde in this—not, that part is good and part is bad (for it is all capably and entertainingly done), but part is happy and part is surprisingly sad.

The "Great Flirtation" is, to be truthful, quite a string of flirtations, for Zita, the flirtation center, may have been the world's worst actress as Husband-Actor Stephan insists, but she certainly had something.

First she drove Stephan mad by refusing to marry him, then she drove him to New York by marrying him.

There she contrives to interest a producer, a director and a playwright all at the same time, certainly a thoughtful and businesslike choice for an actress to flirt with.

Comedy of Temperament.

As it stands, it is a very nice little comedy of temperamental stage people for four-fifths of its length, and then it goes surprisingly serious. Good dialogue and good play-acting brighten the comedy and the good acting carries over into the sad little ending, making it seem less incongruous than it really is.

The backstage atmosphere is realistic, as it should be since Gregory Ratoff, actor and husband, or former husband, of actress Eugenie Leontovitch, wrote the play.

Adolphe Menjou continues unbroken his record of good performances with an excellently shaded portrait of Stephan, the greatest actor of Budapest, now ranting, now restrained, now insufferably conceited, now pathetic.

Elissa Landi plays the fiery Zita, not the first tempestuous role she has attempted, but the first in which she has seemed to play with authority and zest. She does forget her accent now and then.

David Manners is easier than usual and handsome as always as the young playwright. Lynne Overman and his patented voice and Raymond Walburn do well by director and producer, respectively, and Adrian Rosley is a quiet delight as Mikos, the great actor's shadow.

Auxiliary Bill.

Of the subsidiaries, the best is the Paramount newsreel's lovely shot of the U. S. S. Houston taking off in the dusk with the Presidential party.

The others, an unusually dull assortment, are a Looney Tune burlesque of Tarzan, less imaginative than its original; a Ruth Etting short, "Song of Fame," with nice songs but not much sense; an overlong pictorial of New York, "City of Contrasts," with an occasional nice camera angle but consistently jerky photography that would make you dizzy even in cool weather, and a musical short with Abe Lyman's band rehashing all the war songs and war shots.

"PRIVATE SCANDAL," Paramount picturization of a story by Vera Caspary and Bruce Manning, featuring ZaSu Pitts, Ned Sparks, Phillips Holmes, Mary Brian and the late Lew Cody. Directed by Ralph Murphy. Reviewed Friday morning by W. A. Whitney.

As a palliative for a balmy Washington summer's day, a good comedy-drama, with a dash of murder-mystery tossed in for good measure, is about the choicest entertainment prescription that can be written. "Private Scandal" is expertly compounded of those essentials, and the mixture is most easy to take.

B. J. Somers, developer of Eden Gardens, has lost his shirt and his clients' investments in a stock market slump and, aid being refused by a close friend, plans suicide which will look like murder in order that the insurance money may clear his indebtedness. Somers is found dead—but it is really murder.

A detective, investigating a mysterious tip, stumbles upon the case and proceeds to take charge, the case maintaining itself continually one jump ahead of the investigator, who tags along in time to nab the culprit just before the final fade-out.

As a mystery-drama, "Private Scandal" leaves some things to be desired from the standpoint of dramatic construction. But, on the other hand, as a comedy, with embellishments, the picture is a sure cure for the effects of thermal inflation.

Ned Sparks, as the detective, is head and shoulders above the other members of the cast, snarling through the action with his dead-pan deader than usual, but his wisecracks much snappier and funnier. ZaSu Pitts, clever as she is, can hardly be noticed, in spite of her reputation for dominating scenes, no matter how small. The love interest is sustained by Phillips Holmes and Mary Brian, the former as the accused and the latter as the murdered man's daughter.

The late Lew Cody was the instigator of this private scandal. Mr. Cody always was a suave actor, and this posthumous drama adds further to the achievements of a well-remembered Trespian.

In "The First Round-up," Our Gang does some back-to-nature vacationing. The comedy is rather thin, but still entertaining. "Fortunate Isles," a Magic Carpet travelogue, depicts the charm of the Canary Islands. A release of the Paramount News completes a short, but satisfying program.

Palace

"THE THIN MAN." M-G-M picturization of Dashiell Hammett's novel adapted to the screen by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich, starring William Powell and Myrna Loy, supported by Minna Gombell, Nat Pendleton and Maureen O'Sullivan. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke. Reviewed second week by Dorothea Lewis.

The Palace has found itself a star boarder, and we hope the heat won't drive "The Thin Man" away from our beautiful summer resort of a city. Don't let it keep you away from "The Thin Man."

This is a swell show. One deserving a second week, or a third, even, if the box-office hadn't proved its intelligence and the audience's in terms of cold, hard cash.

It's literate, it's slightly zany, it's spontaneous, it's surprising, it's speedy. It combines mystery with a great deal of fun, and it presents Myrna Loy at her very nicest, with William Powell at his very best.

It is all about a reluctant former detective who doesn't want to detect, an entrancing wife who wants him to, and an assortment of murders, mysteries and people that make a detective, and a good one, necessary.

It is told in dialogue that gets a little ahead of you if you don't keep in close step—which is nice for a change from the usual heavy, slow-footed pace of things.

What you really have here is the best comedy since "It Happened One Night." And in addition, though it's not quite up to its predecessor, there's the Walt Disney "Big, Bad Wolf," a sequel to the historic "Three Little Pigs."

Culbertson on Bridge

Responding to a Double.

It is one of the sound basic principles underlying the Takeout Double that a Double of one major suit implies strength in the other, and ordinarily if a minor is doubled, the doubler holds strength in the dominant major suit, spades. The alternative of this is that the Doubler has a suit of his own so strong that he is willing to show it over his partner's forced response. This basic principle permits the Responding Hand much greater freedom in determining his course of action.

As an example, observe the bidding on the hand below, which was played in a team-of-four match in New York City recently. As a matter of fact, East would have been much better advised had he made a Preemptive bid of four hearts on his holding. The result might have been the same, but at least it would have required considerable courage on the part of North and South to reach their best contract.

East, dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A Q 10 4 ♡ 10 9 ♢ A Q 8 4 ♣ A J 5
♠ 5 2 ♡ Q 2 ♢ J 10 7 2 ♣ 10 8 6 4 3	N W E S	♠ 7 6 3 ♡ A K 8 7 6 5 4 3 ♢ 6 ♣ K
	♠ K J 9 8 ♡ J ♢ K 9 5 3 ♣ Q 9 7 2

East	South	West	North
1♡	Pass	Pass	Dbl.
4♡(1)	4♠(2)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—Too late now to serve its best purpose. It may of course crowd the bidding greatly for North and South, but would have been much more effective as an Opening bid.

2—North's Double of one heart guarantees spade support or a good minor suit, and in view of South's holding in the minors, the latter is improbable. In any case, South is prepared for a bid of five clubs or five diamonds.

In the play, East overtook West's Opening lead of the heart Queen and returned another heart, which was ruffed in the closed hand. Three rounds of trumps were now led and East was marked, by the bidding and play, with eight hearts, three spades and two cards in the minor suits. A small diamond was led to the King, to which all followed, and at this point South decided that East's other card must be the lone club King, since, had West held that card, he would have had sufficient strength for a shaded one-no-trump response to his partner's Opening bid. So Dummy's Ace of Clubs was next played, dropping East's King. Now South assured himself of making six-odd by leading Dummy's last spade and discarding a small diamond; for this play reduced West to five cards—he could not hold three diamonds and guard his club Ten as well. This line of play also protected South in case he was mistaken in his reasoning and East actually held only seven hearts originally, for then East would have held two diamonds and the diamond eight would win the last trick.

A Slam contract, however, could not be reached as it depended too much upon Fortune's favors. Not all Slams made in the play should be reached in the bidding, nor, it might be said in passing, should all Slams reached in the bidding be made in the play.

Haiti Marines Will Be Sent To Quantico

Roosevelt Removal Order Finds No Transports Now Available.

Following the statement by President Roosevelt at Cape Haitien that the Marines would be evacuated from Haiti "in a month or six weeks," plans went ahead quickly yesterday at Marine and Navy headquarters for the transfer of the officers and men to this country.

The decision to bring the marines home two months ahead of schedule found the Navy without adequate transports to handle the movement, the Associated Press reported, the vessels intended for this purpose being on other assignments. They will be brought home on other vessels of the fleet.

The returning marines, consisting of 1 brigade of about 700 men, are under command of Brig. Gen. Louis McCarthy Little. They have been on the island since 1915. They will be landed either at Hampton Roads or at Philadelphia.

Virtually all of the aviation force and a large group of the riflemen, it was said, would be ordered to Quantico, Va., although it was indicated there might be a redistribution of the troops later. About 500, it was estimated, would be sent to the Virginia base.

Hollywood, July 6.—Louise Fazenda is spending all her spare time shopping for clothes these days, and there's a reason. Just get Louise to tell you the story of the stolen trunks.

HAROLD LLOYD

Seems that just 15 minutes before they were to leave Italy (Hal Wallis and his wife, Louise Fazenda arrived home a few days ago), the proprietor shamefacedly told them that their trunks had been lost.

"We couldn't wait for the police to act," said Louise, as we chatted at lunch today, "so we dashed for the boat in just what we were wearing.

"We spent half our time on the way across doing our laundry in the washbowl! And we were in New York just long enough to get some handkerchiefs and some undies. We didn't want to spend money hurriedly for clothes because we had bought lots in Paris and London—all in those lost trunks."

In the three trunks, besides the clothes, were some lovely etchings, some fine lace and several pieces of priceless china.

The feud began mysteriously during the location work on Paramount's "Now and Forever," and Shirley told Director Hathaway that she and Buster weren't speaking. For a time they refused to sit together for a scene.

And then Shirley discovered Buster trying to feed peanuts to a brood of studio kittens in which the small actress takes a personal interest.

That's when the fur flew—Buster's fur, not the kittens' fur. And Shirley stalked off with the felines to her dressing room, grouping them around a saucer of milk.

CALLING the act "one of the most flagrant of the many recent violations of the merit system," Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Federal Employes, last night vigorously attacked the Executive order of President Roosevelt which removes from the competitive classified service positions in the National Soldiers Home at Johnson City, Tenn.

BAKER.

"This Executive order, singling out employes of the Johnson City home for removal from the competitive Civil Service, constitutes a direct and utterly indefensible blow against the merit system," Miss McNally declared. "While it is obvious that this specific attack has been made in response to a demand for jobs to take care of a State political situation, the Executive order has far more than a local implication.

"It represents a thoroughly brazen step in the direction of a wide-open return to the spoils system. The effect of the order is to throw open the positions, without reference to Civil Service rules and requirements, to political appointees, whose only qualifications may be 'rightness' at the polls or activity on State or county committees."

The labor leader pointed out that it is significant that the Civil Service Commission was not consulted prior to issuance of the Executive order.

"It is also noteworthy that the order was issued following failure of the last session of Congress to pass the King bill, which would have removed from civil service positions 'covered in' by the Executive order of April 23, 1931."

Inconsistency in the President's policy is cited by Miss McNally, who pointed out that while the President on "numerous occasions has voiced approval of, and pledged his support to, the merit principle in Federal personnel administration," the Executive order on the Johnson City personnel is a "practical negation."

"It not only represents a clear concession to spoilsmen bent upon crushing the civil service structure within the National Soldiers' Home, but it must be construed as a stinging blow to the merit principle generally. The order provides a new cause for rejoicing among the hordes of political hacks and carpetbaggers who have been chafing at remaining civil service restraints.

"During the past year the National Federation of Federal Employes has emphasized frequently the havoc being wreaked upon the civil service system. Never during that time, however, has there been a more pointed illustration of the trend of the times than that found in the Executive order of June 28," Miss McNally said.

Holding that justice demands the revocation of the order, the employe leader declared that such action should be taken immediately to allay fears that continued and increasingly sweeping attacks will be made upon the Federal civil service.

$500,000,000 School Aid Is Last N.E.A. Plea

Educators Select Denver for 1935 Convention; Hit Wage Cuts.

After chosing Denver, Colo., for their 1935 convention, recommending that the next session of Congress appropriate at least $500,000,000 for school aid, and hearing an attack on the influence of politics in school administration, the National Education Association closed its seventy-second annual convention yesterday.

The board of directors, which met immediately after the general session, gave Denver the "preferential vote," which is tantamount to selection. St. Paul, Detroit, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Portland, Oreg., also competed for the honor.

The association, which has approximately 250,000 members, went on record yesterday against crime and "sexy" motion pictures, reduction of teachers' salaries and war.

It adopted resolutions indorsing the child labor amendment, slum clearance, unemployment insurance for all workers, a bill providing for direct Federal assistance to the Nation's schools and legislation prohibiting profits on manufacture and sale of munitions.

"Interference" Assailed.

Dr. Thomas E. Benner, addressing the session, said "one of the greatest weaknesses of our Democratic machinery for the control of education as a function of the state is the persistence in a majority of our States of the popularly elected State school officer."

A resolution indorsing the principle that school affairs should not suffer interference by political groups was adopted by the association after the address by Dr. Benner, who is dean of the college of education, University of Illinois.

"The welfare of the entire school system in States whose expert, professional leadership must come out of the lottery of public elections has been at stake and will continue to be at stake as long as this condition persists," he said.

"If our belief in sound principles is genuine, one of its first fruits will be vigorous and persistent efforts to correct the inadequancies of our governmental machinery which prevent the smooth functioning of democratic government in the field of public education," Dr. Benner said.

Urged to Nourish Arts.

Deviation from a materialistic philosophy to embrace culture and nourish appreciation of the arts was urged upon the teachers by Armand J. Gerson, associate superintendent of schools in Philadelphia.

"Poise is our need; poise may be our salvation," declared Dr. Gerson, stating that this quality is the outcome of culture.

Dr. Gerson said there is a tendency away from the learning and the practice of music, literature and other fine arts and an increasing emphasis on their appreciation.

Development of this attitude rests in large degree on the teacher, what he or she is rather than what he or she may do or say, according to Dr. Gerson.

"It becomes obvious," he said, "that no teachers should be selected for work in the field of appreciation whose joy in esthetic experiences is not enthusiastic, wholesome and honest. Indeed, the question may be properly raised as to whether teachers in any field should not possess this cultural background."

Not for Unimaginative.

"The literal-minded, unimaginative, unsympathetic person has no place in the profession of teaching, he continued, reciting the instance of a teaching candidate whose examination called for an interpretation of the lines, "Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard are sweeter." On her paper she wrote: "This means that it is nice to listen to music, but it is nicer not to."

The resolution asking for a $500,000,000 Federal outlay for schools was adopted after a clause stating that a "government that can appropriate nearly $2,000,000,000 for military and naval purposes should make adequate provision for the support of public education" was deleted.

Edward A. Hayes, National commander of the American Legion, Thursday night derided the argument that public education would be better off if less money were spent in this country on armaments.

"It is understood that this grant shall not entail any Federal control of schools," the resolution said.

Plank Is Reaffirmed.

Russell Cook, director of the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion, made a fervent plea Thursday that teachers curb discussion of new economic and governmental principles in their classrooms, but the association yesterday reaffirmed the plank in its permanent platform which guarantees the presentation of controversial issues.

"Teachers should have the privilege," it says, "of presenting all points of view, including their own, on controversial issues without danger of reprisal by the school administration or by pressure from groups in the community. Teachers should also be guaranteed the constitutional rights of freedom of speech, press, and assembly and the right to support actively organized movements which they consider to be in their own and the public interest."

"The teacher's conduct outside the school should be the subject only to such control as that to which other responsible citizens are subjected. The sudden singling out of teachers to take an oath of allegiance is a means of intimidation which can be used to destroy the right of academic freedom."

For Clean Movies.

In joining the campaign for clean movies, the association assailed the "block booking" practice which it held largely responsible for "the unsavory character of contemporary moving picture programs."

"Children should be taught the truth about war and its costs in human life and ideals and in material wealth," read another resolution.

The board of directors elected Agnes Samuelson to the executive committee, A. L. Whittenberg to the board of trustees, and W. B. Mooney, A. C. Flora and T. J. Walker to the budget committee.

Miss Samuelson is State superintendent of public instruction in Iowa. Whittenberg is secretary of the Illinois State examining board for teachers' certificates. Mooney is secretary of the Colorado Education Association, Flora is superintendent of schools in Columbia, S. C., and Walker is editor of "School and Community" in Columbia, Mo.

Seal's Report Raps Financing Of Mayflower

Copies Sent Senators Kean and Reynolds; Text Not Yet Revealed.

Sharp criticism of the financial operations revolving about the Mayflower Hotel is voiced in a report placed yesterday in the hands of Senator Hamilton F. Kean (Republican), of New Jersey, chairman of the special Senate District subcommittee which recently completed public investigation of the latest chapters in the financial history of the property.

Copy of the report also has been sent to Senator Robert R. Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, other member of the sub-committee. Senator Kean is in New Jersey and Senator Reynolds is in North Carolina. The report was prepared by Elwood Seal, assistant corporation counsel, who acted with Robert H. McNeill as counsel for the subcommittee.

Publication of the report is expected next week after the Senators have had opportunity to study it and perhaps make some changes, Seal said. Seal will go to New York to confer with Senator Kean, if the chairman desires him to do so.

The report discusses the facts developed at the previous public hearing held by a District sub-committee headed by Senator Kean in 1931. It discusses the receivership, the bondholders' committees, the reorganization plan proposed by the three committees, the appraisals made by local real estate men at the time National security concerns were preparing to float millions in securities backed by the property, and the transaction between the American Bond and Mortgage Co., of Chicago, and the hotel company, and it also discusses the interests now attempting to gain control of the property. It was charged that the same interests which sold the securities now are seeking to regain control.

Conclusions and recommendations made in the report were not disclosed by Seal, who said the whole report would have to await publication by the sub-committee.

Closed Bank To Pay Again

Brightwood Depositors to Get Third Dividend in Two Years.

The Bank of Brightwood, savings institution, which suspended July 13, 1932, will pay a third dividend of 10 per cent beginning Monday morning, Claude H. Woodward, its receiver, announced yesterday. There will be available for this dividend approximately $100,000.

Hours for payment of the dividend will be from 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m., daily except Saturday, when they will be from 8:30 a. m. until noon. This third dividend will mean payment of 55 per cent in dividends to date, within the nearly two years the bank has been closed.

Receiver Woodward announced that depositors must come to the bank in person to receive their money. They must present their receivers certificate of proof of claim. No dividend checks will be mailed except to depositors living in other cities.

Two dividends amounting to $356,550.36 have been paid from the bank since it closed. On February 10, 1933, the bank began paying its initial dividend of 20 per cent, or approximately $155,000. In May, 1933, it paid a second dividend of 25 per cent, or more than $200,000.

Street Offers D. C. Welfare Expansion Plan

Proposed Improvements to Cost $9,214,800 in Six Years.

A program of structural expansion for agencies of the Board of Public Welfare, to cost $9,214,800, was proposed yesterday by Elwood Street, director of the board.

The building schedule, which envisages wide expansion over a period of six years, includes three major items, totaling $2,750,000, funds for which the District already has requested of the Public Works Administration.

In this group are $1,500,000 for the construction of a tuberculosis hospital for adults, $500,000 for the completion of the walled group buildings at Lorton Reformatory and $750,000 for the erection of a new building at Gallinger Municipal Hospital.

Program Tentative.

Except for $884,800 provided for construction in the current District appropriations bill, the entire program is tentative and is designed merely for the guidance of District officials in their plans for improving the welfare agencies.

Proposed improvements which are not included in either the appropriations act or the request now pending before the PWA, would cost $5,580,000. Of this group, the most important item is the suggested construction of a new jail at a cost of $1,800,000. This building, it is proposed, should be erected on a new site or an additional building should be placed on the present site to alleviate crowded conditions.

Provisions for construction in the 1935 appropriations act are: $290,000 for completion of a new ward building at Gallinger; $52,000 for a water filtration system at Lorton Reformatory; $42,800 for miscellaneous buildings and roads at Lorton, and $500,000 for construction of two wings at the Children's Tuberculosis Hospital at Glendale, Md.

Other Improvements.

Other construction proposals offered by Street are: a chemical laboratory building at Gallinger to cost $310,000; a doctors' home at Gallinger, $155,000; additional shop buildings and dormitories at Lorton to cost $600,000; two homes for inmates and a superintendent's cottage at the Industrial Home School for colored children to cost $59,000; a new building at the Industrial Home School for white children to cost $300,000.

Improvements suggested for the District Training School are: improvements to grounds, $200,000; a new dormitory, $78,000; a school and gymnasium, $160,000; hospital building, $100,000; children's cottage dormitory, $100,000, and a number of smaller buildings.

Other proposals are: a new building for the Receiving Home for Children to cost $275,000, a new municipal lodging house to cost $130,000, and miscellaneous improvements at the Home for the Aged and Infirm, $181,000.

Fruit Vender Held To Jury in Slaying

Rousseau Changes Story of Hotel Killing.

Cyril M. Rousseau, 50, a fruit vender living at 1732 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, today was remanded to the grand jury by a coroner's jury in the fatal shooting last Wednesday night of Henry L. Purtell, 38, of 2618 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Purtell was killed after he is said to have entered the hotel room of Rousseau. Immediately after the shooting Rousseau said Purtell entered his room and advanced upon him despite a warning.

On the stand yesterday Rousseau retracted his first statement under questioning of homicide squad detectives and said the shooting took place in the third floor hallway.

Hurja Visions Big Fall Gain By Democrats

Unconcerned Over Absent Votes While G. O. P. Plans Drive.

At least six Senate seats and many additional House seats will be won by the Democrats in the November elections, Emil Hurja, right-hand man of Postmaster General James A. Farley in Democratic National headquarters, predicted yesterday.

So confident is he of the outcome that he attaches little importance to the task of getting District residents to cast their ballots in the elections.

Getting thousands of absentee votes into the mails and persuading additional thousands of District residents to go home to vote was a major task of the District Democratic and Republican organizations in the Presidential campaign. Both carried most of the burden of that job but both were given some aid by the National organizations.

Despite the apparent belief of the present directors of the National Democratic campaign, the Republican District organization is preparing to collect funds and conduct a vigorous drive to find voters in the National Capital ready to support their candidates and send their ballots or their persons home to vote.

Thorough Drive Planned.

"Our committee is planning a thorough campaign to get into the ballot boxes the votes of Washington residents who have voting residences in the States," Edward F. Colladay, Republican national committeeman for the District, said.

"Such a campaign costs money, which is a little difficult to get at present, but we are going ahead with our plans, which we expect to have functioning as soon as the various primaries are done with."

More than 70,000 inquiries of voters were answered at the District Republican Club, on Scott Circle, during the last Presidential campaign, Mr. Colladay estimated. Such widespread interest is not usual in other than Presidential campaigns, Mr. Colladay observed.

The Democratic National headquarters, Mr. Hurja said, believes the claims of the local organizations are exaggerated and the number of votes sent home from Washington are unimportant. Only a small organization has been launched by the National headquarters. This is headed by Mrs. Lester J. Pollock. Mrs. Pollock some time ago headed an abortive effort to take over direction of local Democratic affairs from the Democratic central committee, of which John Colpoys, United States marshal, is chairman, and in which John F. Costello, National committeeman, is active.

Pennsylvania Gains Seen.

The Democrats, Mr. Hurja predicted, will win at least ten House seats in Pennsylvania. "Material" gains will be made in New England, in New Jersey and in up-State New York, he said.

Local Democratic organization leaders do not regard the absentee voting as light as National headquarters apparently does. Mr. Costello has placed Maurice Wentzell in offices in the Earle Building to develop plans for getting out the vote.

In the last campaign the local headquarters was manned by 146 workers, of whom 22 were notaries public on duty day and night to aid in preparation of ballots, answer questions and give advice and attest ballots and statements. Approximately 60,000 votes were sent the support of Democratic candidates in the various States, it was said.

There were 8,485 Democratic votes sent into West Virginia, which for the first time elected a solid Democratic delegation to Congress, it was pointed out. Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, said the aid of votes from Washington assured his election. In recent elections, it was pointed out, Martinsburg, W. Va., went Republican.

Mr. Colpoys believes the number of Democrats in Washington who will vote this year will be larger than two years ago.

"It was a Republican Administration then," he said. "Many were afraid to raise their heads up because they feared it might affect their jobs. Of course our campaign will not be as spectacular as in a Presidential year but we intend to go ahead and do what we can."

A suggestion that the Administration's ignoring of local organization leaders might cool their ardor was denied by Mr. Colpoys.

"Both Mr. Costello, myself and all other good Democrats in the District will continue to fight for the party," he said. "Our loyalty is not dependent on our appointment to jobs."

Lovell Seeks Tapestry Missed While Moving

Malcolmn Lovell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, yesterday sought aid of the police in tracing a tapestry valued at $500 which disappeared when his household goods were being moved on June 30 from the Chastleton Apartments to the Wardman Park Hotel.

Lovell said the tapestry was 5 feet square, was wrapped on a bamboo pole and depicted sheep grazing. He said the company that moved him had been unable to locate it.

Tiny Quartz Disc, Vibrating 100,000 Times Per Second, Tests Nation's Radio Stations

Record of Accuracy at Beltsville Plant Is Nearly Perfect.

A tiny disc of quartz, vibrating 100,000 times per second, is the official yardstick by which the Federal Radio Commission regulates the wave frequencies of thousands of radio stations the Nation over.

Encased in heavy metal many times its size in the radio transmitting station of the Bureau of Standards on the experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., the quartz, through many amplifiers, sends its message each Tuesday from Maine to California and from Florida to Washington.

It is vibrated electrically, and the amplifiers increase its frequency, as the waves dart out into the ether, to 5,000,000 per second. In a fraction of a second the transmission reaches the Pacific Coast, and in another fraction it leaps the Pacific to Australia and the Orient, where stations often use it much as the Federal Radio Commission does.

Dr. Dellinger in Charge.

Supervising the work of the Bureau of Standards station is a mild mannered, studious expert, Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the radio section of the Bureau of Standards. Associated with the Government in scientific work since 1907, Dr. Dellinger has watched the radio grow from an infant in swaddling clothes to a towering giant, reaching powerful fingers to the pulse of the world.

Efficiency is the keynote of the vibrating quartz and the regulatory message it flashes to the Nation. As far as Dr. Dellinger knows, the work at the Beltsville station is the most efficient known to the scientific world. Its ratio is 99.999,999 per cent correct.

"This means that if we could apply such a ratio of efficiency to a clock, it would vary only one second every three years," asserts Dr. Dellinger.

Has Three Assistants.

Dr. Dellinger, a graduate of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Princeton and George Washington Universities, is assisted by E. L. Hall, in charge of the frequency division of the Bureau of Standards. W. D. George is in direct charge of the Beltsville station. His first assistant is J. H. Lester.

The Bureau of Standards Station is 10 years old. It first was established at the Bureau of Standards itself, and later removed to College Park, Md. About a year and a half ago the present station on the experimental farm was acquired.

The weekly measuring stick of wave-length, characterized by Dr. Dellinger as the "traffic cop of the ether" is utilized not only by the Radio Commission in its wave-length allotments, but by thousands of radio dealers and manufacturers.

It is the product of the growth of the radio. Back in 1920 enthusiasts began to discard their earphones, with which they had exchanged messages with other radio fanciers. Stations multiplied, hence the need of the wave-length regulation.

Two other authentic stations in the world are engaged in similar work. Both of these are smaller than the Bureau of Standards station. They are the Nauen station, in a suburb of Berlin, and the Lafayette station, in Bordeaux, France. deaux, France.

Post Staff Photo.

A tiny bit of quartz, vibrating 100,000 times per second, regulates wave frequency the Nation over. E. L. Hall, in charge of the Beltsville station of the Bureau of Standards, is holding a piece of quartz identical in size and makeup with the one contained in the black case.

2 "Pickets" Arrested At German Embassy

Two alleged Communists, who essayed to "picket" the German Embassy yesterday in protest against the Hitler regime, were forcibly removed by police and required to deposit $25 collateral each for their appearance in Police Court.

The men gave their names as Joe Zameres, 22 of the 100 block of Four-and-a-Half street southwest, and Sarkin Avadakian, 34, of 600 block, Pennsylvania avenue northwest. They were charged with parading without a permit and violation of the sign regulations.

Boys Capture Theft Suspect After Man Escapes Robbers

James Kalcles, of 1320 Tenth street northwest, fought off two men who attempted to rob him in an upstairs room in the 600 block of F street northwest, last night, escaped to the street and saved $283 he carried in his pocketbook, he told police.

The two men pursued Kalcles down stairs but fled when they reached the street he said. Three boys, between the ages of 14 and 16, pursued the men and at Fifth and E streets captured a suspect, who told police he was Pete C. Pettlas, 42, of the F street address.

Another spectator, whose name was not given by police, captured a second man, who said he was Nick D. Zanzas, 38, of the same address. Both were held for investigation.

Rich Indian's Widow Sues For $200,000

Charges "Imposters" Keep Barnett Estate Tied Up in Courts.

Charging that some of the "heirs" who are filing claims against her husband's estate are "imposters," Mrs. Anna Laura Barnett, widow of Jackson Barnett, millionaire oil Indian who died last month, yesterday filed in the District Supreme Court an affidavit requesting that she be given a share of the money her husband has here.

Barnett, who bore the distinction of being the world's wealthiest Indian, deposited $200,000 in Liberty bonds at the Riggs National Bank many years ago. The bonds were supposed to be a trust fund to care for him in time of stress or need.

However, the Government, contending the Indian was not competent to care for his affairs, moved to set aside the trust and restore the money to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, where it could be administered for his benefit. The suit has been pending before Justice F. D. Letts in the District Supreme Court for a year.

Mrs. Barnett's suit, filed in the form of an affidavit by herself, declared that her husband's money was being used as a "political football." She said that imposters have kept the Barnett estate tied up in litigation from California to Washington for years.

Mrs. Barnett insisted that "the entire amount be returned immediately." Barnett gained most of his wealth when oil was discovered upon lands which had been allotted to him as a Creek Indian.

Justice Letts is awaiting the filing of briefs to determine the question of legality of the trust here, which has grown considerably by reason of the accrual of interest since its inception many years ago.

Mrs. Barnett's affidavit purported to quote excerpts from a letter written her by Representative Harold McGuigin, of Kansas, who wrote that there had been "a lot of outrages in this Barnett case." He acted at one time as Barnett's lawyer.

Barnett once gave away hundreds of thousands of dollars, but most of his gifts were returned by court order when he was declared mentally incompetent.

"Fan My Brow!" Theme of Music-Loving Thief

Hot weather and an ear for music apparently actuated a thief who entered the apartment of Miss Emma Tiner, of 512 Second street northwest, yesterday and took four canary birds, a cage and an electric fan.

The owner asked police to do something about it.

Young Guides Await Visitors At Orphanage

Joseph's Home, Chest Agency, Holds "Open House" Today.

Nearly 75 excited small boys are waiting eagerly to take Washingtonians by the hand today to show them through St. Joseph's Home and School, an orphanage managed by the Sisters of the Holy Cross, Bunkerhill road and Eastern avenue northeast.

For the first time in their eventful lives they are to play host at an "open house" to nearly 2,000 District residents who have promised to inspect the home and see how the boys live and how the Washington Community Chest uses contributed funds in maintaining local charities.

Few of the boys, whose ages range from 6 to 12, have had the motherly care that most small boys experience. The chance to take "real" mothers and fathers by their eager, grubby hands for a few hours of companionship has sent a wave of enthusiasm amongst them all.

They will take visitors in charge personally. The visitors will see—plus charming small-boy comments—the rooms in which the boys sleep, their recreation rooms, laundry, kitchens, playrooms, Boy Scout exhibits, and a comedy playlet the youngsters have prepared.

Visitors will hear choice, expert and spirited selections on the harmonica by 11-year-old Nelson Govert, and Risdon Schroth, 13, will give a speech of welcome.

The program starts at 7:15 p. m. with the lowering of the flag, which Boy Scouts will execute amid bugle notes and appropriate observance. For the next hour the boys will show visitors around. Then the real "show" begins with juvenile speeches, a play and music, and the evening will end with the lighting of the council fire by the Scouts at 8:45 p. m. Tents have been set up, including a hospital tent, where the boys will give demonstrations of first aid.

Boy Scout troops from many parts of the District will be present as a guard of honor, headed by Col. E. L. Mattice, assistant to the District Scout commissioner. Police from the Twelfth Precinct will direct traffic and guide visitors. The home is reached by driving out Rhode Island avenue to Eastern avenue and turning left. Signs will direct visitors the rest of the way.

This is the first "open house" arranged by the Washington Community Chest to enable Washingtonians to see how their contributions are used in maintaining local charities. Others will follow during the summer, up until campaign time in October.

Sunday Schools Hold Outing.

St. Georges Chapel and Perkins Chapel Sunday schools, Glenn Dale, Md., will hold a joint outing today at Edgewater Beach.

D. C. To Cancel All 'Kick-Back' Men's Contracts

Wage-Balancing Board Is Created to Check Infractions.

A policy of cancellation of all contracts in which employes are victimized by "kick-back" practices was adopted yesterday by District Commissioners, who created a wage compliance board to check infactions of the Bacon-Davis law.

The board will be headed by Assistant Engineer Commissioner Howard F. Clark. Others to be named are Roland M. Brennan, chief clerk of the Engineer Department; Engineer of Sewers A. B. Black, Engineer of Streets L. P. Robertson, Chief Building Inspector L. C. Wormington and Assistant Corporation Counsel W. H. Wahly.

Although the board is not vested with power to protect the jobs of workmen who may complain of unfair treatment from employers, Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals said that the Commissioners have authority to revoke the employer's contract.

Prettyman Proposal.

The proposal for the wage compliance board came after Maj. Gotwals had studied a recommendation of Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman, who advocated contract cancellations in all cases of proved violations of the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage law.

The board will supervise, through various departments, the methods of enforcing wage rate provisions, will see that pay schedules are prominently posted by contractors, check pay-offs, verify individual payments and, if possible, obtain for each pay-off a certificate of the contractor and craftsmen that the proper payment has been made.

"Kick-back" practices in Federal and District construction projects were recently investigated by a Senate committee, headed by Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts. Evidence resulted in the revocation recommendation of Corporation Counsel Prettyman.

The board will look for wage provision violations on only District construction projects. Contracts total $4,000,000. All projects financed from PWA funds will be checked by Federal inspectors, Maj. Gotwals said.

Gotwals Recommendation.

In his recommendation to the board, Maj. Gotwals said:

"Our experience in enforcing the Bacon-Davis law, as well as the requirements of the national recovery act, leads now to special action toward the uniform enforcement in all departments of the wage provisions. The breaches arising are known as "kick-backs," underpayments or improper classifications on the work. The objective is to discover, correct and prevent all of these practices.

"Proved breaches of these wage requirements should lead to cancellation of the contract of the general contractor or the subcontractor, and if at all possible, under the law, contractors or subcontractors failing to maintain the prevailing wage or other wage requirements should be refused acceptance as responsible bidders or as subcontractors."

Roomer Found Dead In Rear of Lodgings

Andrew McClellan, 64, occupant of a rooming house at 235 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was found dead yesterday morning in an areaway in the rear of the building. Apparently he had fallen from the fire escape, police reported. An autopsy was ordered.

Car-Death Rise Laid to Victims

Pedestrians Rather Than Drivers Are Blamed by Eldridge.

Pedestrians rather than motorists were held responsible by Assistant Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge yesterday for the increasing traffic toll that in the first six months of 1934 has taken 66 lives and trebled fatalities for June compared to June, 1933.

Eight of the nine traffic victims in June, according to a Traffic Bureau report, were pedestrians. In each of the eight cases the victim was violating some regulation—either playing in the street, crossing the street between crosswalks or crossing against a traffic signal at a controlled intersection. In June last year, three were killed.

The Department of Vehicles and Traffic, headed by W. A. Van Duzer and Eldridge, is preparing a program of pedestrian education and control to stem the growing fatality rate, Eldridge said yesterday.

In addition to the 9 deaths, 345 persons were injured in the 645 accidents last month. A total of 6,241 motorists were arrested. Of these, 2,892 were for parking violations and 785 for speeding.

Man Hit by Auto May Die of Hurts

Driver Who Hit Colorado Pedestrian Not Held.

Edward T. Shanahan, 54, occupant of a rooming house at 105 D street northeast, was injured, probably fatally, when struck by an automobile as he attempted to cross Massachusetts avenue in front of the Postoffice Building last night.

Shanahan was taken to Casualty Hospital in an unconscious condition suffering from brain concussion and lacerations. The driver of the car, said by police to be Walter Potts, 42, of 624 Maryland avenue northeast, was not held.

Shanahan, who had engaged the D street room yesterday, told the proprietor his home was in Colorado and that he had been in Washington two weeks. He said his wife left the city yesterday, but did not say where she had gone.

Radio Waves and Ripples

July 6.

TO ye City Editor, keeper of our soul (?) and what a Washington summer has left of our miserable body, greetings, &c.

Thee may well remember with what scorn and dubiety thee regarded our timid person last evening when we approached to inform thee of our intention of sallying forth into a night of auditions with the National Broadcasting Companies.

Sally forth we did, though thee may well then have held our veracitie suspect and may even now wish to make carefull examination of our mentall properties.

We wish, therefore, to give thee a detailed and faithfull accounting of our experiences on this night, but an inherent kindlyness of spirit and a desire on all occasions for an avoidance of libel, a craving which thee well appreciate prevents. It must then suffice our purposes that we report that we did, in truth, attend said auditions and that, contrary to a not altogether unreasonable notion you did doubtless cherish of this affair, the evening was not one of pleasure, but of honest toil.

For on the morrow, at 10 oclock p. m., it will be the lot of the young men and ladies who write of radio for the journals of this citie, to aid in the broadcastings of a programme of entertainment the companie for which needs—for some reason never rightly understood by us—be compiled from such talent as the town provides.

Before submitting this to your generous sympathies, we would beseech your greater wisdom for replies to certain questions that did arise during the turbulence of the aforementioned audition, of which the following are several:

Why must we ever have tenors whose voices do tremble in a manner to suggest their singing from the rear of a jolting artillery caisson?

Why must the female young of our land sing from their throats when these members are in laryngitic pain?

Why must a pianist of no common ability devote himeslf with ardor and asiduity to ballading?

And why must a soprano endowed by Heaven with sweet and pleasing tones wish to emulate our justly beloved Lily Pons though singing "Boy of Mine?"

DAVID PERCY, your barytone on National's Manhattan Merry - Go - Round shows.

DOROTHY PAGE gave up modeling for magazine covers when she won a Paul Whiteman audition. She works for N. B. C. three times a week.

This proves definitely that it is the first 150 times which are the hardest.

For exactly that many weeks the Royal Hawaiians have poured plaintive, aboriginal music down the WOL kilocycles "just for the fun of it."

Monday at 6:30 p. m. they make their 151st broadcast—and get paid for it by a Capital coffee concern.

The Hawaiians aren't really Hawaiians at all. They're Walter Cox, John Fillingame, Will Rollins and Arthur Murray, and they live right here in Washington. Their contract calls for 13 weeks of profitable music making.

Strange as it seems, one of America's earliest game laws was directed, not to the protection of wild life, but to the safeguarding of domesticated beef herds. By a law enacted in 1703 in Carolina it became illegal for hunters to shoot cattle. Up to that time hunters used to stalk cattle in the woods and on grasslands, much like they would elk or deer.

Some of the herds were actually half wild, having wandered away from herds pastured on unfenced lands by Southern planters. They bore no mark of identification or brand, and to all appearances were without owners. The law, strangely, forbade only the killing of unmarked cattle.

Georges Clemenceau, French statesman, who is remembered widely as the "Tiger of France," had one of the strangest eccentricities on record. He put on a complete suit of clothes, complete even to white gloves, each night before he retired. The night dress of Clemenceau included an ordinary unstarched shirt, business suit, vest and all, collar, tie, and shoes.

White gloves he wore night and day—a habit he is said to have acquired during his days as a criminologist to keep his fingerprints off of objects which he handled.

London Editor To Fill Pulpit At Cathedral

Rev. Benjamin Gregory, Mehtodist Minister, Speaks Tomorrow.

The Rev. Benjamin Gregory, editor of The Methodist Times and Leader, published in London, will deliver the sermon at the evensong services at Washington Cathedral at 4 p. m. tomorrow, by invitation of the Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. As one of England's noted Methodist ministers, Dr. Gregory has been active in the cause of reunion, and has been a prominent member of all the conferences at Lambeth Palace between the bishops of the Church of England and the Free Church ministers. In addition to his editorial duties, which are carried on at Temple House, Dr. Gregory has been in charge for some years of one of the leading Methodist churches in the suburbs of London. At one time he preached in a large hall in the East End of London, where the present Bishop of London frequently attended his services.

Faith Rewards Israel

By William T. Ellis.

It seems as if the history of the ancient Jews is set to the music of Kipling's "Recessional." If one were to record it in a graph, such as the business statisticians of today use, it would be a zig-zagging line showing how the Nation prospered when it was loyal to Jehovah, and slumped when it was recreant to Him. The lesson is very clear, and very timely.

This truth is old-fashioned; yet like the styles in women's dresses, it is coming into vogue again. Within the past year we have heard and read many utterances by "practical" men, in business and in politics, to the effect that our times most of all need to get back to the sterling simplicities of religion. This is not mere pious talk, meant to please the church folk: It is the sober conclusion of thoughtful men, who have weighed the comparative efficiency of all the new methods proposed or tried for world restoration, and have deliberately voted for—God.

There is more to this revived old program than a prudent plan. To restore the strong, simple teachings of Scripture, so that Nations and individuals will govern their conduct by God's law, is only part of the process. Back of it lies the sublime truth that whoever goes God's way shares God's power. Divine enabling for a new life accompanies a willingness to attempt it. And it surely needs some such supernatural empowerment to qualify mankind to return to ways of peace and brotherhood and righteousness.

King Asa Holds a Revival.

There has been no scheme evolved at Geneva that can compare with this one, the value of which even worldly eyes can see, for a revival of simple religious loyalty in the hearts of humanity. If we seek God, we shall find everything else for which we are looking.

King Asa saw and followed this truth. In the fifteenth year of his reign, after he had heard a moving message from a preacher of righteousness, the Prophet Azariah, he called the nation together at Jerusalem, for a great revival meeting.

We may think that mass meetings at the capital city—such as Hitler recently held in Berlin, Mussolini in Rome and the Bonus Marchers in Washington and the unemployed in Ottawa—are a new idea. Turn back to these old Jewish records and see how it was done in Asa's day, and at other times. There is power in crowds. That is why alert churchmen and citizens are keen for the community demonstrations that will mark National Recognition Day for Sunday school teachers on October 6. Mass meetings are in themselves a message. Sound psychology underlies this old-new fashion in large popular assemblies.

We have a vivid picture of our own day in these words by Azariah, the fearless prophet: "In those times there was no peace to him that went out, nor to him that came in, but great vexations were upon all the inhabitants of the countries. And nation was destroyed of nation, and city of city: for God did vex them with all adversity."

Not only Asa's subjects of Judah and Benjamin, attended the mass meeting but also many hungry-hearted men from the Northern Kingdom, eager to express allegiance to Jehovah.

But let us go back a few years in the story. Jeroboam, the first king of the northern confederation of Israel, had continued on his evil, godless way. His son, Nadab, succeeded him, and he, too, "did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the way of his father, and in his sin, wherewith he made Israel to sin." A conspiracy, led by Baasha, killed Nadab, and wiped out every other descendant of Jeroboam, making himself king. It was with Baasha that Asa warred during most of his reign.

Two great events stand out in the reign of good King Asa. The first was his spectacular victory over the vastly larger army of the Ethiopians, who had attacked Judah. Confronted by this host of a million men, with three hundred war chariots, Asa, in fear and yet in faith, cried out to Jehovah for help, in a famous prayer that makes good reading today.

A Prophet Is Hushed.

Apparently, King Asa's faith faltered, when, later, King Baasha of Israel began to prepare war against him. For he sent gifts and a mission to King Ben-Hadad of Syria seeking his aid, and with this ally they soundly defeated the Northern Kingdom. It was an act of unbelief in Jehovah's protecting power. Asa's trust in a military alliance reflects the day's news from Europe.

There was not lacking a brave prophet to tell the king so: "Were not the Ethiopians and the Lubims a huge host, with very many chariots and horsemen? Yet, because thou didst rely on the Lord, He delivered them into thine hand."

The prophet made Asa mad. The king was getting old, and more dictatorial and less spiritually sensitive. So he threw the prophet in jail; free speech is no new issue.

King Asa was good, and God-fearing, most of the time; and thereby brought blessings to his people.

But mixed blood ran in his veins. His father, King Abijah, and his grandfather, King Rehoboam, seem to have derived their qualities from the worst side of their ancestor, King Solomon.

Back of these, however, was great-great-grandfather David; and Asa seemed to inherit from him. So we are encouraged to take a long look at life. When the Younger Generation becomes "flaming youth," and gives itself to folly, we recall the clean, pure blood that flows in its veins, and the noble ideals of character and of godliness that it has inherited, and we trust to time to repeat once more the experience of the Jews. After Rehoboam and Abijah comes in Asa; after an orgy of fleshliness comes revival and reform. For over all stands God, still Ruler of His world.

Literary Shrines.

The London Times is authority for the statement that "of all houses still standing in which illustrious spirits have lodged," that of Shakespeare has alone entertained more guests than the little home in Chelsea where Thomas Carlyle and his wife settled just a century ago. Does this signify that Carlyle, next to Shakespeare, is the most widely read of English authors?

This is hardly conceivable. Nor is it probable that Carlyle's life has interested more people than those of other writers. The peculiar public curiosity about Carlyle's home, where he wrote "Frederick the Great" in the double-walled room on the top floor, defying London's uproar and fog, is a literary mystery. Perhaps its accessibility has something to do with its shrine-like qualities. A more likely reason is that every schoolboy and girl has had to read some of Carlyle, and has subconsciously absorbed an interest in that strange man.

Visiting literary shrines is a peculiarity of human nature, indulged in by others than school teachers on a holiday. Those who trek toward New England in summer visit Concord, and more stop off at Louisa Alcott's house than at the site of the embattled farmers' bridge. Throughout New England such foci are almost innumerable. Visiting them lends a reality to the books previously read. We know of one person who, on his first visit to Washington, paid first respects to that heavy brick house where Henry Adams lived and wrote. How many Washingtonians know where it is? Or if it still stands?

The person with the true literary bent seeks out the unusual. Thousands who go to London visit the popularized retreat of Dr. Johnson at the Cheshire Cheese. But how many are led to find the house once occupied by that irascible old crustacean Jeremy Bentham and later, until paying the rent came too hard, by William Hazlitt, who lived so many unhappy days of his "happy life" there with his dowdy and nagging wife? Is it possible that any visitor to Boston ever troubled himself to find the South End birthplace of the father of modern American architecture, Louis Sullivan?

The shrines of the illustrious are worth visiting, but the real enjoyment of leisurely travel is discovering the odd little places that bear no bronze markers. For there were written those minor classics that are read for enjoyment and not because they are on the lists of the classrooms.

At Charlottesville.

The discussion and debates that have been in progress this week at the University of Virginia, where the Institute of Public Affairs is holding its annual meeting, have been of high character. Those who have had the privilege of attending these meetings in the past, and of joining in the informal discussions that are a feature of the proceedings, value especially the opportunities for free interchange of opinion which is a feature of the Institute.

It is asking too much to hope that the man in the street will acquire a grasp of the problems of international politics and finance that will enable him to follow with profit the technical and analytical discourses of the experts at Charlottesville. This year they have discussed subjects ranging from the pacific settlement of international disputes to restoration of an international gold standard.

Nevertheless, public opinion is insensibly moulded by dispassionate and critical discussion of such topics. Through newspapers, magazines and conversational interchange, the proceedings of conferences like this exert a spreading influence. It extends far beyond the circle of those who have been present either as active participants or as auditors.

"The Thirsty Land."

Civilization has increased man's desires, but has failed to lessen his necessities. That truth must have come home, yesterday, to everyone who read Hilding Siversen's Iowa dispatch descriptive of "what probably will go down in Midwest annals as the Great Drought of 1934."

The tale is one of soil blown hundreds of miles away by scorching winds, of utterly ruined crops, of dying cattle, of men, women, children who faced actual starvation. And it is a tragedy for which the sole remedy is the simple remedy of water.

There is scarcely a simple primitive religion without its water-god as a benevolent and vital deity. And the symbolic value of water as an indispensable factor of life continues in Christianity, itself a religion originating among a people who well knew the importance of the life-giving element. To scan the references to water in the Concordance is to prove the point.

Once, while Paul Claudel was the Ambassador of France in Washington, he commented on the extent to which the ancient Hebrews attributed to water, not divinity, but certain qualities commonly associated with divinity. Whereupon a colleague, himself from a rainless land, replied: "The ancient Hebrews didn't 'attribute' those qualities to water; they simply recognized that water possesses them."

Water and sunlight: they are the twin forces of nature upon which all life depends. Upon them it has depended since first "there was light" and since first "a river went out of Eden to water the garden."

Payment—For The British.

An agreement has been reached between Great Britain and Germany providing for payment of interest to British holders of Dawes and Young Plan bonds during the next six months. Although the trade war which threatened has been averted, the means employed to force concessions from Germany create serious misgivings.

The British had passed a law which would have enabled the Government to seize German commercial balances and apply them to debt payments, in case Germany insisted upon extending the transfer moratorium to cover her specially guaranteed bond issues. In face of this threat, the Germans have agreed to make an exception in favor of the British.

British holders of Dawes and Young Plan bonds have no better rights to receive payment than American owners of these securities. Yet because Germany sells more to Great Britain than she buys from her, the British government has been able to obtain more than a fair proportionate share of Germany's vanishing exchange resources. Our State Department has vigorously protested, and should continue to protest, against exceptions of this character, previously extended to Dutch and Swiss owners of German securities. We have good reason to feel particularly outraged at this latest example of favoritism at our expense.

Since this country sells much more to Germany than we buy from her, we are unable to follow the British tactics. And if we could, we should be above so doing. The only decent way to settle the question is to determine how much Germany can pay to all holders of Dawes and Young Plan bonds, and then apportion that sum on an equitable basis. The system of offsetting trade balances against payments on debt account, if carried to its logical conclusion, would confine trade and capital movements to ever more severely restricted channels.

When the economist states that debts have to be paid by an export of goods, he does not mean that every lending country must buy more from a particular borrowing country than it sells to that borrower. He merely means that in the long run, taking all classes of operations into account, foreign debits and credits must balance. Consequently, if a country is a net creditor in dealings with the rest of the world, it must be prepared to receive goods on balance from the rest of the world.

That does not justify creditors' efforts to secure preferential treatment in an individual case, simply because they are in a position to seize trade balances. The British have themselves protested most vigorously against the special concessions formerly made to the Dutch and the Swiss. By following the example of the latter they have dealt a blow to American creditors which is the more exasperating because it follows on the heels of, and is inconsistent with the arguments favoring, their war debt default.

Still Life.

Having, not long ago, settled in these erudite columns the proper pronunciation of tomato, it becomes appropriate to proceed to other vegetable issues. Prominent among these is the proper method of eating corn on the cob. This momentous question pops up annually and, because of the universality of corn, deserves far wider discussion than the pros and cons of dunking corn pone, or whether the mint in juleps should be crushed.

Corn on the cob, as our Women's Page Editor will be the first to admit, should never be indulged in at the stooled and countered restaurant. If it is served therein, for a slight cover charge one should be entitled to three seats, of which those on both port and starboard should be left vacant. For corn on the cob needs room. The cob should never be broken, but grasped firmly by each end, thoroughly drenched in butter, salted to taste, and eaten, elbows out, regardless of neighbors or necktie.

No other way should be permitted. That's the way it has been eaten since the first Puritan discovered its delight. Even in the dark dining rooms of old Marlboro street in Boston one eats corn in that fashion, although an old custom sanctions those of Brahmin stock to tuck white linen napkins in their immaculate bosoms. However, in the country it is eaten only one way—with gusto! That is the invariable rule, from the Kennebunk to Kansas, and what they say elsewhere doesn't count.

Having settled this more briefly than we anticipated, we offer a postcript to the effect that, as a fruit, there is only one kind of raspberry. The raspberry is a firm, red berry, rather seedy, but even more delightful in flavor than corn on the cob. It is not to be confused with the blackberry, a tough, fibrous product, edible only if off the vine less than an hour, but which makes wine of the finest flavor.

To ask, as Washington waitresses do, which kind of raspberries—red or black—one will have, is callow to the point of insult. Let the custom cease! To such ignorance we say, with feeling, Raspberries!

The New Caribbean Policy.

President Roosevelt's visit to Haiti serves to emphasize the significant evolution which has been taking place in the relations of the United States to Latin-America. He was greeted by President Stenio Vincent, the first constitutional executive the island republic has had for 15 years. Expressions of mutual friendship were exchanged, and the Haitian people rejoiced to hear from our Chief Executive that "relations between the two countries are being restored to a complete basis of independence."

The story of the United States' policy toward Haiti is not without unsavory chapters. Since 1915 this Caribbean republic has been largely under the domination of American marines. Governments at Port-au-Prince have been weak and unstable, revolts have been frequent, and open warfare has flared up on at least one occasion. When conditions approached a crisis in 1930 President Hoover sent the Forbes Commission to the island to investigate. A threatened uprising was averted, constitutional government was restored, the existing regime was elected and a new period of negotiations began.

The Haitian President visited Washington a few months ago and extended conferences brought about a complete understanding between the two governments. It provides for the complete withdrawal of American financial and military control. The President has extended to Haiti his "good neighbor" policy, also exemplified by non-interference with the revolutionary governments in Cuba and abrogation of the Platt Amendment. He has given practical effect to the high-minded ideals enunciated by Secretary Hull at Montevideo.

Resentment against the United States in South and Central America grew up largely as a result of our policies in Haiti, Nicaragua and Cuba. Of late years remarkable advance toward improved relations with each of these countries has been made. When the marines leave Haiti, the last source of friction between this country and the southern republics should be removed. It is a signal achievement for which the President and Secretary Hull deserve a large measure of commendation.

Unfair And Uneconomic.

The R. F. C. has offered to lend funds to the B. & O. Railroad at 5 per cent, despite the fact that the road can obtain a loan through established banking channels at a rate very slightly higher. Nobody has attempted to assert that this difference provides for more than a reasonable allowance to cover the legitimate costs of the financing operation.

It is yet to be demonstrated that this is not a clear case of competition, both uneconomic and unfair, as that term is ordinarily understood today. In charging the borrower a flat 5 per cent, the Government is making no allowance for the overhead costs of operations which will have to be met by the taxpayer, whether he realizes it or not. The Government also has the advantage of being able to issue tax-exempt securities, whereas holders of privately-issued securities must allow for tax charges in computing net returns on their investment.

Moreover, in the particular instance under consideration, the R. F. C. occupies a strategic position in relation to the borrowing road, because of the heavy indebtedness the latter had previously contracted.

The Government may properly intervene to prevent exploitation when it takes the form of overcharging consumers or exacting usurious rates of interest from borrowers. It is a very different matter, however, for a Government agency to utilize the public purse in order to beat down interest rates. An Administration that has devoted so much effort to the suppression of unfair competitive practices such as selling below costs, and ruthless undercutting of prices to destroy rival concerns, ought to avoid all appearance of competitive unfairness in its own dealings with private industry.

In undercutting the bid of private banking interests, without making full allowance for necessary costs, the R. F. C., therefore, lays itself open to serious criticism. The procedure is unfair to the taxpayer, who should not be forced to share in the financing of a particular railroad; to other railroads, which have borrowed at market rates; to the bankers who can not compete with the Government as lenders; and most of all it is unfair to the Administration's professions regarding the desirability of reviving private investment activity.

Sound Bookkeeping.

A significant change has been made in the weekly statements of the Federal Reserve Banks by elimination of an asset item of $139,299,000, representing stock of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The segregation of the FDIC stock is a highly desirable change in accounting procedure for a number of reasons. The stock should not, in any case, be carried at face value, since it is subject to depreciation through payment by the guaranty fund of deposits of failed banks. Moreover, the Reserve Banks are for all practical purposes only holding the stock for account of the Treasury. It is not a bona-fide investment, since any dividends received have to be transferred to the Treasury.

If the Federal Reserve Banks should expand their loans to industry beyond the amount of their existing surplus, they may, under the recently passed Industrial Loan Act, apply for a return of funds equal to the amount invested in FDIC stock. However, they would still retain their stock holdings and they would have to pay interest to the Treasury out of earnings of the additional funds allocated to them.

Consequently, it is evident that the Federal Reserve Banks are acting merely as agencies for the Treasury in handling the FDIC stock. The decision to "write off" these holdings is a frank recognition of that fact and has the advantage of eliminating assets of uncertain value which yield no returns to the banks supposed to own them.

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

SENATOR BORAH precipitated a heated debate when he said: "If I can not get the consent of the Senate to have this Nicaragua treaty considered in the open I will be forced to disregard the rules of the Senate. I believe this treaty is based upon deception and misrepresentation, upon fraud, tyranny and corruption, and I am prepared to show it."

Letters to the Editor

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

The State of the Nation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Borah, in his Fourth of July oration on the state of the Nation, did not speak with his usual clarity and logic. Whatever the Senator says is interesting and because of his great oratorical ability commands wide attention.

The Senator severely condemned the Government control of cotton. He said, "The Government has as much right under the Constitution to say that the newspapers of the country should be limited in circulation and curtailed in issue as it has by law to curtail the acreage of our wheat fields." Such a comparison is not correct. The control of the production of cotton is an economic measure. The number of newspapers published is not. No attempt has or will be made by the Government to add to or curtail the number of newspapers published. In no single instance has the Government attempted to exercise control over any private business which is not possessed of a social or economic interest. The Government has attempted to secure a newspaper code in the interest of abolishing child labor and shortening of hours.

With oratorical effect the Senator refers to "benumbing the hand of the editor." As well talk about benumbing the mind of the Senator, and why did not the Senator include free speech as long as he was defending the press against the encroachments of Governmental control? The Senator might just as well assail the Government in attempting to dictate the color of the horse he rides or the number of suits of clothes he possesses or what he can and can not eat.

It was no less a personage than Senator Borah who a few years ago demanded the right of the Government to dictate what a man should not drink. What about "liberty" then, Senator? You justify this action in the interests of the common good and I stood shoulder to shoulder with you. In the interest of the common good, at a time when the country is suffering from overproduction because of the lack of purchasing power among the people, the Government can and does limit the number of acres devoted to agriculture. This in its final analysis is not a question of personal liberty. It is a question of the common good and this is paramount to personal liberty. So the Senator argued about the eighteenth amendment.

The Senator complains that certain rights are being "chiseled away." This is true. The right of the banker to conduct his business as he sees fit is being "chiseled away" in the interest of the common good. He has been compelled by law to go out of the investment banking business. Is this wise or unwise? The stock exchange has had the rights of its members to rig the market "chiseled away." This is a proper curtailment of personal liberty in the interest of the common good. Investment houses have been told how they must legally make known the facts about the securities they have for sale.

But the Senator's deepest concern is for the sacredness of the Constitution. Jesus asked, "Was the Sabbath made for man or was man made for the Sabbath?" Is the Constitution made for man or is man made for the Constitution is a pertinent question to ask now. Happily the Supreme Court, in its recent decisions, has held that the Constitution is no barrier to legislation for the public good. The Constitution is not a sacred document vested with the attributes of holy writ. The thing that is sacred is humanity and the welfare of human beings is paramount to the perpetuity of the Constitution if these two things should come in conflict. But they will not come in conflict unless the strict constitutionalists like Senator Borah and James M. Beck have their way.

A campaign of negation is not enough. The Senator may think he can arouse the passions of the people by his panegyrics on liberty and freedom. The people have heard such oratory ever since the Nation was founded and it will be as sounding brass or tinkling cymbal if they are without food and raiment. Now that 5,000,000 of the unemployed have jobs, though these jobs may be uncertain and of short duration, because others must work, too, they will not be interested in the charge which the Senator makes that the help which has come to them has been at the sacrifice of liberty and freedom. In effect the worker will say: "If my hunger can be appeased and my family cared for, the Senator will be allowed to satisfy the longing of his soul to convince the people that the New Deal infringes upon liberty and freedom."

If the President should issue a proclamation tomorrow that all codes were off, big and little business alike would set up a storm of protest. The voice of labor, too, would be heard against such a move.

When all the Darrow committee criticisms have been made, and some of them no doubt are valid, there still remains so much to the credit of the New Deal that there is scarcely any question that an unmistakable vote of confidence will be given the President next fall. WILLIAM E. SWEET.

Washington, July 6.

"The Opening Gun."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of July 4 entitled "The Opening Gun," is a sound exposition of what should determine the general policy of the Republican party in the Congressional elections this fall. There should be more than negative criticism. There should be affirmative advocacy or corrective measures. Mr. Fletcher's address seems to have ignored this distinction.

A picture may be too large and intricate to be comprehended by the average mind, and it may be serviceable to reduce the picture to a miniature, as astronomers reduce sections of the heavens to photographic plates before reaching their conclusions and determining the course to be pursued in future.

Suppose that Mr. Fletcher were entrusted with the absolute government of an island of 1,000 inhabitants and when he took charge he found that 100 of them were normally unemployed and destitute; that 800 of them were normally self-supporting from their annual earnings, but had acquired a new and incurable habit of living (like the maintenance of automobiles) which consumed more than their net earnings and had reduced their general purchasing power almost to zero, and that the other 100 were possessed of wealth exceeding every earthly need. What would he do to prevent suffering and promote the general welfare of the island?

This illustration fairly represents the conditions and the proportions, today, of our 122,000,000 population. It represents the great unsolved problem of our Government, which surpasses in importance all adherence to political parties. If the chairman of the Republican National Committee can suggest an affirmative solution he will be entitled not only to Republican support, but to a respectful Democratic audience.

G. M. DILLARD.

Scottsville, Va., July 4.

The Maryland Governorship.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to congratulate you on your excellent editorial in the issue of June 27 regarding the Maryland gubernatorial situation, in which you emphasized that Maryland is, indeed, fortunate in having at the helm of the ship of state, during these trying times, such an unusually able and conscientious public servant as Albert C. Ritchie.

I note that a dissenting view is expressed in a letter to The Post from a correspondent on the Eastern Shore, published in your June 30 issue. Your correspondent referred to the declaration in the State constitution to the effect that long continuance in office "is dangerous to liberty." However true this declaration may be in the abstract, it should be observed that the constitution places no specific limit on the governorship, and I greatly doubt that any one seriously believes, for one minute, that liberty in the "Maryland Free State" would be endangered by another term for so stanch an exponent of democracy as Gov. Ritchie.

Why this sudden danger, after Ritchie's years of satisfactory service and his reelections by ever-increasing majorities? Would the capable and experienced head of a business concern be ousted merely because of the length of his tenure of office? The answer is obvious. And I venture the opinion that no one in Maryland is more familiar with, or better equipped for, the business of State government than the present Governor.

Can Any One Help L. G.?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: By way of celebrating this holiday, I am going to get off my mind a couple of little things that have aroused my curiosity this long time. The first is the way local amusement places refuse to reveal their addresses. The visitor from abroad might describe it as a "quaintly naive custom," but I think it plain bad business. Obviously regular inhabitants of the District, or frequent visitors, know the locations of the local attractions. But just let Washington's thousands of tourists try to select entertainment and then find it, from your advertising columns. You certainly aren't giving away space; but for your advertisers to take space, and then skimp on the few extra cents that it would cost to give their addresses, seems the height of folly.

As for another and much different item. Why is there no "J" street in the District? Does anybody know? In all my contacts with oldest inhabitants I never found one who knew, and only one who even attempted an explanation, which while plausible, was not authentic. And along the same lines, how did California get to be the only State without an avenue? Yes, it has a street. And while I think of it. Why don't the Trinidad buses bear "Union Station" signs? I'll bet the transit company a week's pass that the revenue on that line would jump 15 per cent if they did

To the Editor of The Post: Sir—Permit me to congratulate you on your editorial, even if humorously sarcastic, in The Post of July 6, headed "Sauce for the Goose." That the present Secretary of Agriculture and his close associates look upon themselves as above the law (that is a definition of a dictator according to a legal periodical I have before me) is patent to many of us. Personally, I hope Secretary Wallace will be taught a much needed lesson by the courts in Maryland. J. C. COX.

IT may seem odd to you that all the letters we have not received this week should show a political consciousness. But we have long observed that people in and about Washington always begin to take an interest in things political soon after Congress adjourns. So here you are!

Dear Sir: Like most American citizens of today, I note that our present President is beguiling his vacation by indulgence in the art of Isaac Walton. What, I should like to have somebody tell me, is the subtle connection between occupancy of the White House and fishing? Nearly all our Chief Executives have fished. And now, however the people fare at the hands of Mr. Franklin Roosevelt, the poor fish are receiving the same old deal.

Dear Sir: I have that account read which your journal publishes of the speech delivered by former Secretary of War Hon. Newton D. Baker. It was before your country's convention of teachers in Washington delivered, and you so quote him: "The more I see of dictatorships, the less I like them." This it is as one would expect from any of the scores of high-minded members of the Cabinets of Mr. President Wilson. But you to declare go on that Mr. Baker averred: "Democracy is the sole possession of the English-speaking and certain Scandinavian peoples." Switzerland, the eldest democracy, a democracy still is. SWISS CITIZEN.

Dear Sir: In The Washington Post for the Day of Independence I remark an article telling how our President has revoked his revocation of the Davis-Bacon law. I passed over in silence your newspaper's previous mention of the revocation, wherein you spoke of that law as an "act" when it had actually become inactive; but, now that it has been restored to activity, I do not see why your reporter seems to think it strange that the President should change his mind occasionally. Ralph Waldo Emerson was a philosopher whom men of all political parties respected upon philosophical questions, yet, when somebody chided him with changing his mind about something, he replied: "What is a mind for?"

Dear Sir: Permit me to protest against the Post-Impressionist's recent defense of the Puritans. Were the defense genuine I should set you down as of New England stock and so dismiss your article as a mere excrescence of genealogical prejudice not unfamiliar north of New York. But the defense is transparently hypocritical. You are clearly praising the Puritans in order to demonstrate that the New Dealers are their opposites and therefore worthy of condemnation.

Have not the New Dealers chopped down as many Maypoles as the Mayflowers? Have not the New Dealers rooted out those whom they consider heretics? We New Dealers may not hang witches, but at least we regulate the length of their broomsticks.

Dear Sir: In a recent issue, The Washington Post editorially attacks the union of NRA employes who have been courageously picketing the Department of Commerce Building and who demand collective bargaining with the Government. You declare that collective bargaining with Government is impossible.

But you are several days behind the times. As one of the organizers of a certain movement, I can tell you that several unions have recently been formed for the express purpose of instituting collective bargaining with the Government. Whether you like it or not, the Government will have to.

Among these unions are the following:

UNION OF CAPITOL GUIDES. Chief objective: To compel action on the part of the Architect of the Capitol relieving union members from the necessity of taking tourists to Statuary Hall.

UNION OF ARMY PRIVATES. Chief objective: To force the War Department to issue regulations whereby, on every other Sunday all kitchen-police duties be henceforth performed by commissioned officers.

UNION OF SAILORS ON U. S. CRUISER HOUSTON, Chief objective: To bargain with the President against the presence of radios on board ships of the U. S. N.—except for purposes of navigation.

UNION OF STATE DEPARTMENT MESSENGER-BOYS. Chief objective: To negotiate for the reduction of labor in carrying and distributing future War Debt Notes, by the limitation of such Notes to a maximum of four typewritten pages.

UNION OF INCOME TAX BLANK RECIPIENTS. Chief objective: Collective bargaining with the United States Treasury for simplification of all forms and 10 per cent reduction in totals payable.

Several similar unions are now being formed, and several more will be. But I guess I've mentioned enough to show you that the principle of collective bargaining between Government and governed workers is going to be upheld. I'll just add that the Union Guides, Soldiers, Messenger-Boys and I. T. B. R.'s won't hesitate to picket the Hill, War Department, State Department, Treasury and Washington Monument, if duty calls, and that there's a plan under consideration for the purchase of deep-sea going motorboats with which to picket the Houston should the Houston also require picketing.

Borah's Crusade.

BARGERON

SENATOR BORAH'S announced intention of crusading this fall against the NRA doesn't give the Democrats any appetite regardless of the unconcern they affect. It will make trouble for the Democrats in any number of Congressional districts and particularly in the Middle West where there is bitterness against the NRA already and dissatisfaction with some of the Administration's other policies.

But there is no need for the employes of the NRA to worry. Their jobs are good for a long time. Which is to say that the effect of Borah's campaign will be confined to the Congressional races. The NRA—that thing—will be with us longer than was prohibition. We will be lucky if the evolution of it is not for the worse instead of the better.

* * * *

You have only to watch the trend and to know the real plans of the NRA's big business sponsors to appreciate this. The only ones who could have kept us from what we are in for now were the Democrats, who pledged themselves to enforce the antitrust laws and who instead passed a law making a dead letter of them. Enforcement of them, probably in altered and improved form, would have tended to switch the trend from monopoly to smaller business units. We are on our way to bigger and better monopoly now—to a state in which recurring business recessions constitute major economic collapses, giving rise to talk about changing the form of government, instead of the relatively small panics we used to have.

Senator Borah was right when he said the Republicans would make no issue of the NRA. They will beef vaguely about regimentation, but if and when they get the administration of the NRA they won't abolish it. They will "improve" it.

* * * *

Mr. Harriman, of the United States Chamber of Commerce, one of those who put the act across, will tell you what the improvement will be. It will be a tremendous organization of business to prevent "chaos" in trade, to maintain "stabilization" of prices, and the like, with "less" governmental interference The "burdensome" overlordship of the Government will be removed. It will mean no governmental regulation to speak of, and that "chaos" of which the business leaders speak so glibly is nine times out of ten competition.

Republican administration of the NRA would certainly remove the "burdensome" interference of Government. Ever since the Wilson Administration the Republicans removed the "burdensome" interference of the anti-trust laws, and you see where we got. They just didn't enforce the anti-trust laws; that's all. Nothing will make the Government less "burdensome" than not to enforce its laws.

* * * *

I don't see any way under the sun to head off our definite trend, however. No one would squawk louder, generally speaking, than business itself at any effort to lift the NRA bodily from the statute books. You see, most business men, particularly the bigger ones, think they have put it over on their competitors. One man thinks he has made it a little harder for the other fellow to do business, that he, if he is shrewd enough, can violate features which rub him. The philosophy is that it makes the going a little harder for the other fellow.

And Senator Borah can't carry the argument too far, himself. He would yell, too, at a proposal to repeal the act. You see, it provides minimum wages for the workingman. And the Senator is his friend. Every shade of opinion is hooked in the NRA some way. It was one of the cleverest political things big business ever did.

What is beyond my dumb economic mind is why it wouldn't be better all around if it were again possible for a man to open up a store to sell what he had to sell and probably give employment to a few neighbors at any wage they would accept. His mere opportunity to sell what he had to sell would dissipate the current philosophy of people that somebody owes them a job. Under the NRA's limitation of the right to sell, there really is an obligation to provide jobs.

Press Building's Refinancing Set

Campbell Named Trustee in Bankruptcy.

Acting at the suggestion of attorneys representing all the interested parties, Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday appointed Lawrence B. Campbell trustee in bankruptcy for the National Press Building, Inc., which he already was operating as a receiver.

The appointment was made under the provisions of the corporate bankruptcy law. His bond was set at $500,000 and he was instructed to draw up a plan for the reorganization of the corporation's financial setup.

'Brain Truster' Calls Borah Inconsistent

Dr. Dickinson Upholds "New Deal" in Speech at Virginia University Institute; Castle Says Latin Policies Go Too Far.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Charlottesville, Va., July 6.—Denying that any actions by the Roosevelt Administration constituted dictatorship, Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Dickinson, speaking at the Institute of Public Affairs here today, sharply assailed Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, for his recent attacks on the New Deal.

The speech of Dr. Dickinson, one of the Roosevelt brain trust, was regarded as the high light of the day's proceedings. He made his remarks before the round table on "Democracy and Dictatorship," which, as usual, drew a capacity audience.

Former Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, jr., at the evening session of the institute caustically criticized the Roosevelt Latin-American policies as going too far, and thus creating a dangerous situation for this country, in forswearing all intervention. The Roosevelt regime, he said, inherited the "good neighbor" policy from the Hoover Administration.

Earlier in the day Dr. Orestes Ferrera, former secretary of state of Cuba and well known as that country's former Ambassador in Washington, told the Latin-American round table that the time was not well chosen for abrogation of the Platt amendment, and it appeared that subsequent acts of intervention by the State Department had been inspired by "political and diplomatic dilettantism rather than defense of American interests." He held the latter had suffered losses due to the Roosevelt program.

The discussions at the round table conference on money, which is presided over by Dr. Wallace McClure, of the State Department, were led today by Dr. Herbert Fraser, of Swarthmore College; Prof. George W. Edwards, of the College of the City of New York, and Louis Gallantiere, of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. They discussed money in connection with capital movements and trade.

Harold S. Buttenheim, editor of the American City, in an address before a conference of the League of Virginia Municipalities, meeting here in connection with the institute, contended that in the "apportioning and spending of Federal funds of local public works, there has been too much centralization of authority in Washington." He criticized sharply the failure of PWA to carry out the housing program contemplated in the public works fund appropriation act.

After some generalities about democratic forms of government, Dr. Dickinson, former professor of law at Pennsylvania University, contended that the real question in distinguishing a democracy from a dictatorship was whether the representatives of the people retain their Constitutional power to act. He added that "so long as they do there can be no honest charge of dictatorship."

Borah Is Declared Inconsistent.

AS a stepping stone to his reply to Senator Borah, the Roosevelt brain truster pointed out that there are philosophers who contend that of all forms of government, democracy is one of the least favorable to personal liberty. He said he did not wish to enter that discussion, but he had a few words to say to Borah's contentions that substantial liberties of the people were being invaded by the "New Deal."

"No argument about current policies which purports to be based on time-honored American principles and on the great institutional charters of American liberty can be ignored when it proceeds from such a source as Senator Borah," he continued. "But Senator Borah's recent attempt to draft the traditional principles of American liberty into forced service against the program of National recovery which is proceeding to its goal with such signal success represents a misleading or perversion of those principles.

"I will not adhere to Senator Borah's inconsistencies. He rightly refers at the outset of his speech to the fact that the first task to which our forefathers addressed themselves after achieving independence was to establish a government of law. Liberty under law is the only American type of liberty.

"But the liberty which Senator Borah proceeds to extol throughout the remainder of his speech is not liberty under law. It is the unbridled freedom of every man to provide a living for himself without regard for the common welfare or the rights of others. That is precisely the kind of liberty which leads and has led to the trust and monopolies which with another inconsistency Senator Borah so bitterly denounced at a later point in his address.

"Under any system of law and order no man under the guise of providing a living for himself or under any other guise has a right to conduct himself in a way to injure others. There is nothing more sacred about the so-called right to earn a living than about other rights which are regulated in the public interest."

Senator Borah has always been classed as a progressive, Dr. Dickinson says, pointing out that he has been in favor of legislation limiting the number of hours of work. He asked: "What is that but an interference with the right to earn a living?"

"Senator Borah's liberty is not our American, Anglo-Saxon liberty which looks to the substance rather than to the form—it is a word, a metaphysical entity which is willing to crucify reality for an abstraction," Dr. Dickinson asserted.

"The American way, the Anglo-Saxon way is not to stake all on an abstraction but in the case of every restriction to examine its nature and purpose, what evils it discourages and what good ends it promotes. We can not condemn Governmental measures merely because they are restrictive. All law is a restriction. If restrictions point the road to Moscow, law and lawyers have been leading on toward Moscow since the dawn of law heralded man's release from primitive savagery."

Overthrow of Machado Is Blamed on U. S.

DR. FERRERA, who was allied with the deposed Machado in Cuba, contended that there had been "no continuity" in the Cuban policy of the State Department during the last year. He contended the United States brought about the overthrow of Machado and that "everybody also knows that the successor of President Machado was appointed by the American ambassador."

He asserted that "we have seen very clearly how certain favors have been granted the Cuban government, not for its own sake but for partisan reasons."

"We have seen," he continued, "the recognition of one government while denying it to another, though both of them failed to comply with the same international obligations and showed the same lack of guarantees toward the citizens of the United States and other countries, and besides both these governments were the product of the will of insubordinate military barracks.

"An attitude of such direct intervention in the internal affairs of Cuba was never experienced in the past under the protection of the Platt amendment and does not appear to be in accordance with the derogation of the said amendment which established and insured the relations governing much lesser intimacies than those existing in fact at the present time.

"It is difficult to understand the intimate reasons for such an attitude, especially as the acts of intervention appear inspired by political and diplomatic dilettantism rather than defense of American interests.

"President Mendieta has received as a pledge of good will a loan from government to government, a higher sugar quota than that offered before, a tariff reduction without reciprocal compensation, the derogation of the Platt amendment, the embargo of arms against the adversaries or enemies of the government, and now a treaty of commercial reciprocity, which is considered by everyone as beneficial to Cuba.

"I repeat, since Machado left office until today, when President Mendieta is governing, the American interests in Cuba have suffered gradual and continuous losses and the internal situation has become worse instead of improving. Undoubtedly, if this seems strange to those who are not in charge of the interests continuously injured, how much stranger will it seem to those who are closely concerned."

"Self-Glorification" Deplored by Castle.

MR. CASTLE, after claiming for the Hoover and previous Administrations credit for the Latin-American "good neighbor" policy, said the Roosevelt's Administration's continuation of this policy was a "fine thing," but that he "wished there might have been a little less self-glorification, a little less strident assertion that the New Deal has changed the entire spirit of international relations, because this just is not true."

He said he was unable, however, to follow to the extent gone by the Roosevelt Administration in forswearing intervention under any circumstances in Latin America for all time and contended that it amounted to an abandonment of the rights of American nationals in those countries by their own Government. He predicted this part of the treaty signed at Montevideo would lead to trouble for this country and further bitter feeling in Latin America.

Referring to the provision of the treaty regarding nonrecognition of "territorial acquisitions or special advantages which have been obtained by force whether this consists in the employment of arms, in threatening diplomatic representations or in any other effective coercive measure," Mr. Castle contended that "blind expressions like these in a treaty do not prevent war—they help to make it."

The former undersecretary revealed he had lost faith in the nonrecognition principle, first projected by former Secretary of State Stimson in respect to Manchuria.

Mr. Castle slapped at the present Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles' interference in Cuban affairs last summer, contended that Chairman Key Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee recently demonstrated by his assertions that he knew nothing of the Monroe Doctrine and the aim of this Administration in Latin America "is eternally right but it seems to me that some aspects, at least, of the method are wrong, dangerously wrong."

In the Head Doctor's Absence.

Uncle Sam—Lissen, John, is it all right now?

Dr. Garner—All right for what?

Uncle Sam—All right for me to lay off some of those medicines and have a little fun?

Dr. Garner—What put that into your head?

Uncle Sam—Dr. Roosevelt's away, ain't he?

Dr. Garner—Yeah, but he left orders that you were to be kept on the regular treatments.

Uncle Sam—Aw, John, you can ease 'em up a little, can't you?

Dr. Garner—Nothing doing.

Uncle Sam—Why you don't even believe in some of those pills I'm taking!

Dr. Garner—I know, but I'm not the head physician!

* * * *

Uncle Sam—Couldn't you lemme have some candy and ice cream sodas for a change? I'm better now.

Dr. Garner—You're better, but you're a long way from the candy and ice cream orgy stage. Doc Roosevelt told me you were to stay on your diet and avoid all sweets.

* * * *

Uncle Sam—Couldn't you call off a few of those Swedish masseurs and Turkish bath rubbers? They're making an old man of me in trying to make a new man of me.

Dr. Garner—Not me; Roosevelt knows what he is doing.

Uncle Sam—I HOPE so!

* * * *

Dr. Garner—If you get out of anything it's on your own responsibility. I'm not going to have Dr. Roosevelt coming back, finding you in a relapse and blaming me for it.

Uncle Sam—When a guy's as sick as I am, how can anybody tell when he's had a relapse?

Dr. Garner—That's too deep for me!

* * * *

Uncle Sam—Why can't I sneak out of the hospital and have a little fun? I'd like to go on a real bust.

Dr. Garner—It was going on a real bust that put you where you are today, and don't forget it!

Uncle Sam—Aw, that was five years ago.

Dr. Garner—But the memory lingers on.

* * * *

Uncle Sam—Well, listen, doc, would you just let me sneak out and go down to the ol' swimmin' hole for an hour or two?

Dr. Garner—You mean the OSH.

Uncle Sam—The OSH?

Dr. Garner—Sure. We don't call anything by its full name any more; we just use the initials.

Uncle Sam (sinking back onto the bed)—Quick, Watson, the needle!

Another Letter From a Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My Dear Louise: There are times when you must depend on the judgment of older people, who have had more experience, but your own judgment can be trusted in ordinary matters if you will learn the knack of using it.

You are much wiser than you know, and this is the why and wherefore.

You know, of course, that your physical equipment—the size and shape of your body, the color of your hair and eyes—was inherited from countless generations of ancestors. Surviving in you is some trace of the qualities that predominated in your forbears 10,000 years ago.

But that is not the whole story. Your mind is also a legacy to which all of your ancestors contributed. Every brain cell was inherited, and its capacity was determined before you were born.

Did these brain cells come into the world empty? There is abundant evidence to indicate that they did not.

Your conscious mind—the one you use to acquire facts and make decisions—had everything to learn.

But your subconscious mind, which directs many of your muscles and glands and stores up knowledge and enables you to do many things "without thinking," came into the world with a great inheritance.

You are told that people are born without "instincts," but that isn't true. Is it reasonable to suppose that the fox, the wasp and the oriole inherit knowledge, while man's superior brain comes into the world a blank?

Call it instinct or what you will, your mind is heir to the wisdom of your ancestors.

And that inherited wisdom, sometimes manifest as "the voice of conscience," or again revealing itself as a "hunch," will provide you dependable guidance if you learn the way to use it.

You have an "inner voice" that persistently urges you to follow the way that is right. Listen to it respectfully, for it speaks with the wisdom accumulated and bequeathed to you by the countless generations of your ancestors. Love, DAD.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Winthrop Mackworth Praed.

I wonder if any of my readers are in the same predicament that a Yale sophomore was exactly 40 years ago, when I gave out in classroom a list of subjects from which each student was forced to choose one, to write a short essay and hand it in, before leaving the room. One of the subjects was.

The Poetry of Winthrop Mackworth Praed.

I wonder how much the boys knew about this gentleman; and I hardly expected that any one would choose this subject. Imagine my astonishment, then, when at the end of the hour, a student handed me a theme of ten pages on Praed! I read it with great interest. It began and went on like this:

"Although we cannot say that as a lover of nature Praed equalled Wordsworth, still it would be a mistake to suppose that he was entirely lacking in his feeling; although he was not so passionate a poet as Byron he was not altogether without passion; even if he did not have that command of language which is shown in the poetry of Keats, still he wrote at times fluently and with some grace," &c., &c. This continued for ten pages and at the very end the boy wrote, "This is all I have to say at present of Winthrop Mackworth Praed, a poet of whom I have never heard."

I marked him perfect, because I knew I should remember his essay as long as I lived, and I have.

Praed died in 1839, only 37 years old. He was educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he won medals for original verse both in English and in Greek. He was a man of brilliant wit and extraordinary promise; but so far as he has any fame today, it is because of his light verse, which he wrote with skill and ease.

She was a daughter of a Dean,
  Rich, fat and rather apopletic;
She had one brother, just 13,
  Whose color was extremely hectic;
Her grandmother for many a year
  Had fed the parish with her bounty;
Her second cousin was a peer,
  And Lord Lieutenant of the County.

But titles, and the 3 per cents,
  And mortgages, and great relations,
And India bonds, and tithes and rents,
  Oh, what are they to love's sensations?
Black eyes, fair forehead, clustering locks—
  Such wealth, such honors, Cupid chooses;
He cares as little for the stocks,
  As Baron Rothschild for the Muses.

Hot Springs Enjoys Favor of Diplomats

Virginia Spa Is Turned Abruptly Into Gay Summer Capital.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Almost every year the members of the Diplomatic Corps shift their allegiance from one summer resort to another, thus making whichever one they choose a popular place.

For a year or two the former German Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz und Gaffron moved the embassy officially from Washington to Manchester, Mass., where the staff of the embassy and their families settled down for the summer, and the Ambassador and his wife, with their small daughter, spent a part of the time there before making their annual summer trip to Germany.

The former Ambassador of Brazil and Mme. de Lima e Silva, who have left Washington for the former's new post in Brussels, spent two summers at Manchester and gathered there a group of their close friends, as well as Mme. de Lima's brother-in-law and sister, the former Counselor of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. Nano.

All of that group now have left this country for various capitals of Europe, and the North Shore is missing them sadly.

Remain Near Capital.

Another resort that was the vogue with the diplomats for several years is Newport. There the Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos leased a cottage for two or three seasons, and entertained many of their friends in the Diplomatic Corps during the summer months.

The Ambassador of Belgium, Mr. Paul May, spent much of last summer at Newport until he sailed to join Mme. May and their three daughters in Belgium at the end of the season.

This year many of the diplomats have chosen Hot Springs, Va., for their summer headquarters, probably because of its accessibility to Washington in a year when none of them wants to be too far from his post.

Off to Virginia Today.

Today a group will motor to the spa for the week-end to join the permanent colony. The Ambassador of Poland, Mr. Stanislaw Patek, who has recently returned from Atlantic City, will make the trip, and the Minister of the Netherlands, Jonkheer H. M. van Haersma de With, who was spending a short time in Newport, but was called back to the legation by the death of the prince consort of Holland, are leaving this morning for the Homestead.

The Military Attache of the Hungarian Legation, Lieut. Col. Count Marcel Stomm, also will join the group at Hot Springs. The Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos, with their son John, have been installed in their cottage at the Homestead for ten days, and the Ambassador of Argentina and Senora de Espil, who are planning to remain at the resort until autumn, are seen daily on the golf courses. The Ambassador of Belgium and Mme. May, with the Counselor of the Embassy, Prince Eugene de Ligne, are enjoying the beautiful drives in the Virginia mountains for several weeks. Prince de Ligne will sail later in the summer to spend some time with Princess de Ligne, who left several weeks ago for Belgium, accompanied by Mlle. Francois May, daughter of the Ambassador and Mme. May.

Talleys Return; Plan August Trip to Texas

Entertained by Dawes at Chicago; Daughters Attend Camp.

Mr. Lynn P. Talley, adviser to the Director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, president of the Commodity Credit Corporation, and a trustee of the Export and Import Bank, returned to Washington several days ago from Chicago, accompanied by Mrs. Talley and their four daughters, Miss Kathleen Talley, Miss Martha Talley, Miss Carolynn Talley and Miss Beatrice Talley. They were the guests of Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes in their home in Evanston, Ill.

Miss Kathleen Talley, with Miss Martha Talley, who is a student at Sweetbriar College, spent a few days at Washington and Lee University, where the latter led the final ball before they joined their parents in Chicago. While in Chicago the Talleys were extensively entertained and among the parties in their honor was one given by Mr. Frank Wood, of Chicago, and Lincoln, Nebr., aboard his handsome yacht, Nellwood. Miss Kathleen Talley visited several of her Wellesley College friends who live in Chicago, and has now gone to camp in Virginia, where she is the riding and dramatic counselor. At the same camp Miss Carolynn Talley is the junior counselor of riflery and Miss Beatrice Talley is an aid in canoeing.

Mr. and Mrs. Talley expect to leave Washington next month, accompanied by Miss Martha Talley, for their home in Dallas, Tex., where they will spend some time before returning to their apartment at 2540 Massachusetts avenue in the autumn.

Sen. Reynolds' Daughter Wed To Lieut. Colt

Frances Jackson Reynolds Becomes Bride at Virginia Beach.

Virginia Beach, Va., July 6 (Spl.). Washington figured indirectly, though prominently, in this week's events at Virginia Beach.

Most important was the impromptu wedding on Wednesday of Miss Frances Jackson Reynolds, daughter of Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of Asheville, N. C., and Lieut. Le Baron Carleton Colt, jr., of Bristol, R. I., grandson of the late Senator Samuel P. Colt., who died in office in Washington in 1926. The bridegroom belongs to the family into which Ethel Barrymore married.

The Rev. Benjamin B. Bland, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, read the marriage ceremony in a suite at the Cavalier Hotel set aside for the occasion. Garden flowers were used in decoration. The bride was attired in a simple white costume. Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Dowdy, jr., were the only attendants.

Few Officials Keep Society Circles Active

Cabinet Group Remaining in Capital Continue to Entertain.

With the adjournment of Congress and the departure of the President on his cruise to Hawaii, many members of the President's official family have availed themselves of the opportunity to take much-needed vacations. However, there are still a few members of the official group in town, among them the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, who entertained informally at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton Hotel, and the Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, who frequently entertain at charming informal al fresco parties over the week-ends.

The Postmaster General and Mrs. James A. Farley have not made definite plans for the summer. Mr. Farley left Washington last evening for New York to join Mrs. Farley and their children for the week-end. On Tuesday the Farleys, accompanied by their eldest daughter, Elizabeth, will go to Philadelphia, where the latter will christen the new destroyer, the U. S. S. Aylwin. After the ceremony Mrs. Farley and Elizabeth will return to New York and Mr. Farley will come to Washington.

The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Claude A. Swanson, will remain at his desk in the Capital until everything is cleared up and then he and Mrs. Swanson will take a short vacation. The Swansons find relief from the Washington heat over the week-ends by boarding the Presidential yacht, the Seqouia, on Saturday afternoons and cruising on the Potomac, returning to the Capital Sunday evenings. They will leave tomorrow afternoon, accompanied by a small group of friends and Mrs. Swanson's son, Mr. Douglas Hall.

Major and Mrs. Tribby will return to Washington about the middle of August, stopping in Chicago for several days en route. They will spend a short time in the Capital upon their return before leaving by motor for Little Rock, Ark., Mrs. Tribby's former home, where they will visit.

By Malvina Lindsay,

THOSE who believe that marriages are made in heaven, that mothers are endowed by instinct to care for babies, and that a beautiful family life is insured by a game of dominoes on the dining room table may have been aghast at the discussions this week at Columbia University.

Educators attending the Marriage and Family Relations Conference attacked boldly and unsentimentally modern problems of marriage and family life. Proposals both revolutionary and viosionary were voiced. But out of the maze of argument and discussion loomed the encouraging fact that science was attempting to solve the intangible as well as the tangible problems of the home, to give households some more subtle clews to happiness than electric refrigerators.

* * * *

IT HAS not been a great while since old wives in rural neighborhoods were always hoping that every half-wit girl could find some "good man" to marry. The time is not far past when a woman was considered a good wife if she were a spotless housekeeper, a good mother if she kept her children well fed and well preached at.

The shifting emphasis from the material to the psychological aspects of family relationships has made steadily for more enlightened home life, despite the theories of romanticists who are always calling for a return of the crowded hearthside.

It is true that family life of an earlier age had its points. It was robust, expansive, often ennobling. But it was also autocratic and stultifying. In view of its highly tribal features, it is not surprising that it inspired so many songs of the "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" type.

Those who assail the modern home as a boarding house or cafeteria forget that modern knowledge has given it many constructive values. Thanks to science—modern psychology if you will—parents of today know or should know:

* * * *

THAT every individual requires freedom of growth and must not be allowed to become a puny or warped sapling in a dense thicket.

That a child must be protected from mental and emotional injury as well as physical if his later life is not to be darkened.

That railing and sermonizing will not develop character.

That a room of one's own is a necessity both for body and spirit.

That adults suffering from emotional infantilism have no more right to be parents than the physically unfit.

That material selfishness masquerading as motherly love and sacrifice wrecks as many lives as maternal neglect.

Thus has science begun to build a Magna Carta for family life. While it may never be able to provide the spark of love or the warmth of spirtual values, for the home, at least it will give to home relationships increasing beauty—the beauty that is truth.

Sending Back Merchandise Is Expensive

Women Learn Delivery Costs Are Eventually Added to Their Bills.

WOMEN, who are said to make 85 per cent of all purchases in this country, have turned the spotlight on their buying habits and have learned some surprising things about themselves.

They studied in particular their habit of returning purchases to stores. And they found the habit costs them a sizable sum each year. After reducing the problem to the cold truth of figures, women's clubs are campaigning to reduce the number of returns of merchandise.

On the request of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Department of Commerce organized the survey, assigning Ada L. Bush, a business analyst, to carry through the research.

Two out of every three women in the survey area had returned merchandise during the year.

Just to show what returns mean in the long run, the stores reported the annual volume of returns in Boston reached $20,000,000 for the year, or 12½ per cent of all sales; $18,000,000 in Pittsburgh, $37,000,000 in Chicago and $105,000,000 in New York.

Store managers pointed out that wrapping, delivering and then calling for return merchandise costs money which must, in the long run, be added to the cost of running the business, and hence to the prices charged for goods.

Women saw the point, and have decided to cut that delivery cost.

The bureau of business research of Ohio State University reports the average charge-send transaction over a department store counter means 23 persons handle the purchase en route, and the performance costs from 31.8 to 61.6 cents.

Through the questionnaires it was found that dresses are returned most frequently. Shoes came next.

The reason for the return most frequently given was "wrong size." Several women added in their comments that the store was not so likely to be at fault as the manufacturers who do not make uniform sizes. They referred to the maker who turns out a "large size 36."

The largest percentage of returns was made in the class of articles which cost between $1 and $2. More than three-fourths of the returns were made on articles that cost less than $10.

The larger proportion of returned articles had been bought on charge accounts, which seems to point, says the Department of Commerce survey, to the fact that charge accounts make it easy to return merchandise.

A large number of returns were checked up to the woman who can not make up her mind in the store but must "try it on at home." Another large group wanted to take the purchase home for the approval of a husband or daughter. Another large group wanted to "match it."

When 13.9 per cent returned their merchandise they bought something else entirely different from the original purchase.

Several reported the store objected to taking returns, and 46.1 per cent of the group said the store was justified. More than one-half admitted they would object to buying merchandise which some one else had taken home. Almost one-third of the women said the return was their own fault.

PILLAR TO POST

He Hunted News.

GEORGE BRONSON RAE, representative in Washington of the unrecognized Asiatic state of Manchukuo, has proved his fitness for the job. While the hazards he faces today are purely mental, and he crosses swords only figuratively with opponents in argument, in his youth he was a dare-devil war correspondent who risked his life many times for a good story. No less a person than Richard Harding Davis substantiated this in his book, "Cuba in War Time."

* * * *

* * * *

These things he acquired in the Far East when he was confidential adviser to Sun Yat Sen, first president of the Chinese republic. (He also established and is the owner of the Far Eastern Review, published in Shanghai.) But the possession he prizes above everything is a framed passport hanging upon the wall. It is forged, and behind it is a story that surpasses the famed "Message to Garcia." It took Rowan nearly two months to reach Garcia, but George Bronson Rae performed an equally hazardous mission in 14 days.

Danger in Cuba.

IT WAS undertaken at the behest of James Gordon Bennet, of the old New York Herald. He was told to reach Gomez, revolutionary leader beleagured by the Spaniards in the interior of Cuba. A yacht was offered Rae to land him in Cuba, but he preferred a less conspicuous method. With his hair dyed, his skin darkened and speaking Spanish like a native, he ran the gantlet of Spanish spies, to face later the even greater danger of capture by the guerrillas and flying columns.

* * * *

Crossing lines, he lay in swamps by day and crept between forts by night, climbing mountains and crawling across trochas. But he did reach Gomez and for this was rewarded by having his story splashed all over the front page. Richard Harding Davis tells Mr. Rae's story in his book, and that of two other intrepid correspondents. He ends it with the following paragraph:

* * * *

"When you sit comfortably at your breakfast in New York with a policeman at the corner, and read the dispatches which these gentlemen write of Cuban victories and their interviews with self-important Cuban chiefs, you should remember what it cost them to supply you with that addition to your morning's budget of news. Whether the result is worth the risk, or whether it is not paying too great a price, the greatest price of all, for too little, is not the question. The reckless bravery and unselfishness of the correspondents in the field in Cuba are beyond parallel.

"It is as dangerous to seek for Gomez as Stanley found it to seek for Livingston. The names of these correspondents are, Grover Flint, Sylvester Scovel and George Bronson Rae."

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If July 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m., and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. until midnight.

This Saturday will be dominated by a holiday spirit, and there will be probably very little inclination on anyone's part to seriously apply themselves to business routine. There was never a truer saying than "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." So, if possible, for the next 48 hours forget business cares, troubles and tribulations, and you may be better prepared on Monday to vigorously start the week right. It will be advisable, if you are invited to join a group of friends in the way of social relaxation, to graciously join in the spirit of the affair, and not try to get them to change their plans if they do not happen to appeal to you. There is nothing more irritating to a host than to have a guest try to tell him what to do. If you are going to try steering Cupid's craft Saturday evening, be cautious to keep it gliding on smooth waters. Careless guiding will get you in rough seas and you may find yourself upset, so keep your weather eye open.

If a woman and born on July 7, possibly Jules Verne, possessed no greater imagination than the one you are gifted with. This should enable you to be very successful as a writer of fiction. You should have a very retentive mind, and an unlimited fund of useful knowledge. An early marriage might prove most helpful and assures a great deal more contentment than so-called single blessedness. You possess all the essential attributes a mother should have, and children should prove the medium of your greatest felicity. There is a very great possibility of your receiving something of value, and what you will appreciate probably more than anything else is the loving spirit that has prompted the giver.

The child whose natal day is July 7, when it reaches its teens, may give evidence of being unusually gifted in the way of being able to express itself, both conversationally and through the medium of writing. Careful consideration and planning should be given this child's education, and it should be allowed to express its preference regarding special courses.

If a man and July 7 is your birthday, you should cultivate the habit of being both broad-minded as well as tolerant, for with your mental attainments, you can be a great factor for good and a powerful influence over those with whom you come in contact.

A BERET FOR EVERY head is the designers' decree for late summer. Here's one of the newest versions of this type of hat. It's made of black velvet and has a bit of shiny metal on top.

Underwood & Underwood.

"NO WOMAN REALLY has personality if her views are narrow," says Mrs. Vinnie G. Barrows, left, director of women's personnel guidance at George Washington University. Two things—contact with fine people and real knowledge—will help a girl to her finest self-expression, believes Mrs. Isabelle S. Farrington, below, regent of Chevy Chase School. Both educators maintain social graces must be developed from within rather than without and must be founded on character.

Beret, Never Quiescent, Becomes Style Fixture

By Virginia Lee Warren.

CHALK UP another style that shows signs of going on forever and forever. A world that has gradually become reconciled to eternal bobbed hair and 60-year-old women with 16-year-old figures might just as well look with equal complacency upon the beret; for the beret is evidently here to stay.

After weakening their hold upon women's heads for the last few months, these delightfully sloppy little hats are staging a spectacular comeback. While huge, droopy affairs still hold first place in many wardrobes, berets are having everything their own way in shops that keep a jump or so ahead of the mode. And, come late summer, these berets will do a little jumping on their own account—right on to well-groomed and fashionable heads.

In Northern cities where enormous hats are seldom seen in the daytime, even during very hot weather, the beret is already being worn by smart women.

Its shape bears little resemblance to the original one, worn by Basque young men. The beret of this season usually has a full tam-like crown that blouses bewitchingly over one eye. Often this leaves the back fitting closely over the rear of the head, although sometimes it is elevated to a stiff peak so there is a pronounced downward swoop over the forehead.

Silk moire, grosgrain, and velvet are in the front ranks of materials favored for berets. Smocking, bits of metal and ribbon bows make smart trimming.

The never-ending struggle of women to retain a youthful appearance undoubtedly accounts for the beret's hold on present day fashions.

The soft, almost shapeless little hat is the next best thing to a baby bonnet for giving a jeune fille expression.

Black for Summer.

QUESTION: I have a plain black silk crepe dress that feels cool but looks hot. Since I only wore it a few times in the spring I would like to get some good out of it this summer. It has short sleeves and is summery in cut, but the color is all wrong, of course. Can you suggest any new way for me to give the dress a lighter touch? White organdy bows and collars seem rather obvious.

ANSWER: A plain black dress can look truly distinctive in the summer, especially at the dinner hour, if, as you suggest, it is given a light touch. This touch may be achieved by wearing white doeskin gauntlets, white hat, and by carrying a white bag. In this case the dress will need no white bows or collars. A gardenia at the base of the neckline would be attractive. You might use poudre blue or aquamarine accessories instead of the white ones.

QUESTION: What can I do about my shoulders? Although I'm short and slender, I have broad shoulders, and most of these new capelet or pleated-sleeve effects make me look like a runty football player.

ANSWER: Plain, short sleeves would be best for you. Try to avoid puffs, pleats, ruffles, or capelets on the shoulders. And do stay away from sleeveless dresses, as they will only change you from a diminutive footballer into a miniature ice-man.

Garden Tea Dress.

QUESTION: I have been invited to attend a garden tea next Thursday. Should I wear a floor-length dress or would an ordinary afternoon frock be all right? And what about hat and gloves?

ANSWER: A floor-length dress of organdy, chiffon, mousseline, dotted swiss or any other sheer material is the proper attire for a garden tea. Short gloves may be worn. Large-brimmed hats look best in a garden setting and are becoming to most women.

Informal Wedding.

QUESTION: What kind of dress should I get for my wedding? The ceremony is to be at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the parsonage, with only members of the two familiez present. Should I wear white? I want to look like a bride, but since the wedding is to be so small I thought it might be possible to wear something I could use for an afternoon dress later.

ANSWER: For an afternoon wedding in the minister's house, a pastel frock would be just as suitable as white. The material could be matelasse organdy, crinkled crepe or organza. Any of these would make a dress that could be worn for other occasions all summer long. Be sure to wear a hat. It may be of the picture type, or it may be a variation of the beret shape. Gloves and slippers should be in white or some pale neutral shade if they do not match the frock.

Hats for Glasses.

QUESTION: What kind of hat is most becoming to a girl who wears glasses?

ANSWER: Hats with medium or small brims, irregular in shape, usually look well on the girl who wears glasses. Very small hats or turbans are unbecoming, as a rule, because they demand a good profile and "specs" spoil the clear-cut line from forehead to chin. Big, floppy brims and glasses are also an unhappy combination. If a large hat is needed for a garden party a fairly stiff and straight brim is best.

Today's Well-Poised Graduates Differ From Those of Past Era

Mental and Personality Development Is the Aim of Modern Educational Institutions Which Attack Latter Problem in Subtle Fashion.

The woman with personality rarely fails either in a business or social way. It is undeniably the most valuable attribute she can have. Do the gods bestow it at random, or is it a thing any one can acquire?

This is the sixth article in a series attempting to answer that question.

By Frances Mangum.

EVEN in an age of machines, no mechanism has been developed to turn out personality. Perhaps the nearest approach is the up-to-date school and university.

Modern graduates are expected to have acquired their share of fundamental learning. But they are further expected to have acquired a cultural polish. They should be able to hold their own in a drawing room as well as in a classroom.

They are glaring contrasts to the ideal girl graduate of days gone by. During her four collegiate years her attention was so concentrated on Latin, Greek and other academic subjects, she had no time to study social graces.

Finished Product Aim Today.

Now it is the aim of modern teaching to combine mental development with personality development, to turn out a product finished in both ways. This trend dates back over 2,000 years. There were women of antiquity whose names have survived the ravages of time because their personalities combined intellect and social grace. Aspasia, for one. She was an engaging Ionian who made her home in Athens. So carefully did she cultivate both her feminine magnetism and her intellect that Pericles, the "noblest Athenian," bound himself to her as closely as the laws of his country would allow. She is known in history as one of his most reliable political advisers, and as one of the most captivating women of all time.

Both Mrs. Isabelle S. Farrington, regent of Chevy Chase School, and Miss Vinnie G. Barrows, director of women's personal guidance at George Washington University, feel schools would be utter failures in this age if they paid no attention to personality development.

Mrs. Farrington discussed the steps modern schools for girls were taking to train students socially as well as mentally.

"Before a girl has finished her courses here," she said, "I want her to come to the full realization that in order to be an attractive woman, a woman with an outstanding personality, she must cultivate two things—fine people and real knowledge.

"All during the year," she continued, "we make every effort to provide our girls with both of these requirements. Academic subjects of course are part of school. But we are laying great stress on personal contacts.

"Every week we have forums. I invite outstanding persons to come and talk to the girls. Not just prominent men and women, but persons who have something to contribute to the development of the students.

"To my mind an attribute necessary to the really attractive woman is the ability to form clear, intelligent opinions. This tends to make her a good conversationalist and it also tends to teach her to listen. For she must listen to acquire first hand knowledge on which to base her opinions. As a result she acquires an independence of thought."

Demand Creates Supply.

Mrs. Farrington believes a girl can only learn the social graces by being placed in situations which demand them.

"Consequently," she said, "we give a great many social functions. The girls meet young and old persons, and have to talk to them. They see the other girls and recognize a degree of competition. As a result they are called upon to exert themselves toward being attractive.

"If they feel at a loss at first, they catch on by watching others. They see how much better it is to stand on their feet, and not lean all over things, to walk lightly, and not clump, to talk in modulated tones and not be noisy, and to dress properly.

"These things can be learned, and are learned just in this indirect manner of teaching. I've seen it happen hundreds of times."

Mrs. Farrington cited a student who had come to Chevy Chase from the Middle West. Having always lived in a very small town, she came to Washington somewhat blinded by an imaginary glamour of the Nation's Capital.

Her classroom dresses were of the dinner variety. Her evening gowns were magnificent models of bows, ruffles, rhinestones and artificial flowers.

Mrs. Farrington was eager that none of the students tell her she was not dressed properly because she felt the girl would be better off if she found out herself.

Story With Moral.

One evening about three weeks after school started came a gentle tap on the regent's door and the girl entered. She said she realized her clothes were inappropriate and would Mrs. Farrington go with her to select new ones. Her graduating year this girl was picked out by a costume authority who was visiting the school as the best-dressed student there.

This incident, she pointed out, evidenced the value of teaching social graces by the indirect method.

Mrs. Barrows becomes acquainted with hundreds of girls entering George Washington University every year and is interesting in watching them develop.

"Of course," she said, "a university is and must be an impersonal school. But at the same time it must nowadays be one that develops the personality as well as the brain.

"We feel that no woman really has personality if her views are narrow. Consequently we try to establish a breadth of learning to bring about diverse viewpoints.

"We have clubs that meet, not so much to study, but to discuss art, music, literature, poetry, politics and such things. We like for the students to take part in one or two, or even three of these.

"And then we try to teach them to use the libraries. Once they have learned this they have a broad means of knowledge at their disposal, and can cultivate many interests and follow wide fields of learning."

How did Mme. de Maintenon succeed in winning Louis XIV? Find the answer in tomorrow's Post in the sixth article of this series.

Strictly Speaking

A-Gardening.

1. In England, the word narcissus and daffodil are used interchangeably for the some flowers. What is the real difference between a narcissus and a daffodil? Is either the same as the jonquil?
2. What is the correct pronunciation for gladiolus?
3. What is the canterbury bell? Why is it so called, and how is it pronounced?
4. What is clematis? How pronounced?
5. Where is the accent in peony?

Answers Here.

1. Narcissus is a family name including both jonquils and daffodils. The word jonquil is used when speaking of the many-flowered, one-stem members of the family. Daffodils have trumpet-type flowers. When the word narcissus is used with reference to a flower rather than a family of flowers, it designates a plant with short, cupped blossoms on rush stems.
2. It is either gla-DIE-o-lus or glad-i-O-lus. The word is taken directly from the latin, and the accent properly falls on the third from the last syllable (the antepenult). Glad-i-O-lus is, however, common in popular and colloquial usage.
3. The canterbury bell is a plant with bell-shaped flowers, so named because it is found near Canterbury, England. CAN-ter-ber-i-BELL.
4. Clematis — pronounced KLEM-a-tis not klem-AY-tis is a perennial plant of the crowfoot family.
5. The accent is one the first syllable—PEE-o-ni.

A Midnight Raid on Ice Box Is Guarantee of Restful Sleep

PERSONS who raid the ice box at bed time may be undermining their digestion, but they are improving their chances for restful sleep.

A light snack, preferably of cereal and milk, improves the sleep of adults 6 per cent, Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the psychological laboratories at Colgate University, determined by recent experiments.

The sleep of children is improved 12 per cent when they are given a light supper instead of the ordinary last meal of the day, according to Dr. Laird. Easily digested cereal and milk form the ideal main dish of the light supper.

Restlessness Overcome.

"Children are usually restless during their sleeping hours becuse they have failed to digest the meal they ate just before going to bed," said Dr. Laird when he announced the results of his experiments. "It is possible to overcome some of that restlessness by giving them only the more easily digested foods for supper.

The average adult who goes to bed when his stomach is practically empty of foods eaten at dinner presented an entirely different problem.

"Since an empty stomach is subject to rhythmical hunger contractions there was reason to believe these contractions were sometimes strong enough to cause restless sleep," explained Dr. Laird.

Sleep Experiments.

By experimenting with eight adults, the laboratory director learned a bedtime snack reduced the contractions so restlessness was decreased as much as 6 per cent.

Eight children between the ages of 4½ and 8 served as subjects for Dr. Laird. While the adults' sleep study was conducted in a specially constructed laboratory, the children were studied in their homes. A number of delicate scientific instruments, including the somnokinetograph, recorded the reactions of the sleepers.

This Shaving Powder Jar Won't Smash

Masculine Curses and Feminine Nerves Can Be Saved.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THEY'RE unpleasant to hear, those masculine epithets that set the ears a-tingling when a bottle or jar crashes on the bathroom floor!

And it's a nerve-racking occasion, so say the gentlemen, when they reach for their shaving powder and have it slip from their hands and scatter in the midst of much broken glass.

A manufacturer of many things, such as cosmetics and perfume, has recently struck a new chord with a new and altogether handy package of after-shaving powder. It comes in a "plaskon" container which looks like glass, but won't break. It's sturdy enough to bear up under he-man treatment whether in the bathroom or the Pullman. The size is just right for the shelf, or for tucking away in a bag or kit.

As it's slim and panelled it permits an easy, firm grip. And there are no la-de-da colors to affront masculine taste.

The powder is in a natural skin tone so that it won't stand out like a coating of flour on a clean-shaven face. Furthermore, it's scented with lavender, but just slightly, so as to suit the gentlemen. The price is modest.

* * * *

And Now the Ladies.

And now for the ladies. The same store which sells this ideal masculine item is sponsoring a sale of face powder. Large boxes with a small purse-size bottle of perfume are only 55 cents.

Cheap face powder is never a good buy. It doesn't adapt itself to the skin, never looks quite as smooth and natural as it should. So good face powder at a special price is one of the best bargains in the world!

Paint Without Paint.

An answer to how to paint without paint is found in one of the children's games featured in an F street shop. There's a book of interesting pictures, each one devoid of color. And there's a brush. All one does is dip the brush in water and rub it over the picture, which slowly changes from mere outline into a colored print. Here's a real sport for the very young.

Convivial Key.

A combination corkscrew and bottle opener in the shape of a key is selling in a Connecticut avenue store.

The host or hostess can always bid a guest welcome by presenting him with this key, which is apt to fit a great many things and open the way to a convivial occasion. It makes a tricky little compensation prize. And it's a useful gadget to carry around.

A Tile Song.

Visitors to a local shop have evinced interest in the lovely Spanish tile table on display. But the price—so many felt, they couldn't afford it. And lucky those who waited, for because of summer sales it's been reduced to half price!

It's a dream of a table—a tile song in blue, gold and green. The exquisite soft colors of the individual tiles catch the artist's eye, and completely charm the layman.

A table of this type is suited to many things. It's lovely on a terrace, or in a sun room, and brightens up a den or library. It can be used for coffee or cocktails, or for beauty's sake alone.

* * * *

Illuminated Aquaria.

Another store is going in for half prices, too, this one with some fish aquaria. During the winter they attracted many visitors who were struck with the idea of hanging them on a wall and watching the guppies or what not swish around in the illuminated water. Each aquarium is equipped with a long narrow bulb in the top which throws a soft luminous effect to the water. While most of these on sale are for hanging, there are some available for flat table use.

Quick Drying.

Summertime, as most people will agree, is most surely a bad time for keeping the hair sleek and groomed. Pins do little good, whether used by the dozen or not. And after a swim hair is an ordeal!

But it can be arranged easily in large swooping waves, or slicked back to stray if one uses a hair lotion recommended by a downtown store. It's a favorite wave set due to its rapidity in drying. A very few minutes after it's applied, one may safely put on a hat and venture out. Price, 50 cents.

* * * *

Another Convenience.

There's another home convenience in a G street shop. It's a fruit strainer that fits any glass or cocktail shaker. Just place it across the top and pour in the juices, and there's nothing else to worry about.

This is particularly handy when one is fixing just a couple of cocktails. A lot of trouble saved for only 19 cents!

When Milk Turns Sour It's Time to Start Baking

Spice Cake, Pancakes and Muffins All React Splendidly to Quick-Soured Milk, Not That Which Has Had Time Really to Spoil.

By Ann Barrett.

WHEN the milk turns, so does the baking turn—for the better! Then it is that the knowing cook gets busy in the cause of light-as-a-feather spice cake. Muffins with an extra-good flavor; pancakes, so marvelously tender they practically melt in the mouth.

A point to be remembered in this kind of cooking is that quick-soured milk gives the best flavor; and that sour milk which stands around so long as to really spoil, is of course, unfit for use. Aside from this, it's just a matter of having some good recipes at hand. And here's one for spice cake that's extra-tasty, I think, on account of the lemony icing.

Lemon Spice Cake.

This is easily made. Just mix and sift together several times 3 cups sifted pastry flour, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 cups granulated sugar. Then (in another bowl) mix together 1 cup sour milk, ½ cup softened (not melted) butter, 2 whole eggs (unbeaten) and 1 egg-yolk.

Next, combine the two mixtures and beat vigorously (with split spoon) for 2 minutes. Pour batter into buttered pan (about 8 by 10 by 2 inches) and bake in moderate oven (350 F.) about 25 minutes. Then turn cake out to cool, and ice with following icing:

Put ⅞ cup granulated sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind and 1 egg-white in top of double boiler over hot water. Then beat steadily with heavy rotary beater till mixture stiffens. Remove from fire and beat with spoon till cool enough to spread.

Sour-Milk Muffins.

For those tasty sour-milk muffins, here's how: First cream ¼ cup butter and ¼ cup sugar. Add 1 whole egg, and beat vigorously. Then fold in the sifted dry ingredients (1½ cups sifted general-use flour, ⅜ teaspoon soda and ¼ teaspoon salt) alternately with ¾ cup sour milk. Pour batter into well-greased muffins tins, and bake in hot oven (400 F.) about 15 minutes. Makes 8 large muffins.

Blueberry Griddle Cakes.

If you can get hold of 1 cup blueberries, they'll add an extra-elegant touch to sour-milk pancakes. Like this: First mix and sift together 1¼ cups sifted general-use flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, 2 tablespoons sugar. Then mix in 1 cup sour milk (to which you have added 1 well-beaten egg).

Last, stir in 1 cup blueberries (lightly, so as not to break them). Bake cakes on hot griddle, and serve with plenty of butter and powdered sugar.

Mrs. C. Hargis Gets First for Unusual Recipe

Brandied Peaches in Old Southern Style Is Her Offering.

By Susan Mills.

PEACH recipes for chutneys, pickles, pies, cobblers and miscellaneous desserts came into the office this week. Elimination for prize-winning contributions was difficult.

For an unusual old Southern recipe for brandied peaches first prize, $3, is awarded Mrs. C. J. Hargis, Vienna, Va. Second prize, $2, is given Miss Harmonia Earmon, 1940 Calvert street northwest, for a recipe for peach chutney. Peach syllabub brought the third prize, $1, to Mrs. C. W. Clever, 125 North Oak street, Clarendon, Va.

Honorable mentions are awarded Mrs. Georgia Norman, Miss Gertrude Sibley Phalen, Miss Emma J. Grady, and Miss Emily C. Kennedy.

May we use this opportunity to thank the contributors for their very interesting recipes and letters to this department? The cooperative attitude shown by housewives makes the management of the contest doubly a pleasure.

The prize winning recipes appear in order:

Brandy Peaches.

Wipe peaches to remove fuzz; do not peel. Pack in quart jars which have been thoroughly scalded. Place a layer of fruit in the jars, then a layer of brown sugar. Stick a whole clove in every other peach. Let the last layer be brown sugar. Adjust rubber and top securely. Bury in ground at least three feet to avoid freezing.

If made now they should be ready for use in December.

Peach Chutney.

4 quarts peeled, stoned peaches
5 cups vinegar
3 small cloves garlic, chopped
½ cup of chopped onion
1 ounce hot red peppers cut up
¼ pound white mustard seed
¾ cup seedless raisins
3 tablespoons scraped ginger root
½ cup sugar

Add two cups of the vinegar to the peeled, stoned peaches and simmer till soft. Add the garlic, onion, red pepper, mustard seed, raisins, ginger root, sugar and the rest of the vinegar. Boil gently for 15 minutes. Then pour into hot sterile jars and seal at once.

Peach Syllabub.

Dry whip the whites of two eggs, add to them two tablespoons powdered sugar and two-thirds of a teaspoon each of lemon and orange juice. Then fold into the mixture, a spoonful at a time, two-thirds of a pint of cream whipped to a dry froth. Have ready four ripe peaches which have been put through a colander. Stir the fruit a little at a time into the other mixture. Chill on ice. Serve in glasses.

Bigger and Brighter Towels Strewn on Summer Beaches

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Wear your smoked glasses when you go to the beach this summer. Against sunshine, to be sure. But equally against the dazzling brilliance of the big, bright beach towels. For never have they been bigger nor brighter—nor better looking.

Stripes certainly have the edge on the designs. Narrow stripes. Wide stripes. Combinations of narrow and wide. Six different colored stripes all on one towel are not too many . . . not the exception, either, but more the rule.

Sometimes one-half a towel will be striped in one color . . . brown, perhaps . . . while the other half flaunts stripes of an entirely different color . . . such as green.

Two-Way Stripes.

Somtimes the stripes go two ways—vertically and horizontally . . . combining into block checks on an end. And somtimes they go diagonally to make a diamond-shaped plaid.

Many plaids are used. Bold, blatant ones. Open checks, too. So that when you find a plain color towel without a design you think it most conservative, even though it happens to be scarlet or orange.

Red-White-Blue.

Blue, green, red and yellow make a good four-color combination. Red and navy stripes are used on a white ground.

Most of these towels have white backgrounds, but some are natural color. Brown-and-orange is an effective combination to use on these natural grounds.

Towels of the types described may be found in Washington in all the better department stores.

SLANDER

By Arthur Somers Roche

"SCIENCE seems to have the occasional unhappy faculty of making life too obvious, and what we think are virtues are mere responses to our needs. I don't know. If it isn't too great an impertinence to think that God would deign to notice me, I would feel that I had been called by Him. But anyway, no matter why I'm going, I am going. I have to go."

"Whither thou goest," she smiled.

Ready for China.

"You can't mean that. Are you trying to tell me that you want to share the life I'll lead in China?"

"Is it gallant to refuse a lady's prayer?" she asked mischievously.

"Don't be gay; you only make it harder for me."

"And I shall continue making it harder for you until you give in. You say it's an impulse; perhaps you're right. But it's a decent impulse. And at the same time it's a selfish impulse. Peter, I just can't live without you and I'm not going to try."

"I'm a woman, Peter," Martha continued. "I'm a human being. Those two things mean that I'm changeable and flighty and not certin of myself most of the time. I'll change my mind half a dozen times this morning, but when you take that train this afternoon, Pete, you'll find that I'll be with you. Human beings aren't perfect. They hate those whom they choose to hold responsible for their entanglements. There are going to be times, Pete, when I'll actually hate you. You can't love as much as I know I can love without being able to hate, for a little while, the thing I love. You'll have to be patient with me. You'll have to realize that while your call to service buoys you up above hardship and disappointment, I will have only my love for you and your love for me. If we were to move down to Long Island and you were to establish a fashionable practice, I could promise you, in deep sincerity, that while I might be occasionally petulant, I would never be angry, never nag, never be a weight upon you.

Difficulties Recognized.

"But in the life we're going to lead, under the conditions we're going to live, I can't promise any of those things. I'm going to miss bridge, and the theaters, and gay week-ends, and dances, and nicely appointed things. I wouldn't be human if I didn't miss them, and I'd be a liar if I told you I wouldn't miss them, and our life is to start with no lie, Pete. It won't be easy; I expect to shed oceans of tears. But I expect to love you until I die. Pete, are you taking me with you?"

He looked at her.

"I'm not going to kiss you, Martha, though I'm not afraid of the people outside who can see us through the window, or of the people in the hotel lobby here. I'm not going to touch your hand. I'm going down to the railroad station. I'm going to get a drawing room to Chicago, and another one from Chicago to Seattle. Then I'm going to find a minister. I'm going to ask him to marry us. I'm going to see the railroad company's insurance adjuster. The railroad has been very kind. A man saw me this morning, to tell me that any cash I needed would be given me at once to replace my effects. They would waive formalities. I'll need that cash to buy another outfit in Chicago in the few hours I'll be there.

"I have a very few thousand dollars in the bank, but we can get a check cashed in Chicago to buy things for you. My train leaves at 3 o'clock. Between now and 2 you'll have to think. If you feel you say you do, it wouldn't be fair to kiss you, not fair to either of us. Neither of us would think clearly if we kissed. So I'm going to walk out of here. I'll come back at 2 with everything ready for our marriage. I want you to spend these next few hours in thinking. I don't want you to let your emotions race away with you. If you tell me at 2 that you do not care enough to share my life I shall be disappointed beyond my power to express, but not disappointed in you, Martha, for I will know that you have decided what is best for both of us.

He Looked Pathetic.

He rose abruptly and walked out of the hotel. She stumbled toward the stairs that led to her room. Through the plate-glass window she saw him on the sidewalk. He looked pathetic with the bandage about his head, in his soiled and shabby clothes. She touched her fingers to her lips and threw a kiss in his direction.

Martha went to her room. She picked up the Buffalo papers which had been left at her door this morning. She tried to read the account of the wreck of yesterday, but all she saw was the recurring name of Dr. Peter Baxter. She put the paper down and stared out the window.

Remoteness Realized.

Tai Ping. The very name connoted remoteness, strangeness, loneliness. And Bert Cranston, proud though he might be, would still be glad to take her. It would be pleasant being married to Bert. That routine life which until recently she had not thought she could live without was a delightful routine. Even if one's husband left one occasionally for trips of exploration, there would be the excitement of his going and the joy of his returns. If one loved him.

But did one love a person, or did one love the things for which that person stood? But that couldn't be so, for she didn't love China, didn't love Pete's profession.

She leaned back in a chair and closed her eyes. She saw herself set down in the heart of China, surrounded by jabbering, dirty natives. She visualized the long months, the years even, when the only person with whom she could exchange speech with would be Pete.

Boredom Possible.

Would she be bored with him? The question was absurd. Of course she'd be bored with him, just exactly as she would hate him occasionally. But had she the fineness of character, the endurance of soul to survive the trials and the hardships of life with him?

But who could answer that? She hoped she could endure it. Certainly, if one loved with passion, one should give that love a chance to find out how durable it was.

The telephone in her room jangled sharply. She glanced at her watch. Hours had passed; it was 2 o'clock; she hadn't even thought to order luncheon. She trembled so that she was barely able to walk across the room to the telephone. The instrument shook in her hand as she lifted it from a table.

"Martha? I'm downstairs."

"Why, Pete, I've forgotton to pack my bag."

She heard him chuckle.

Not Such a Sap.

"What wonderful helpmeet you'll be for a missionary doctor. You know, you'll have to mix my medicines, and if you forget them——"

"I suppose you'll scold," she laughed.

"Scold? Don't be silly. A few patients will die, that's all."

"I'll pack the bag in two minutes," she promised.

In the middle of her packing she stopped and laughed aloud. What had he said? That he wouldn't scold but that a few patients would die. Oh, perhaps it wasn't the brightest witticism ever uttered, but it was gay, just as he was gay. He might have a mission, might feel himself called to service, but never would he lose the gayety that went with his red hair, his freckles, his blue eyes. She made a little prayer, that God would never let her lose her gayety, either. She snapped the lock of her bag. She must remember to wire Mrs. Gray to send her things instantly to Seattle. She must send wires to Trudie, to all her friends. She must go downstairs at once. The train left in an hour.

The clerk at the desk saw her approach the bandaged hero of the wreck. This time she didn't blow a kiss to Pete. Their lips met in full view of whoever cared to observe.

"Not such a sap after all, that guy," said the clerk to himself.

Which was, perhaps, a perfectly good substitute for rice and old shoes.

The End.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

The Nervous Child.

Through the education of the public, the cooperation of physicians, and the activities of many health associations, diseases incident to the period of childhood have been greatly reduced.

Fortunate is the family that finds itself in the hands of an understanding physician who quickly recognizes nervous overstrain or instability by such symptoms as a tendency to cry on slight provocation, resentment when justly reproved, fits of uncontrolled anger, and moody spells.

These symptoms mean that the child has a case of nerves that may have a physical basis. Undernourishment and other physical defects must receive attention. We must not regard all signs of nervousness as examples of bad behavior. These may have a definite organic basis.

In the absence of some physical disturbance the symptoms may be functional in character, requiring intelligent guidance in self-control. Specialists in children's diseases have recognized the importance of nervous and emotional strain and their emphasis upon this phase of child development will do much to prevent nervous breakdowns in adult life.

Forcing the child mentally or physically is responsible for some damage to the nervous system. Speed tests, a part of the routine in certain schools, may stimulate a few. These same tests may unduly depress, discourage, and dishearten the developing child whose progress may be a bit slower but who in the long run may outdistance his precocious schoolmate.

Boxing
Golf

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

MR. BILLY McCARNEY, who splits an infinitive as painlessly as Harlow gets her man, is the king of story-tellers, as far as this department is concerned. Mr. McCarney, having bandied about with boxing since before Hector was conceived, can regale his audience with the countless quirks of his boxing experiences until aching sides demand surcease.

All this is leading up to Mr. Jimmy Erwin. If Mr. McCarney is indeed the king of story-tellers, then Washington's Mr. Erwin is the crown prince. Mr. Erwin can spin a yarn of the roped arena for every birth in China. He was telling me yesterday about Sam Langford, the old Boston Tar Baby, who placed himself under Erwin's management in the sunset days of his glittering fistic trail.

"I had old Sam down in Juarez in 1924," said Erwin. "He was 37 then, but still a great drawing card. He was packing 'em in in the old bull ring where we staged the fights. There warn't anybody down that way who could keep his chin out of the way of Sam's right hand.

"Finally they imported a big Negro from New Orleans, named Jim Owens, to battle old Sam. Owens came to town with his handlers. His manager was Tony Marullo, the former bantamweight. Marullo meets Sam in his dressing room and tells him about this Owens, who has just fought a whale of a fight with Harry Wills down in New Orleans.

"'You better be spry in there tonight, Sam,' this Marullo tells old Sam. 'My boy's gonna pop you outa there early and catch the sleeper back home.'

"'Doan you worry 'bout me,' says Sam. 'I'se 'll take care o' myself. You just make sure you got some big handlers in there to drag your boy to de co'ner when it's all over, 'cause I ain't aimin' to put in much time myself tonight. Dem little seconds you got with you doan look so powerful to me.'

"Old Sam watches the semifinal bout from the runway into the ring when they lead this Owens in for the main bout. Sam takes one look at Owens, who weighs 276, the biggest man since Willard. 'Mah Gawd,' says Sam. 'Dey sure does get de biggest, blackest folks to fight me, anyway.'"

"Well, this big Owens knocks Sam down in the first round. It's a half-shove and doesn't hurt Sam at all. Australian Billy Smith is the referee and they are fighting under the Marquis of Queensberry rules. There's no such thing as the clean break in the original Marquis of Queensberry rules which only say that a fighter must protect himself at all times. Here in America, the referee always warns the fighters not to hit coming out of the clinches. But Australian Bill didn't give any instructions like that.

"So, along about the sixth round, Old Sam catches this big Owens coming out of a clinch. He whips that old right to Owens' chin, and there's Owens stretched out cold for the full count. Sam really cooled him off.

"Sam starts to leave the ring when he notices Owens' seconds trying to drag him from the center of the ring to his corner. They are three little guys who can't budge the 276-pounder. Sam climbs back in the ring to look the situation over.

"'What you tryin' to do d'ere?' asks Sam. 'Didn't I tell you you better get some big men to haul dis guy away when it was all over. What you tryin' to do now?'

"'We're trying to get him over to his stool, over there,' say the three little handlers, pointing to Owens' corner.

"Sam takes another look at Owens and the three guys who are trying to haul him away. Then he looks over to the corner at the stool they were trying to get Owens on.

"'I tell you what,' says Sam.

"'What?' say the seconds.

"'Why doan you go over d'ere and get dat stool and bring it over here.'"

Joe Knight Wins.

Atlanta, July 6 (AP).—Joe Knight, Cairo, Ga., light-heavyweight, won a decision over Rosy Rosales, of Cleveland, in a dull ten-round fight here tonight.

Mrs. B. F. Long, 3102 Eighteenth street northwest, says she is a Post "rooter"—and no wonder. Last winter when she had a room for rent she found a tenant the first day through a Post Classified Ad. Mrs. Long telephoned early on the first morning the paper appeared to say she had rented the apartment to a Post reader. For "Today's Results Today" just call

Keyser-Kirson Win District Doubles

Miller-Moore Beaten by 6-2, 6-4 in Finals of Women's Tennis.

IT remained for 18-year-old Peggy Keyser, left-handed little graduate of Central High School, to salvage the one lone bit of consolation for Washington out of the 1934 Women's District Tennis Championships yesterday and she did the job so thoroughly that it eased much of the rub caused by the rout of Capital City players throughout the tournament.

Paired with Reba Kirson, of Baltimore, Miss Keyser was a major factor in her team's victory in the final round of the doubles over Mrs. Dorette Miller and Sara Moore, of Washington, by scores of 6—2, 6—4 at Columbia Country Club. Miss Kirson, in sharing the title with Miss Keyser, retained the honors which she won last year with Mrs. Frances Walker Bassett, of Washington.

Singles Finals Today.

Miss Kirson will play Frances Grimes, the hard-hitting lass from Morgantown, W. Va., in the finals of the singles this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Although the Baltimore girl was seeded No. 1, two rungs above Miss Grimes, and was runner-up for the 1933 crown, she is little more than an even choice to win the championship today.

The victory which pretty Peggy and raven-haired Reba annexed yesterday completed their tournament competition without so much as losing a set. Only a few hours

Princeton Eight, Winthrop Win in Day Marked by Record Feats.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England, July 6 (AP).—Men of Princeton — Sculler Winthrop Rutherfurd and the fast Tiger varsity eight—pulled into the finals today of the two principal events of another record-smashing day in the historic Henley regatta, but their chances for the morrow were anything but bright.

Tomorrow the Princeton varsity, stroked by big Aikman Armstrong, jr., will row the powerful Leander eight in the final for the Grand Challenge Cup, and the performances of the English crew of Cambridge and Oxford graduates has been so impressive that the Tigers are 1 to 3 underdogs.

Opposes Dr. Buntz.

Rutherfurd, amateur coach of the Princeton eight, meets Dr. Herbert Buntz, the German who won in 1932, in the finals of the classic diamond sculls, and here, too, the American is conceded small chance.

The Princeton Varsity, making its first start, whipped through to a length victory over Pembroke College, of Cambridge, and Rutherfurd defeated R. F. Winstone, of England, by a length.

The Yale crew of 150-pounders, only other American survivor in the field of six entries two days ago, lost out in the quarter-finals of the Thames Cup competition to the Thames Rowing Club, of London, by half a length in a thrillingly close race.

Ray Francis, Ex-Nat, Dies

Atlantan Is Stricken With Heart Attack.

ATLANTA, July 6 (U.P.). — Ray Francis, former major league hurling star, who reached his heyday with Washington and Detroit, died suddenly from a heart attack here this afternoon.

Francis, a left-handed pitcher, who enjoyed success with the Nats in 1922 before being traded to the Tigers by Manager George McBride, was a member of the Atlanta police force at the time of his death.

Complaining of "heartburn" while on duty downtown, Francis asked for a dose of bicarbonate of soda at a drug store. After taking it he toppled to the floor. He died en route to a hospital.

Francis played at Detroit while Ty Cobb was manager. After two years with Atlanta, he was sold to the New York Yankees in 1925.

Francis is survived by his widow and a 2-year-old daughter.

Perry Routs Crawford For Title

Wins, 6–3, 6–0, 7–5, to Give England Crown After 25 Years.

Lott and Stoefen Down Hopman and Prenn to Reach Finals.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6 (AP).—Fred Perry, England's great "artisan" tennis player, rose to the greatest heights of his brilliant career today to present England with its own singles championship for the first time in 25 years. A. W. Gore was the last Englishman to win, in 1909.

Where John Bull's best "public school boys" had proved inadequate for a quarter of a century to cope with the invaders, Perry stepped in and crushed Jack Crawford, the world's No. 1 player from the end of the empire, Australia, just like breaking sticks—6–3, 6–0, 7–5.

Perry, the boy who only a few years ago had to ask his employers' permission to get off work to play in park tournaments, proved himself the undoubted master of the present crop of amateurs, and possibly entitled to rank with the greatest of all time. Seldom has a player of Crawford's ability absorbed such a thorough shellacking as Perry applied.

Third Time in Year.

What's more, he was doing it for the third time in a year. Perry went to Australia to take Crawford's home title away on his own grounds, and he whipped Crawford for the American singles championship last September. But for an injured ankle, which probably cost him a quarter-final match against Gregorio de Stefani, in the French championships, he might have achieved the tennis equivalent of Bobby Jones' golfing grand slam of 1930.

What made the one-sided triumph today doubly impressive was the fact that Crawford had full control of his own smooth game at all times. Yet Perry not only proved himself able to outlast the Australian master at his own back-court driving game, but he advanced throughout behind his fiery backhand, forcing Crawford into errors, or putting the ball away with smashes that bounced into the covered stands.

Full of fire from the start to finish, Perry played at top speed for every point and never let his empire rival get a foothold. He missed the defensive court with his explosive first service only about once in each five tries. He lost his own delivery only twice in the hour and ten minutes it took him to complete his conquest, one of the shortest in Wimbledon's history.

Outside of the champion's superb

St. Louis, July 6 (AP).—The Reds and Cardinals hit and run themselves dizzy today, Cincinnati finally winning a sandlot ball game, 16 to 15.

The Cardinals paraded seven pitchers to the mound. Jesse Haines, who started for the Cardinals, was driven out in the first inning when the Reds scored seven runs. The Cardinals made 16 hits to 15 for the Reds, but the visitors' included home runs by Schulmerich, Lombardi and Slade, while Rip Collins' round tripper was the only one for the Red Birds.

American All-Stars Rated 7 to 10 to Win

St. Louis, July 6 (AP).—Tom Kearney, veteran St. Louis betting commissioner, today made the American League entry a 7-to-10 favorite to win the all-star baseball game in New York next Tuesday. Kearney offered even money on the National League team.

The odds on the American Leaguers mean a bettor must risk $10 to win $7, whereas $10 on the National League team—plus a victory—would double the "investor's" money.

"I figure Gomez, of the Yankees, will pitch for the American League team, and Hubbell, of the Giants, for the Nationals," Kearney said.

Tony Galento To Fight for Dempsey

By Bill McCormick.

TONY GALENTO, the rollicking punch pusher from New Jersey, yesterday was tacitly nominated crown prince of the heavyweight division by Jack Dempsey when the erstwhile Manassa Mauler assumed complete control of the Mighty Monarch of the Mosquito Marshes. Galento will make his first appearance under the direction of the former heavyweight champion, who generally is credited with being the chief helmsman in piloting Mad Maxie Baer to the ring's most coveted title, at Griffith Stadium on July 16 against Bob Tow, of Alexandria, in a match that has been underwritten for $4,000 by Tow's manager.

"Galento may not be able to lick Max Baer," Dempsey told The Post from his New York apartment last night, "but right now he'll give him a good battle. He can punch, can take it, but doesn't know much. He's the only heavyweight I can see around that looks like he's got the stuff and I'm going to make something of him. I shall train him personally and figure it'll take about a year to rub off the rough edges and get him ready for top shots."

Mum on Lasky Bout.

Dempsey refused to confirm information received by The Post from authentic sources that Galento already was lined up for a bout with Art Lasky, the Minnesota mauler, who at present is creating a sensation on the Pacific Coast.

"Tony will fight any and all of 'em," the former king of the heavyweights said. "He may go to the Coast for a Lasky fight, but I wouldn't care to say yet. The kid's never had a manager before and hasn't done too much training, but he will now. In about a year or so, he'll be smartened up enough for the best of them."

Galento originally was scheduled to meet Natie Brown in the Griffith Stadium bout, but demanded a flat $1,000 for the contest. Promoter Joe Turner refused the demand, but offered Billy McCarney, Brown's manager, 40 per cent of the gate if he would pay the Galento guarantee. McCarney refused as Beverley May, manager of Tow, in some quarters considered an outstanding prospect, offered to guarantee Turner a $4,000 gate if his

Londos Tosses Shikat at Philly

Home Boy Is Victim of Greek's Body Slam.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6 (AP).—Jim Londos, 195½, of Greece, tonight tossed Dick Shikat, 220, of Philadelphia, in 50 minutes 33 seconds, to retain his world's heavyweight wrestling title, as recognized in Pennsylvania, New York and other sections of the country.

The burly Greek used an airplane whirl and body slam and press to finish his husky rival. Until Londos raised the Philadelphian in the whirl, the going had been about even, each applying routine holds which were more or less quickly broken by the other.

In one of the half-hour preliminaries, Ernie Dusek, 215, of Omaha, pinned Bert Rubi, 195, Hungary, with a body press in 22:52. Earl McCready, 238, Oklahoma, won a referee's decision over Hans Steinke, 241, Germany, in 30 minutes, and George Hagen, 212, Brooklyn, N. Y., threw Doug Wyckoff, 212, Atlanta, in 12:37, with an arm pull and shoulder bump.

Nats Beat Yanks, 9-8, On 2 Runs in Eighth

Manush Gets 2 Singles and Double; Gehrig Slams No. 24.

Cronin's Triple Decides; Whitehill Is Relieved; Russell Holds Foe.

By Lewis F. Atchison
(Post Staff Correspondent).

YANKEE STADIUM, July 6 (Spl.).—On two rules of economics hinged the outcome of today's battle between the struggling Washington nine and pace-setting New Yorkers, and because Joe Cronin and his scholarly classmates hit upon the correct solution they won the ball game, 9 to 8, disposed of their recent losing streak at three games, and regained their fourth-place seat in the first division.

Working for the Nationals was the law of averages—against them was that of supply and demand. By the first it was high time they won another game from their hosts, whom they had not trimmed since May 30.

In the second instance, grave doubt existed concerning the batsmen's ability to supply the necessary hits and runs demanded by the sour brand of pitching that has crept upon the club and hindered its pennant ambitions.

Ten juicy hits, two triplets and a brace of doubles, all propelled with telling effect to proper portions of the stadium in critical situations, constituted the sum and substance of Washington's answer. It was correct.

Gehrig Hits No. 24.

Working against the law of averages, the Yanks marked down 12 safeties, including Larruping Lou (sometimes referred to as Pants) Gehrig's twenty-fourth home run of the year. But inasmuch as only one man rode around with Lou this Crowder Faces Gomez Today; Cronin Sees Better Hurling.

Pilot Points to Hitting; Asserts Washington Is Still in Race.

NEW YORK, July 6 (Spl.).—It will be Al Crowder against Lean Lefty Gomez when Washington and the Yankees tangle in the third game of their series tomorrow.

Cronin was a bit more cheerful tonight after the team's victory over Joe McCarthy's tribe. He was indignant at a story printed in a New York paper which quoted him as saying that the Yanks should win the pennant if they held their own on the next Western swing.

"I said no such a thing," he snorted. "What I said was that the Yanks will have to play their fool heads off to get by those Western clubs, and if they do they might have a chance at the pennant. Don't forget, we've always been a good road club and we are still in the race."

Sees Ray of Light.

Joe actually believes that Washington has taken a turn for the better and will be a real contender from now on. He actually expects his boys to go out there and hammer Gomez off his perch tomorrow in less time than it takes to write this.

He is tickled pink with the club's hitting, pointing out Kress' recent efforts at the plate, the fact that Manush continues to lead the league's best, that Cecil Travis is pressing the veterans for the batting championship, and that the others are coming through in the pinches.

Of course, the pitching hasn't been all it should, but Cronin was all smiles after Earl Whitehill's work this afternoon.

"You saw what he did to them today," he beamed, "well, he's gonna win lots more of them for us. Then there's Crowder, he's just hitting his stride, and Weaver is going well. A little help from the rest of the boys and we'll soon be back on top."

Joe diverted the conversation for a moment to verify the fact that Gomez will pitch the first three innings next Tuesday for the American League all-stars against the National Leaguers. Rumors have been wafted about to the contrary.

"I hope we beat him tomorrow, but I hope he stops that other crowd Tuesday," Cronin said.

Cubs Top Pirates; Bush Gives 5 Hits

27,000 See Chicago Rout Foe by 9-1 Score.

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Guy Bush's 5-hit pitching and a 17-hit attack against Waite Hoyt and Ralph Birkofer combined to give the Cubs a 9-to-1 victory over Pittsburgh today in the opener of a four-game series before a ladies' day crowd of 27,000. The victory advanced the second-place Chicagoans to within 2½ games of the leading Giants.

Tigers Win, 4-3, Gaining Game On Yanks

Defeat Browns in Contest Called at End of 5th Because of Rain.

DETROIT, July 6 (AP).—Playing through intermittent rain squalls which finally forced the conclusion of the game at the end of the fifth inning, the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 3, today.

In winning today the Tigers gained a full game on the New York Yankees, who were beaten by Washington, 9 to 8. Detroit is now one-half game behind New York.

Gelding Beats In High by A Head

Palumbo's Ride Aids in Victory; Golden Measure Third.

Jockey Eddie Smith Pilots Both Ends of $22.40 Double.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., July 6.—Sam Palumbo, the Gem o' the Ocean jockey, believes the best way to cool off on a hot day is to ride on a fast horse. All of which is not a bad idea, especially when you can grab a little breeze and the long end of a purse all in the same motion. He did just that today when he booted Easter Herald to victory in the Shenandoah Valley Jockey Club's feature race.

Palumbo had ridden two other horses on the program, but finished far back where the dust was most annoying. He could do no better than next to last with Hurdy Gurdy, the favorite in the first race, and last with Sambo G. in the second race.

Has His Hands Full.

He appeared to have saved all his energy for the feature race. He rode like a high school freshman turned loose with a Ford roadster. Easter Herald was a trifle tardy on the break, but Palumbo gave the gelding a couple of bounces and he was in front. Americana tried to match strides with the ultimate winner, but soon bit the dust. In High took up the job of chief chasing at this point and barely missed being a catcher in the stretch run. Palumbo had his hands full in keeping Easter Herald in front. A head separated the pair at pay-off time.

The $15 show part of the purse was collected by Golden Measure, which was in a challenging position all the way around, but never challenged.

Jockey Eddie Smith, of Washington, did the saddle work on both ends of the daily double, which paid $22.40. He piloted Viva Pete to the wire in the first and Thurnbergia in the third. But between the two he could not win with his mother's Repeal, which trailed Crossing Over by a length and a half.

The biggest disappointment of the day came in the sixth race, when Worthington ran a miserable race after being played down to 60 cents on the dollar. Echelon supplied the banner mutuel of the day, paying $17.20 in winning the fourth race.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Charles Town, July 6.

Get-away day—and big doings. The Jockey Club is putting on another of those turf marathons with nine races on the program and, like the grand finale in a musical comedy, every horse that can walk has its name in the entries. In fact, there are "also eligible" lists attached to three races—something of an innovation hereabouts. I went over the speed books with Clocker Mike tonight in an effort to dig up some curtain specials. We would like to make a hit or two tomorrow as the boss has ordered us to Rockingham and we desire to strut some of those Massachusetts beaches at sunset when the racing is over. If you know that Bennings, Inc., was shut out yesterday for the second time at this meeting, say nothing. We will see you later.

BILL.

First race—Ado and Viva Pete run coupled as the Overcash entry and seem to have a strong grip on this purse. Both are at tops and Viva Pete comes off a winning effort today. By Surprise and Sea Finn have fighting chances.

Second race — Clear Knight is asked to carry 116 pounds and I can't see the assignment halting this one. He will have the consistent Dutiful to beat, but the latter must move off the also eligible list. Clocker Mike is looking for Sand Bell to spring a surprise.

Third race—Flageolet and Scotty Don will battle it out for the main end of the purse here, I do believe. Both as ready as those recent races indicate. I prefer them in the order named. The Gen might awake for a big get-away mutuel.

Fourth race—Lodorus probably will go postward at liberal odds in this sprint. No cinch, but a fast thing with a fair chance of scoring. Small Change picks up a wad of weight. Veritas for the show end.

Fifth race—Wandrel moves up a couple of pegs here. Has several encouraging races to his credit and will have the honest Jackson in the saddle. Bonsoir and Bright Bird to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Hacky H. is Clocker Mike's closing-day special. Mud would help this one, but Mike says any track will do. We shall see what we shall see. Nora's Grace and Nay Nay for the other awards.

Seventh race—Royal Lassie, with Wisner up, gets the Bennings call here. Will have Modern Times and Worthington to take care of. If the last-named wins after that exhibition today, I'm recommending a permanent twitch for his nose.

Eighth Race—Luke Connell is the champion of this sort of horseflesh. I'm looking no further for the winner. Nisia might awake to make a race of it. Forest Faun for the show.

Ninth race—The mile and a quarter should be what No Mistake wants. This one packs a strong finish and will have plenty of time to wind up. Dark Star and Charley J. S. for the other money places. Mike warns that Charley is a sleeper from Sleepersville.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THURNBERGIA, $8.60, $4.40, $4.20; TRUE JOHN, $5.80, $4.60; MORDROM, $5.00.

THURNBERGIA had good speed from the start, raced MORDROM into submission after a half-mile, drew out into command leaving the back stretch, and outgamed TRUE JOHN in the drive. The latter, forced to race on the outside in the run for the first turn, moved up stoutly on the back stretch, closed well, but was not good enough. MORDROM had good early speed, but stopped.

DAILY DOUBLE (FIRST AND THIRD RACES) PAID $22.40.

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 3:58. Winner, F. E. Patterson's lt. b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ECHELON, $17.20, $10.60, $7.40; LAUNCELOT, $3.40, $3.00; DUNAIR, $4.80.

ECHELON, rated behind the pace of LAUNCELOT, came around the leader in the stretch and drew out easily on his own courage. LAUNCELOT had good early speed, saved ground on the turns and hung on well, but was no match for the winner. DUNAIR, reserved from the early pace, closed with a rush.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:22½. Winner, Mrs. C. M. Feltner's b. g. EASTER HERALD, away well, shook off AMERICANA on the back stretch, drew out in the stretch, but had to be kept under pressure to hold IN HIGH safe. The latter moved up stoutly on the outside on the back stretch, came to the inside entering the front stretch and closed well. GOLDEN MEASURE had some speed, but could never improve her position.

SIXTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:48½. Winner, H. Foote's ch. g. WAR GENERAL, far back in the early stages, moved up quickly between horses entering the stretch and drew away under urging. SELFISH GAIN, closer up than usual in the early racing, moved up stoutly on the last elbow and closed well. RUBE SAMUELSON, a trailer in the early racing, closed very fast. LIGHT ACTION closed a big gap. WORTHINGTON, sluggish in the first part, made up some ground. LADY CLAGETT had some good speed, but tired. PERSIAN STAR quit. MISS PATCHES stopped badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Voco. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 5:12½. Off at 5:13. Winner, F. C. DARK VISION had speed to go to the front at once, was rated in the lead throughout, and held MERRY MISS safe. The latter moved up stoutly entering the stretch, but was not good enough. ROZELL had good speed, but was tiring. BENDROMEL had no excuses. The others were outrun. VOCO broke in the air.

Sobieha Captures Rockingham Race

Takes $1,200 Race Easily; First Choice to Win.

Salem, N. H., July 6 (AP).—Mrs. Ed McCuane's Sobieha, 5-year-old mare which formerly campaigned in stake races before breaking down, successfully maintained her position as the favorite by easily defeating four rivals in the $1,200 sprint race which featured today's Rockingham program.

Sobieha had little difficulty wearing down F. A. Griffith's Cutie Face in the battle to the stretch and then breezed to a four-length victory, with J. D. Mikels' Gold Step finishing third.

Sabieha was the first of the favorites to come through, with Grandpa's Boy, owned by the Misses D. and S. Knight, paying $11.50 for the win in the first race, E. B. Townsend's Unlawful paying off $36 in the second and Miss L. C. White's Dornoch, the second choice, taking the third race. Another second choice, Mikels' Polyfon, beat the favorite, Mrs. E. Edwards' Macadam, in the fifth.

Lassie Stakes Today Draws 11 Fillies

NEW YORK, July 6 (AP).—Two-year-olds will take over the center ring of America's racing circus tomorrow, with 11 juvenile fillies named to start in the $10,000 Lassie Stakes, the richest event of the day, which will be run at Arlington Park.

Thirteen of the turf's youngsters were nominated for the $5,000 Juvenile Handicap at Rockingham Park, while ten were kept eligible for the 5½ furlongs of the $2,500 Motor City Stakes at Detroit.

Only at Latonia and Empire City will the older horses get a chance at the rich purses. At the Kentucky course eight 3-year-old fillies have been attracted by the $2,500 purse waiting at the end of the mile and a quarter known as the Oaks. At the New York oval, the Wheatley Stable's Dark Secret has been named, along with eight others, including E. R. Bradley's Tick On, for the $5,000 Empire City Handicap.

The Lassie will be run over six furlongs, with Irksome and Motto assigned the top weights of 119 pounds. Motto, representing C. V. Whitney, is expected to be the favorite, with Bye Lo and the W. R. Coe entry of Clean Out and Squeeze well fancied.

Although asked to pick up the heavy imposts of 126 and 120 pounds, respectively, Dark Secret and Tick On appear to be the class of the field at Empire City. Faireno, a stablemate of Dark Secret running for William Woodward, has been assigned 114 pounds, but the remainder get in with packages varying from 100 to 108 pounds.

50 Aquatic Stars to Compete Monday Night in Meet at Glen Echo's Crystal Pool

High Board A.A.U. Dive Feature

Broaddus Will Defend Title Against Knight and Lyman.

Livingstone, Yale Ace, Appears; Duvall Is Women's Choice.

HEADED by one of the country's fastest sprint swimmers, Bob Livingstone, of Yale, National intercollegiate 220-yard record holder, and captain elect of Eli's tank team for the coming season, 50 of the outstanding acquatic stars of Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia will churn the waters of Glen Echo's Crystal Pool Monday night as the Capital's outdoor competitive swim season resumes its busy course.

With the District A. A. U high board championship at stake, something in the nature of a warm battle should be waged in that event for the male entrants. Johnnie Broaddus, defending champion, is only an even choice to come through with his title intact in the face of such competition as that offered by Bob Knight, District indoor titleholder, and Joe Lyman, of Brown University, New England intercollegiate champion.

Marie Duvall Favored.

The women's championships offers only little less prospect of a close struggle, with Marie Duvall, the defending champion, a slight favorite to keep her crown. Leonora Taube, District low-board champion, is expected to press Miss Duvall to the limit.

While Livingstone is expected to plow easily to victory in the 90-yard free-style, he should run into some tougher opposition in the 120-yard backstroke in which Frank Cummings, of Baltimore, is entered. Cummings is one of the fastest dorsal swimmers in this section. While Livingstone favors the free-style, he generally cleans up in his collegiate backstroke events and what challenge Cummings may offer him Monday should prove one of the highlights of the meet.

Events for Men.

90-yard free style—N. Matthews and H. O. Kensley (Baltimore Y. M. C. A.), Dave Livingston (unattached), Robert Hack (Penn A. C.), John McMullen (Washington Y. M. C. A.).

120-yard back stroke—Frank Cummings (Baltimore Y. M. C. A.), Dave Livingston (unattached), Daniel Hogan and William Mackey (Penn A. C.), John Herbsled (Washington Canoe Club), William Marmion and James Ormes (Washington Y. M. C. A.).

440-yard free style — H. O. Kinsley, Francis Yokel, Anthony Kress, Thomas Schultz and George Cowan (Baltimore Y. M. C. A.); Daniel Hogan and William Mackey (Penn A. C.), Eric Larsen, Dick Turner and William Havens (Washington Canoe Club); Robert Hack (Penn A. C.); Ernie Boggs and William McConnell (Washington Y. M. C. A.).

Dives for men—William Tarbett (Shoreham), John Broaddus (unattached), Fred Hudson and C. E. Graves (Shoreham), Knox Moncure (Washington Y. M. C. A.), Bob Knight (Shoreham), Lee Lyman (unattached).

Events for Women.

90-yard free style—Betty O'Toole, Betty Thompson, Caroline Cox, Rita Augusterfer and Lydia Court (all of Shoreham).

120-yard breast stroke—Betty O'Toole, Helen McHale, Caroline Cox and Lenora Taube (all of Shoreham).

Fred Perry Downs Crawford in Final

play, the only thrill of the match came when Crawford broke through to take a lead of 5—4 in games in the final set. At that point Perry just opened the throttle a little wider, and went away from there with the three straight games he needed for the victory.

The only thing lacking to make Perry's triumph complete was the fact that King George and Queen Mary failed to occupy their gilt-colored easy chairs in the royal box. There probably was no connection, but British sportsmen have been slow to accept Perry into the inner circle. He has received little encouragement anywhere along the way. Crawford even received far more applause than Perry throughout the first set and the capacity crowd of 20,000 warmed up its hands for a countryman only after he had overwhelmed his rival at love in the second.

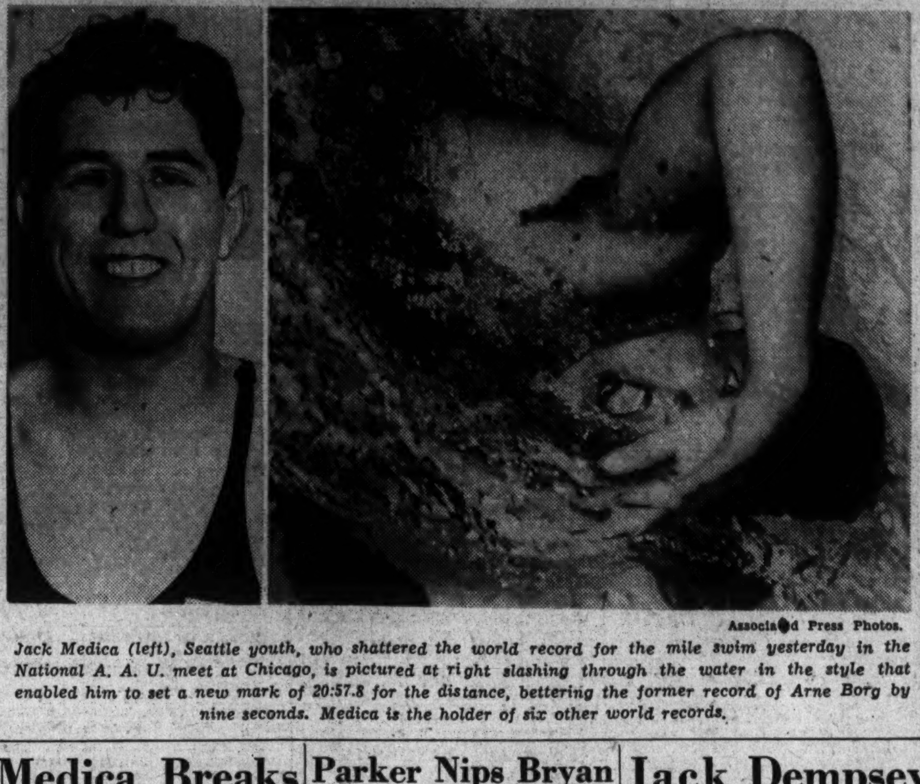
Improving with every match, George Lott and Lester Stoefen, American Davis Cup players, joined Helen Jacobs in the effort to salvage a few titles for the United States in other assorted finals tomorrow. The original American Davis Cup pair finally achieved the cohesion they have been seeking as they swept through the Australian-German combination of Harry Hopman and Daniel Prenn, 6—4, 3—6, 6—3, 8—6.

They are expected to make all kinds of trouble tomorrow for Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, the veteran French team, in the final. Borotra and Brugnon knocked out the highly touted British team of Ian G. Collins and F. H. D. Wilde today, 7—5, 3—6, 6—2, 6—4.

On the strength of her Wightman Cup victory, Miss Jacobs, American champion, is a slight favorite to beat Dorothy Round, the English girl, in the women's singles final tomorrow and the United States is certain to share in the women's doubles with Elizabeth Ryan, former Californian, and Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, pitted against Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., and Mme. Jung Henrotin, of France, in the final.

The other final tomorrow is between Henry (Bunny) Austin and Mrs. D. C. Shepherd-Barrow, all English combination, and the Anglo-Japanese team of Miss Round and R. Miki, in mixed doubles.

The New Mile Record Holder in Action



Associated Press Photos.

Jack Medica (left), Seattle youth, who shattered the world record for the mile swim yesterday in the National A. A. U. meet at Chicago, is pictured at right slashing through the water in the style that enabled him to set a new mark of 20:57.8 for the distance, bettering the former record of Arne Borg by nine seconds. Medica is the holder of six other world records.

Medica Breaks World Tank Record

Betters by 9 Seconds Best Time for Mile; Swims in 20:57.8.

By Paul Mickelson.

The 19-year-old sophomore from the University of Washington, sporting the colors of the Washington Athletic Club of Seattle, turned in his record-breaking performance to capture the National A. A. U. outdoor mile championship, making a show out of his field by swimming the distance in the amazing time of 20:57.8. His dazzling performance bettered by nine full seconds the world's record of 21:06 established by Arne Borg, of Sweden, in 1929.

High Spot of Day.

Medica's performance easily was the high spot of the day, which was featured also by the victory of Johnny Higgins, 18-year-old high school junior from Providence, R. I., in the 220-yard breast stroke; the surprise triumph of Art Highland, Lakeshore Athletic Club, Chicago, in the 100 meters free style, and the graceful form of Richard Degener, Detroit A. C., who retained his low-board diving championship with 18.26 points to spare over his closest rival, Marshall Wayne, of the Miami, Fla., Biltmore Club.

Medica's triumph today, which gave him a claim on his seventh world record—four already have been recognized and three are pending—was doubly sweet, as it squared accounts with his foremost rival, 16-year-old Ralph Flanagan, of the Miami-Biltmore.

The Seattle Destroyer took the lead at the outset in the battle over 32 laps in the long course pool, widened to 50 yards at halfway and won by 100 yards, or almost two lengths of the pool. Flanagan, defending title holder, couldn't match his speed, but finished an easy second over Herbert Barthels, Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Breaks Many Marks.

Official clockers said Medica smashed virtually every existing record on his dash, notably the 350, 1,100 and 1,320 yard marks. He swam the first 350 in 6 minutes 21.9 seconds, against Walter Spence's mark of 6 minutes 38.4 seconds; the 1,100 yards in 13 minutes 4 seconds, as against Buster Crabbe's mark of 13 minutes 38.7 seconds, and the 1,320-yard distance in 15 minutes 41.2 seconds, as against Crabbe's American record of 16 minutes 25 seconds.

Parker Nips Bryan In Chicago Tourney

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Frankie Parker, youthful Milwaukee tennis ace and defending champion, swept into the semifinals of the National clay court championships at the Chicago Town and Tennis Club today after a brilliant uphill battle that went four sets against Robert ("Lefty") Bryan, of Chattanooga. The scores were 3—6, 6—0, 6—3, 7—5.

By virtue of his victory over Bryan, Parker will meet Donald Budge, of Oakland, Calif., tomorrow. Budge advanced to the semifinals yesterday by whipping Jack Tidball, of Los Angeles, former intercollegiate titleholder, in four sets.

Kirson and Keyser Doubles Winners

Had Upset No. 1 Team.

Miss Cootes and Miss Anderson had gained the semifinals by upsetting the No. 1 seeded team of Mrs. Ruth Martinez, District champion, and Mrs. Bobsey Turney, Thursday, in straight sets.

Mrs. Miller and Miss Moore completed their semifinal test in the morning with Mrs. Bassett, the defending champion, and Miss Grimes, which was halted Thursday with the Washington team leading by one set and the score 5—5 in the second. The final scores were 6—1, 7—5.

Mrs. Miller appeared distinctly off her game against Miss Kirson and Miss Keyser, but much of her showing was due undoubtedly to the pressing shots of her opponents. Much to the surprise of observers, it was the smooth-stroking Peggy who guided her team-mate and herself to victory, although Miss Kirson had little opportunity to exhibit her sterling game, since Mrs. Miller and Miss Moore hammered the petite Washington southpaw most of the match.

Red Barry Foe-less In Promotorial War

New Haven, Conn., July 6 (U.P.).—A small-sized promotional war which threatened to disrupt New Haven's prize-fight circles was settled this afternoon, with Al Weill, New York promoter, the only loser. Mr. Weill was not present at the settlement.

Weill signed Al Gainer, New Haven light-heavyweight, and Donald Barry, Washington fighter, for a match July 12 at West Haven. It developed Gainer had already been engaged to meet Lou Brouillard at the New Haven arena on the same night.

Gainer's manager and arena promoters met with State Commissioner Joseph H. Lawlor and agreed on the Brouillard fight, leaving Weill with no foe for Barry.

Jack Dempsey To Manage Galento

Sees Great Future for His New Charge Within Year or Two.

charge were allowed to fight the roly-poly left-hook artist. Turner accepted, as did Jimmy Erwin, who was representing Galento here, but it is not known whether Galento will receive the same guarantee against Tow that he demanded to fight Brown.

Under the financial arrangements agreed to by May, Tow will not receive a cent until the gross gate receipts go above $4,000. He will take any and all money above that figure.

Arrangements for the fight with Tow were completed several days ago by Erwin, who relinquished his interest in Galento to Dempsey yesterday, and the pudgy puncher's new manager at first demurred strongly against going through with the bout. He quickly agreed to let Galento go through with the match when the circumstances were explained to him. It is understood that Erwin will continue to act for Galento in this bailiwick.

Dempsey stated that he had wished to have Galento in Washington about a week before the bout, but because of the scarcity of suitable sparring partners here, it would be necessary for him to remain in New Jersey until Friday.

To Wind Up Here.

"I understand there is no one down there for Tony to work with except a bunch of palookas he could knock over with a punch," the former champion falsettoed, "so, I'll keep him here and work with him myself, if necessary. He'll wind up his last two days' training in Washington, but he'll be ready to fight before that."

Galento has made two previous local appearances, knocking out Italian Jack Herman in the second round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Portner's and battering Marty Gallagher, local heavyweight, into an almost unrecognizable pulp at Griffith Stadium last month. He is 25 years old, of Italian-American parentage, was born in Newark, N. J., and weighs 220 pounds, although only 5 feet 9 inches tall.

Serody's Foe Is New Pet Of Ahearn

Hunt Club's Impresario Does a Little Lauding of Monday Card.

ARMED with a handful of record books, a bundle of semiofficial periodicals of punch, and a firm conviction, Mons. Goldilocks Ahearn, impresario of the Riding and Hunt Club, bearded the sports department in its den yesterday to prove that Billy McMahon, who meets Harry Serody in the feature bout of the covered pavilion's session of sock Monday, is some fighter—if not better.

"Boy, is this McMahon a great fighter? He's absolutely colossal," insisted Mons. Ahearn, fingering feverishly through the bundle of semiofficial periodicals. "Lookit here; he drew, drew mind y'a, wid Tony Falco, Tony Falco, mind y'a. And Falco beat Nebo and Joe Rossi, Joe Rossi, mind y'a. Then this McMahon—OH! what a great fighter he is!—went ahead and beat Rossi early in May, and w'at did Rossi do but go ahead a few weeks later and draw wid Bep Van Klavern, de secint rankin' welterweight, de secint rankin' welterweight, mind y'a."

"Lookit dis," he screamed excitedly, pulling up a bushel basket of newspaper clippings which he had been dragging on a dog leash. "Lookit how good dis Serody is. Boy, he is a colossal fighter! Lookit w'at dis Philadelphia sports writer says about him. Lookit here, dis Philadelphia paper says he may be matched wid Tony Canzoneri, Tony Canzoneri. Imagine a fighter like Serody against a fighter like McMahon. Boy, am I a colossal matchmaker, a colossal matchmaker!"

As Mons. Goldilocks departed the sports department he dropped a handout which informed us that he had signed Deacon Owens and Iceman Burke for one of his four-round preliminaries. In a brace of sixes, Henry Irving will meet K. O. Swede Johnson and Otto Kushmer will battle Frankie Caris. One other four, still in the making, will round out the card.

Shrine-Grotto Clash Today In Annual Game at Stadium

Masonic Teams to Resume Rivalry on Diamond; Charities Benefit.

WHILE neither team will boast a world's series lineup, the Shrine-Grotto baseball game which will grace the Griffith Stadium today possibly will rival in rivalry any American - National League game ever unwound at the local ball yard. Sponsored by the Association of Worshipful Masters, 1934, to raise funds to provide vocational and recreational training for children of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home, the contest marks the resumption of the annual affray after a four-year suspension.

Among those trotting on the diamond for the Grotto when the game gets under way at 2:30 p. m. will be George Pervis, Archie Via, Charles Biggs, Eddie Edwards, Austin Pohl, Howard Jenkins, Norman Hutchinson, Arthur Rosenberger, Oddie Printz, Glenn Jones, George Fox, Howard King, Calvin Hull and Carl Benner.

Shrine Has Star Players.

The Shrine team will be graced by such capable players as Ben Schneider, Ray Homan, Ernest Hiser, Marcus Chaconas, Reynolds Hornsberger, Sam Simon, George Wilner, Al Schneider, Lloyd Ingram, Frank Watt, C. Reinhard, J. Reid, D. Gartland and Lem Owen.

Most of the players on both nines have seen big league, minor league and outstanding sandlot action. Jenkins was given a tryout by the Yankees, Pervis starred at first for the University of Virginia, Via, Biggs and Printz play now with the Ballston team which is leading the Northern Virginia Section B League.

Watt pitched one entire season with the Phillies and Benner was on the Maryland University varsity nine last year.

Probably Watt will take the mound for the Shriners and either Pohl, Hull or Jenkins for the Grotto.

Werber Stars as Red Sox Rout A's, 18-6

Gets 4 Blows And Scores Five Runs

Handles Four Chances Without a Miscue in Wild Slugfest.

Wes Ferrell Is First Red Sox Hurler to Go Route in 10 Days.

BOSTON, July 6 (AP).—Led by Bill Werber, a Washington (D. C.) boy, the Boston Red Sox routed the Philadelphia Athletics here this afternoon in a slugging match, 18 to 6.

Werber, playing his first season as a regular in the majors, got a two-bagger and three singles out of five trips to the plate and scored five of his team's runs. The former Tech High School and sandlot ace also handled four chances afield without a miscue.

The Red Sox amassed 20 hits off the combined offerings of four Athletic hurlers, while Wes Ferrell granted 11. It was the first time in ten days Manager Bucky Harris of Boston has seen one of his pitchers complete a full game.

All Bostonians Get Hits.

Every Boston player got at least one hit, and Ferrell, who once forsook the mound when he was with Cleveland for an outfield tryout, went so far today as to get three hits, one a double. Bob Johnson and Jimmy Foxx, tied with Lou Gehrig for the league lead in home runs at 24 each, had a poor day, only Johnson being able to connect. He got one blow, a double, in four tries, while Foxx went hitless in four attempts.

The 25-year reign of foreigners over British tennis was ended yesterday when Fred Perry reclaimed the British championship by beating Jack Crawford, of Australia, in the finals at Wimbledon.

Cronin's Triple in Eighth Lets Nats Beat Yanks, 9-8

time, and the other blows were strewn judiciously about the premises by Earl Whitehill, this was a wrong answer for the examination paper. Whitehill hurriedly departed in the eighth for an early showerbath and Jack Russell replaced him, but all that is unimportant. Washington won.

Charles Ruffing, sometimes called Red the Rough on Washington, who usually can be relied upon to keep the Nats in their places on any given afternoon, attempted to gag the lads again this afternoon, but this time the boys knew all the answers. They pelted him out in the seventh after rolling him for six runs. Kind of rough on Red, as it were.

Van Atta Is Wild.

Van Atta was wild in the New York mound role, and he parted with the final three runs before heaving his last. Johnny Murphy, another of these former collegians cluttering up the Yankee roster, worked the ninth and, for some unexplainable reason, got the Nats out.

It was a thrilling game, one of those exhibitions where your heart is continually trying to move up with the tonsils. Manush, who hiked his batting average up another notch or so with three out or five, thrilled the fans with one of his patented fade-away catches to retire Crosetti in the third.

Johnny Stone went him one better in the fourth to retire Ruffing with a dive, a 10-yard slide on the running track and a nifty catch that sent the Yank twirler back to the bench talking to himself. It was a peach.

Washington broke the ice in the third, getting two runners home and having three on when Schulte popped up to Gehrig for the final out. Whitehill and Myer walked, and all were safe when Crosetti dropped Heffner's peg on Stone's grounder. Manush tied a big hunk of hickory on one of Ruffing's fast balls for a clean single to center, scoring Whitehill and Myer.

Myer led off in the fifth with the third of his four walks and came galloping home on Manush's double down third. Heinrich, himself, was moved around by a lusty two-bagger off the bat of young Cecil Travis.

Meanwhile, the Yanks had scored one run in the third on Gehrig's single which brought Saltzgaver home from second, after he had walked and moved up on another pass to Ruth.

Cronin's crew stepped out in the sixth for a run and again in the seventh for two more. This splurge was featured by Red Kress' healthy triple to center. The eighth brought the final and decisive uprising against Yankee supremacy.

Myer opened with his fourth Annie Oakley of the game, and went to third on Stone's single to right. Manush knocked one down to Heffner, who heaved the ball to Dickey at home only to discover that Buddy had scrambled back to the bag. But Stone was there too, and he was tagged out by Crosetti.

Cronin had a big hand in the affair. He contributed a long triple up against the razor blade ad in center field, which, of course, brought the others around and decided the ball game.

Whitehill left in the eighth when the hosts became boisterous and began breaking the furniture on his pitchers. A generous gesture by Earl put Byrd and Heffner on base and Jorgens with a help-your-self attitude, smacked the next pitch to left field for a double — and two runs. He made the rest of the circuit on a double by Hoag who was doing very well for himself in the Babe's right field position.

Russell quelled the riot after a sacrifice fly to left brought over the third marker.

Mungo Is Hero As Dodgers Nip Giants

Leslie's Homer With 3 on Proves Big Blow in 11-2 Victory.

BROOKLYN, July 6 (AP).—With Van Lingle Mungo on the mound, the Brooklyn Dodgers today evened their series with the New York Giants by winning the second game, 11 to 2. Mungo fanned eight Giant batters and allowed 6 hits, while the Dodgers collected 18 base hits off the combined deliveries of Joe Bowman and Lefty Al Smith. It was Mungo's twelfth victory of the season.

The most important wallop in the Dodger collection was Sam Leslie's home run with the bases filled off Smith in the sixth inning. The Brooklyn first baseman's hit ordinarily was a sharp line single, but the ball bounced high over the head of Watkins and rolled to the corner of the fence in Ebbets Field.

Frederick Gets Four.

Hal Lee's 3 Home Runs Help Braves Win, 16-13

Philadelphia, July 6 (AP).—Left Fielder Hal Lee swung a mighty bat today, hammering out three homers and a single to lead his Boston Braves teammates to a 16-to-13 triumph over the Phillies in the second straight free-slugging, loose-pitching affair between the two clubs.

Like yesterday's series opener, which the Phils captured, the power of both teams was at bat, as the Braves collected 23 hits off four Phils hurlers, while the local National Leaguers were pounding a quartet of Boston moundsmen for 18 safeties. Joe Moore hit a homer for the Phils.

Lead Tonnage In Movement Is Increased

Metal Sells at Lower Prices As Zinc Advances; Copper, Quiet.

New York, July 6.—The tonnage of lead and zinc sold in the last week was good, the former moving under the stimulating influence of lower prices, and the latter because of brighter prospects for sharp curtailment in the production of concentrate in the Tri-State district, Metal and Mineral Markets reports in its issue today.

"Copper was dull in the domestic market," the report continues, "but moderately active abroad, notwithstanding the unsettling political developments in Germany.

"Little occurred in tin to influence the price of that metal one way or the other. Silver advanced steadily on the knowledge that the Treasury has been a heavy purchaser.

"Under the incentive of a 25-point mark-down in prices, sales of lead last week exceded 8,000 tons. From a 4-cent, New York, and 3.85 cents, St. Louis, basis, which prevailed over the preceding week, the price of the metal was reduced a week ago to 3.85 cents, New York, and 3.70 cents, St. Louis, and on the following day to 3.75 cents, New York, and 3.60 cents, St. Louis.

"Prices continued at the latter level throughout the remainder of the week. Practically all of the various consuming interests were represented in the buying, with battery manufacturers and corroders placing a fair share of the total business.

"In the last week about 1,300 tons of copper were sold in the domestic market, which was considered fair under the present set-up of the industry. The price was maintained on the basis of 9 cents, Valley.

"Further progress was made during the week in the matter of inducing consumers to operate under the marketing provisions of the copper code. Some of the large electrical manufacturing companies have not as yet committed themselves.

"Actual domestic consumption of refined copper is said to be holding around 40,000 tons a month.

"The price of zinc concentrate advanced to $28 on reports that pointed strongly to an agreement on curtailment in production in the Tri-State district that may extend over the whole of July.

"A $30 concentrate basis is expected shortly. This news stimulated activity in Prime Western zinc, and about 4,500 tons of this grade alone were traded in during the last week.

"The future of the market for zinc, so far as the price trend is concerned, hinges on the success of the latest curtailment plan. The price of Prime Western settled at 4.35 cents, though demand at the advance was very quiet."

All-Star Slab Duel May Be World Series Clew

Hubbell and Gomez Due As Starting Pitchers Next Tuesday.

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, July 6 (Spl.)—Well, the great all-star baseball game controversay has been cleared up finally and we know where we stand. It isn't at all a game for the fans and by the fans' selected teams. It was quite definitely stated by Will Harridge, president of the American League, that while the fans are permitted to send in slips of paper to the newspapers naming their preferences for the all-star teams the balloting doesn't mean a thing but an afternoon or evening of innocent amusement for the fans. The leagues never said they would abide by the popular vote and never intend to do so, it appears. The two managers are given absolute latitude in naming and handling the teams. They can pick any one they want regardless of the players' standing in the fans' poll. The leagues are grateful for the suggestions and interest of the fans, but no instructions have been issued or will be issued to the managers to abide by the majority vote of the dear peepul. Well, anyway, that is that and we know where we stand.

And now that we know where the leagues stand we also know our own position. Next year they will just have to get along without us. We are willing to give the time and the space to amuse our customers, but hardly to build up the gate for a game for two professional managers. Mr. Harridge said that, after all, the primary idea was to win the game. That wasn't my notion. I thought the primary idea was to give the lovers of baseball a chance to express themselves and then see their idea put into action. Until that is made the rule of the all-star game this commentator will have to be excused on future promotion. White paper costs too much to hand out to the basebll business at that rate.

Pretty Hot Game.

Well, now that I have spoken my piece for the public and particularly for our valued clients and thumbed my nose at the baseball magnates, I will admit that there is going to be a pretty hot ball game on July 10 and that it will be worth seeing, even if they don't use the line-up exactly as voted for in the polls. In this connection I have as yet seen no comparisons between this year's likely line-up and last year's all-star teams, as expected, although last year there were numerous last-minute changes. It might be fun to examine it and see how the young men have held out.

In the National League, Bill Terry got the call last year and won it again going away this year. Frankie Frisch is still the most popular and ablest second baseman, but the fans changed their minds about short field. In 1933 Bartell, of Philadelphia, played at short for McGraw. On Terry's team you likely will find Floyd Vaughan, of the Pirates, in Bartell's pace or it may be Travis Jackson, of the Giants, the fans' preference. Pie Traynor won the nomination in 1933 and 1934 for third baseman. You'll see him in action out there again next Tuesday. Hartnett had the first call on the catcher's job last year. This year Ray Lopez, of Brooklyn, topped him in the voting.

National's Outfield.

Terry will play Klein, of the Cubs; Medwick, of the Cards, and Ott, of the Giants, in the outfield. In 1933 McGraw used Klein, Paul Waner and Lefty O'Doul. Master Carlos Hubbell was the pitcher of pitchers then. Master Hubbell is still the boss No. 1 pitcher. In 1933 Hubbell's assistants were Warneke, Hallahan and Schumacher. This year Warneke is the only other survivor. The customers have asked for Jerome Dean and Van Mungo.

In the American League, Gehrig is still the people's choice at first base and Gehringer at second. They still want Cronin at short stop and Dykes at third base, but due to some cerebration on the part of Master Cronin, they won't get Dykes this year, but a youthful party from Philadelphia named Frank Higgins. Dickey is still the catcher-in-chief. The 1933 outfield consisted of Averill, Simmons and Babe Ruth. In the 1934 edition Heinie Manush replaces Averill. Last year Lefty Gomez was one of the sub pitchers while everybody was yelling to see Lefty Grove tangle with Hubbell. This year, the Gomez-Hubbell duel is the main attraction and Grove was named as a sub along with Charley Ruffing.

Gallico Bemoans Snub of Fans, but Looks to Pretty Hot Game.

This year there will be four Giants, Terry, Jackson, Ott and Hubbell, in the starting line-up against four Yankees, Gehrig, Ruth, Dickey and Gomez. The first three innings between Gomez and Hubbell will be watched with great concentration because they unquestionably will be the starting pitchers in the opening game of the World's Series if the Giants and the Yankees come through. And, if either team slips then next Tuesday probably will be the only time these two great pitchers will face one another while they are both at the top of their form.

In a way, this all-star game is toughest on the pitchers, and three innings is plenty for each one to work, I should say. In their ordinary league games they usually get a three or four man breathing spell in the batting order when they get down near the end of the list. No such thing in the all-star game. How would you like to be a pitcher and face in succession Gehringer, Cronin, Gehrig, Ruth, Simmons, Manush, Higgins and Dickey? Or Traynor, Frisch, Terry, Ott, Klein, Medwick, Vaughn and Lopez? Those pitchers will have nightmares about that batting order for days to come.

Stocks Creep Forward in Listless Sales

Market Rises Seven-tenths as Trading Climbs to 457,727 Shares.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Stocks crept forward at a listless pace today, but were unable to shake off speculative inertia.

Fractional gains were the rule as the market dragged to a quiet close. A few strong spots contributed gains ranging as high as about 3 points and investment demand lifted various preferred issues for sizable advances.

Wall street continued to sizzle in a heat wave, and, without news from Washington or trade sources to re-awaken speculative impulses, traders preferred to stay out of the market while waiting for a definite trend to develop out of the present drift.

Commodities Decline.

Reactions in commodities tended to slow down buying. Investment demand for stocks was based chiefly on hopes that the late summer and early autumn months would bring a resumption of the major recovery movement in business. A set-up in steel and other industrial operations was expected next week following sharp curtailment this week, partly prompted by the Independence Day recess.

Volume on the stock exchange increased a little to 457,727 shares, compared with 440,466 yesterday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks moved seven-tenths of a point higher to 78.7.

Allied Chemical, which closed up 2¾ points; Cuban American Sugar preferred, up 2⅜ to a new 1934 peak; Coca Cola, up 2¼ to a new peak, and Lehman Corporation, up 2⅝, were outstanding strong spots. American Can, Chrysler, Bohn Aluminum, Commercial Investment Trust and Commercial Credit contributed gains of a point or more.

Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, New York Central and other prominent rail shares were only fractionally higher coincident with a favorable weekly car-loading report.

The brightest aspect of the business picture at present, according to the weekly Dun & Bradstreet Review, is the strength of retail trade. Hot weather, that agency said, has stimulated movement of seasonal goods into consumption, and curtailment of manufacturing schedules holds out prospect of an abrupt upturn in production later in the year if distribution continues at current levels.

Were We to Use England's Tactics in Forcing German Payments Our Stakes Would Be $141,000,000 Against $67,000,000.

By Ralph West Robey.

England's success in getting a modification of the German moratorium, while we apparently sit helpless, is almost certain to cause resentment against our State Department. Many people, without taking the trouble to consider trade balances, simply will draw the conclusion that if England can force a continuation of payments on the Dawes and Young loans, there is no reason why we should not be able to do likewise. They will hold that if England can confiscate current balances, or threaten to confiscate current balances, we should be able to follow the same course with just as much success.

Such a position will reflect a failure to realize that only a country with an unfavorable balance of payments with the potentially defaulting nation, can use such a weapon. A country with a favorable balance that used this method for forcing a debtor country to pay merely would be cutting off its own nose. The debtor country could follow the same course, or block all trade, and the creditor country in consequence not only would fail to get the greater payments it wants, but would lose some payments it otherwise would get. All of this is clear if one turns to a few simple figures.

England Had Unfavorable Trade Balance in 1932.

In 1932, the latest official figures I can find, Germany imports for consumption from the United Kingdom amounted to approximately $62,000,000. In the same year she sold German products in the United Kingdom amounting to $106,000,000. The favorable trade balance of Germany in that year in so far as this one country was concerned, therefore, was $44,000,000. What this means is that Great Britain had to pay Germany a net balance during the course of the year of $44,000,000. Or, more accurately, it means that if other items—interest on investments, payment for services, capital remittances of various sorts, &c.—had not offset the trade balance, England would have had to hand over to Germany such an amount.

In the same year the German imports from this country amounted to $141,000,000, and we bought from Germany goods valued at $67,000,000. Our position, thus, was the exact reverse of that of the United Kingdom in so far as net balance was concerned. In other words, whereas Great Britain had an unfavorable trade balance which must be covered by other payments if funds were not to flow from England to Germany, we had a favorable balance which, if not offset, would necessitate funds flowing from Germany to the United States.

Makes It Possible for England to Force Issue.

Now, consider what this means from the point of view of threatening a trade war if payments are not continued on the Dawes and Young bonds. When England makes such a threat the stake she is gambling to lose is trade amounting to $62,000,000 a year. Germany's stake, however, is $106,000,000 a year. Obviously Germany will try to reach an agreement and prevent getting sucked into a conflict in which she is at such a disadvantage.

Were we to make the same kind of a threat, however, the tables would be turned. Our stake would be $141,0000,000 against Germany's $67,000,000. It would be quite safe, accordingly, for Germany merely to sit back and say go ahead. She would know that the United States, regardless of how displeased it may be with the moratorium, would not be foolish enough to carry out the threat.

When our Government says, therefore, that our creditor position with Germany makes it impossible for us to follow the course taken by England in forcing a modification of the moratorium, it is not just using a nice excuse for the purpose of warding of criticism. Rather, it is recognizing the simple economic fact that a creditor nation can not continue indefinitely to get payments from abroad unless it is willing to accept goods.

Foreign Markets.

London, July 6 (A.P.).—Trading was very quiet on the stock exchange today. German bonds were weak, notably the Dawes issues, while Kaffirs were firm. Tin issues were dull following the decline in that metal and rubber issues were better despite the reaction in that commodity. Transatlantic shares remained steady. The closing tone was irregular

Paris—Prices on the bourse were steady to slightly higher. Royal Dutch shares advanced 10 points despite the disturbances in Amsterdam, and rubber stocks also advanced. The closing was firm.

Berlin—The boerse continued its upward trend, although only fractional gains were registered and closed sustained.

Flour Markets.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Rye irregular; No. 2 western, 62⅝ f. o. b. New York and 79½ c. i. f. New York, domestic, to arrive.

Bonds Climb One-Tenth in Slow Session

Prime Investments Hold Firm; Sales Rise to $11,817,000.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Continued firmness in prime investment issues and Government loans was the feature of an otherwise diffident bond market today.

No less than 12 separate issues of Treasury notes and Liberty bonds attained new high prices for the year, and a number of corporate obligations sold at the highest prices in several years.

Transfers approximated $11,817,000, par value, compared with $9,362,000 on Thursday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced one-tenth of a point to 86.5.

The turnover in Government loans aggregated $3,500,000 contrasted with $1,800,000 yesterday.

High Grade Bonds Scarce.

While there was no special developments in the day's news calculated to influence price trends, brokers reported there was apparently a scarcity of high grade bonds in the market and these could be purchased only by meeting offered prices.

Issues establishing new peaks for the past year or longer included Oregon Railroad & Navigation 4s, Kansas Gas & Electric 4½s, Detroit Edison 5s of 1952, Burlington 3½s of 1949, C & O. 4s of 1945, Santa Fe convertible 4½s and American Telephone debenture 5s.

Among bonds that moved up within striking distance of their old highs were American Telephone 5½s, Illinois Steel 4½s, New England Telephone 4½s, Norfolk & Western cons. 4s and Union Pacific 4s.

Included in the Treasury issues making new highs were the 4¼-3¼s, which advanced 10-32; the 3s of 1846-48, which gained 7-32, and Liberty 3½s, which improved 3-32.

Slightly Lower.

A few of the lower-priced bonds sold slightly lower, including Paramount Publix 5½s, Pressed Steel Car 5s, Wabash 5½s, Studebaker 6s and Wisconsin Central 4s.

The foreign list was quiet. German issues lost around a point and French 7s gained 1½.

Curb's Prices Hold Steady In Quiet Sales

Oils Stirred Slightly as Transfers Approximate 136,000 Shares.

New York, July 6 (AP).—The curb market maintained a steady tone throughout today's quiet dealings. Advances of the previous session were modestly extended by a number of issues, particularly specialties.

Oils stirred slightly from their recent rut, Gulf oil running up a gain of nearly 2 points. Utilities showed some improvement, while metals were narrow.

Glen Alden coal encountered moderate profit taking in approaching its recent high mark. Greyhound Corporation again edged forward in rather active dealings. Other firm spots included Down Chemical, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Sherfin Williams and A. O. Smith, all finishing around a point higher.

Transfers, which approximated 136,000 shares, were virtually the same as yesterday.

Trend of Industry Improves; New Laws Aim to Eliminate Factors Retarding Recovery

Government's Home Building and Renovation Program Designed as Frontal Attack on Unemployment; NRA Continues to Play Important Part.

By Alexander R. George.

(Associated Press.)

Industry at midyear looks back on some solid gains this spring, is set for the summer letdown and looks ahead to a seasonal advance in the fall.

Meanwhile, Uncle Sam is preparing for more "priming of the business pump" to offset such retarding factors as the prospect of reduced purchasing power caused by drought losses, dullness in the construction industry and lack of new investments in commercial enterprises.

The major business indicators show the trend from the first of the year was generally upward until well along in May, when a moderate curtailment of industrial activity developed. This was ascribed by economists to seasonal influences and the fact that production in many important lines had run ahead of apparent consumptive demand.

Recovery Seen Handicapped.

Automobile, steel and bituminous coal production made particularly striking gains this spring compared with a year ago, freight car loadings and electric power productions were up, rural general store sales advanced 60 per cent, department and chain store sales rose less spectacularly, and newspaper and magazine advertising increased substantially.

A large percentage of corporations turned losses into gains, others slashed their deficits, factory employment was the highest since December, 1930, factory payrolls attained the level of June, 1931, and the railroads continued to steam slowly out of the red.

Some trade observers, however, see the recovery movement handicapped by increased merchandise prices, which tend to offset the bolstered purchasing power of farmers and factory workers, the prospect of heavy crop losses in drought areas, the failure of the building industry to show vigorous spring expansion and the lack of private investment confidence.

The Government's home building and renovation program is designed as a frontal attack on unemployment in the heavy industries related to the construction trade where the jobless are said to number 5,000,000.

Other big weapons available for use by the Administration are continued benefit payments to farmers, Government loans to small industries, hundreds of millions of dollars for unemployment relief and aid to drought sufferers, public works expenditures and the special powers vested in the President to buy silver and change tariff rates.

Government economists recognize the vast number of unemployed and the price problem as serious maladjustments.

Due to the drought, rising prices on most staple food products are forecast for next autumn, a development which would tend to absorb increased buying power and in turn serve to curtail production.

NRA Held Helpful.

Meanwhile, NRA continues to play an important part in the business picture with Gen. Johnson and his aids tackling the task of administration of the codified industries, the revision of certain objectionable features and the working out of policies on the controverted price-fixing.

President Roosevelt, NRA officials and supporters point to a year of progress under the codes, the President declaring "we are not through yet." They cite millions returned to work at fixed wage levels, curtailment of price cutting, increases in industrial production and general stabilization of industry as achievements of NRA.

Critics contend that under NRA prices have been raised too quickly, running ahead of farm and labor purchasing power; that code administration has tended toward monopoly to the injury of the small business man, and that the interests of the consumer have not been safeguarded.

Maryland's Wheat Is Bumper Crop

Frederick, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—Frederick County farmers will complete today or tomorrow the best wheat harvest for a number of years. Every indication points to a yield almost 25 per cent above the normal and the grain is of excellent quality.

Notwithstanding the severe weather, the wheat came out of the winter much better than was expected. Reports that wheat as well as apples, peaches and berries were badly damaged, and that fruit and berries would be a total failure, were greatly exaggerated.

While very few farmers have threshed their wheat, the indicated yield is from 20 to 30 bushels per acre. In some localities the yield will be more than 30 bushels per acre. The effect of the new Federal licensing provisions on the storage of wheat in county elevators has not excited much interest here. As a rule farmers sell their wheat as early as possible after it is threshed. While some hold on expecting an advance in price, the risk is considered by many farmers too great to undertake.

Banque Regionale Reported Bankrupt

Niort, France, July 6 (AP).—The Banque Regionale, which had a capital of 3,000,000 francs (about $198,000), was declared bankrupt today.

The bank was closed recently after its president, Maurice Proust, had been sentenced to 15 days' imprisonment for "abuse of confidence."

Only a few securities were found in the safe of the bank, which had a number of branches.

Russian Black Sea Exports.

Exports from Russian Black Sea ports passing Istanbul during the first four months of the current year registered an increase of 18 per cent compared with the corresponding period of 1933, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache Julian E. Gillespie. The total volume exported during this period amounted to 3,295,681 long tons against 2,795,987 long tons in 1933.

Wool Market.

Boston, July 6 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. of Agr.).—The wool market in Boston was almost at a standstill. Asking prices showed no definite change, even though there was not enough business to establish them. The declines in opening prices at London and the weakness following the opening early this week were, however, having an unsettling effect upon the price situation in this market.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Steel prices unchanged.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 6 (AP).—Improved employment figures were reported today by William B. Stead, associate director of the United States Employment Service. He told a conference of State directors that 78,861 names were taken off the unemployed lists by the PWA and private employers during April and May, with the same trend continuing into June.

Wool goods markets were moderately active last week as clothing manufacturers placed duplicate orders on men's wear suitings and overcoatings says the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. Buying of women's wear fabrics showed signs of expanion, but actual business placed was not heavy, being limited mostly to sample lots of the new fall cloakings, according to the service.

Prices of alloy steel bars, both hot rolled and cold finished, and alloy steel billets, blooms and slabs have been reduced $2, a ton, effective July 13, at several principal centers, according to schedules filed with the American Iron & Steel Institute.

S. G. Crowell has been elected a director of the Brazilian Traction Co., succeeding the late R. O. Haywood.

Norfolk & Western Railway Co.'s pay roll will be increased approximately $75,000 monthly as a result of the 2½ per cent salary restoration for rail employes under the agreement of last April 26, according to A. C. Needles, president of the system.

Sales of S. S. Kresge Co. in June totaled $11,522,566, an increase of more than 11 per cent over the $10,304,867 reported in the same month in 1933. For the first six months sales totaled $63,291,643 against $54,726,073 last year, or an increase of 15.6 per cent.

E. S. Burke Elected.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Edmund S. Burke, senior vice president of the Kelly Springfield Tire Co., has been elected president, succeeding W. H. Lalley, resigned, it was announced today. The resignation of D. R. Weedon as vice president was also accepted by the board.

Wilkins Coffee Votes Dividend On Preferred

Homestake Mining Co. Declares Extra Return of $2.

The board of directors of the John H. Wilkins Co., coffee merchants, has declared the regular semiannual dividened of 4 per cent on the outstanding preferred stock and a dividend of $1.50 per share on the outstanding no-par common stock. Both dividends are payable July 16, 1934.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Directors of the Homestake Mining Co. declared an extra dividend of $2 and the regular monthly disbursement of $1, both payable July 25 to stock of record July 20. Previously, Homestake, a leading domestic gold mining company, paid extras at the rate of $1 monthly.

Directors of the Maytag Co. today declared a dividend of 75 cents on the $3 cumulative preferred stock and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the $6 preferred, both payable August 1, to stock of record July 16.

The payment on the $3 preferred marks a resumption of dividends, the last payment having been 75 cents a share on February 1, 1932.

On May 1, last year, the directors ordered a dividend of $9 a share on the $6 preferred, which represented the regular quarterly payment of $1.50 and $7.50 on accumulations, which cleared up all back dividends on this issue.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Cotton cloths were inactive today as most of the larger gray goods operators were away. Moderate sales of wash fabrics in cleanup lots were reported. Rayon yarn prices were somewhat irregular due to offerings of lots of varying qualities through brokers. More inquiry was reported for rayon fabrics to be made. Improvement was reported in the demand for wool goods for early cutting. Silk converters did more buying of greige goods. Satins and taffetas sold well in finished lines. Burlaps were very quiet.

Wheat Values Pushed Higher; Corn Declines

Market Rallies in Late Trading After Early Losses; Oats Lower.

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Tightening up of the wheat market as a whole resulted today from the fact that wheat available for immediate use was bringing a liberal premium.

The price of immediate delivery wheat went to the highest point in 15 years, as compared with future delivery contracts.

Wonder was expressed in some quarters as to where the Chicago market would be able to obtain any large quantity of cash wheat after the prevailing movement from Illinois and Indiana was ended.

Closes Irregular.

Rallying late in the day from early losses, wheat futures closed irregular, ½ lower to ⅜ higher than yesterday's finish; corn ½@1; down, oats at ¼@⅝ decline, and provisions 2 to 7 cents gain.

An outstanding circumstance in the wheat market was that for the first time in a long while No. 2 hard wheat at Kansas City was reported as changing hands at quotations well above the December delivery there.

Furthermore, it was announced a Nebraska mill had made an unsuccessful bid yesterday afternoon in Omaha for No. 2 hard at a price equal to 98 cents a bushel in Chicago. Another strengthening influence was a let-up of selling that has been associated with pressure of arrivals of newly harvested wheat from rural sources.

Millers were reported as active buyers of car-lots of wheat in the Chicago market, whereas offerings to arrive were of only fair volume.

Moreover, frost was reported in Manitoba, as well as in Southern and Central Saskatchewan, with ice formed at some points, causing apprehension as to possible crop damage, the wheat plant in some districts north of the Canadian border being described as in bloom.

Weakness of wheat values earlier in the day was ascribed largely to corn market setbacks resulting from timely rains over parts of the corn belt.

Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska sent word of good rains beneficial to corn, with showers in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. There were also forecasts of additional moisture both in Oklahoma and Texas. Oats followed corn.

Provisions advanced as a result of packers' buying.

HOLC Reports Distribution Of One Billion

After an existence of slightly more than one year (under the act of June 13, 1933), the Home Owners' Loan Corporation was enabled to announce today that more than $1,000,000,000 have been disbursed in Federal mortgage relief to distressed urban home owners.

The summary of operations by the HOLC covered figures available as of June 29, 1934.

During the past week 17,510 loans, amounting to $51,911,690 were closed, the report revealed, bringing the total of mortgage refunding and other advances by the corporation to date to $1,027,991,565, distributed among 341,162 individual homes throughout the country. The average loan is $3,013.

More than 99 per cent of these transactions were effected by exchange of the fully guaranteed bonds of the corporation for past-due mortgages, the balance representing cash loans to take up arrearage of taxes and for reconditioning.

Twenty-two States have each closed more than 5,000 loans to date. These are Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Maryland, Ohio Pennsylvania, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Missouri, Illinois Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Texas, California and Washington. Ohio leads with loans numbering 38,557. Hawaii reports 216 loans closed.

During the week 22,277 applications for loans were received. To date 1,510,750 applications, amounting to $4,856,269,830, have been filed. A large portion of these are ineligible, largely because many of the applicants are not in genuine distress, and such applications will be rejected as rapidly as investigation discloses the facts.

Chase National Declares Dividend

Shares May Be Placed on Semiannual Basis.

New York, July 6 (Spl.).—Directors of the Chase National Bank yesterday declared a 47-cents-per-share dividend on common stock of the bank, payable on August 1 and covering the four months ending on that date.

In accord with expectations expressed by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman, in a recent letter to stockholders, this disbursement places common shares on a semiannual-dividend basis, so that payments coincide with dividends on preferred shares.

A dividend was also declared on preferred stock, payable August 1 and covering the period from March 15. Dividends to individual holders of preferred stock will be at the rate of 5 per cent annually, while dividends on preferred shares held by the RFC will be at the rate of 4 per cent for the period from April 1 to August 1.

The 47-cents-a-share dividend on common stock, the bank announced, is to compensate for the postponement by one month from July 1 to August 1 of the dividend payment date, as against previous quarterly payments of 35 cents a share. Dividend payments hereafter will be on February 1 and August 1.

New York, July 6 (AP).—The capacity of the Nation's steel mills to produce steel ingots reached 69,390,625 gross tons in 1933, the largest ever reported for the industry, according to the American Iron & Steel Institute.

Ingot capacity increased 1,191,449 over 1932, the smallest gain in a decade with the exception of two years when there were declines. Since the end of 1929, capacity has grown by 6,323,061 gross tons, despite a drop of 99,789 in 1932.

Annual capacity to produce pig iron and ferro-alloys rose 654,086 gross tons in 1933 to a total of 51,110,061, while capacity for steel castings declined by 29,104 gross tons to 1,963,151.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a membership in the New York Stock Exchange for $96,000 unchanged from the last transaction, which was announced on May 23, and represented a decline of $9,000 from the transaction before that.

Lehman Trust Annual Reports Reveal Gains

New York, July 6 (Spl.).—Net asset value of Lehman Corporation shares gained 6.98 per cent during the six months ended June 30, a report for fiscal year ended on that date revealed yesterday.

Total net assets on June 30 stood at $58,456,431, against $54,762,902 on December 31 and $57,177,206 on June 30 a year ago.

These values were equivalent to $86.13 a share on 678,700 shares outstanding on June 30; $80.51 a share on 680,200 outstanding on December 31, and $84.01 a share on 680,600 a year ago. Net-assets are computed after deducting all liabilities, including the dividend payable today. The 2,400 shares of the corporation's capital stock purchased during the year cost on the average of $66 a share.

Cash and United States Government securities are shown on the balance sheet, the securities totaling at cost $9,176,996, against $4,434,261 on December 31, and $3,333,053 a year ago. The unrealized on assets at market value was $1,005,000 on June 30, against an unrealized depreciation of $2,982,000 on December 31, and an unrealized appreciation of $1,475,000 a year ago.

Balance of income after expenses was $1,699,819 for the year. After including $4,034,255 of profits on sales of securities, $108,737 of losses on commodity transactions and $1,655,442 to write off real estate loans and equities, the balance of the profit for the year was $3,509,896.

This compares with a balance of profit of $173,619 in the preceding fiscal year after $1,478,261 of realized losses on sales of securities and $161,576 of profit on commodity transactions.

Coffee Destruction Is Pushed Higher

Coffee destruction in Brazil during June totaled 1,227,000 bags, the highest monthly total since September last year, according to the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange.

During the crop year July 1, 1933, to June 30, 1934, 10,816,000 bags were destroyed, against 9,949,000 bags in 1932-33 and 8,376,000 during the 1931-32 year, which marked the beginning of the program to eliminate surpluses. Since the beginning of the program, Brazil has destroyed 29,141,000 bags or more than one year's consumption for the entire world.

Brazilian production for the 1933-34 crop year amounted to 29,880,000 bags, according to official estimates, of which some 2,700,000 bags were retained on plantations. This indicated that about 27,200,000 bags had left plantations. Exports amounted to 16,317,000 bags and there were 10,816,000 bags destroyed, or a total of 27,133,000 either exported or destroyed during the crop year.

Sugar Sales Rise To New High Point

Sales of refined sugar by the United States cane sugar refiners and beet sugar companies on the "buying move" of June 22, when the cane sugar quotation was advanced from 4.65 cents per pound to 4.75 cents per pound, approximated 25,168,000 bags of 100 pounds each, or 1,258,400 short tons, according to an estimate made by Lamborn & Co.

The sale of 1,258,400 short tons refined sugar (or 1,346,500 short tons, raw sugar value) is one of the largest bookings on record, and approximates 21 per cent of the 1934 United States quota of 6,476,000 short tons, raw value, fixed by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Cotton Prices Decline Under Liquidation

July Closes at 11.92 as General Market Falls 15 to 17 Points.

New York, July 6 (AP).—Cotton made a feeble recovery today after an early decline of $1 a bale. After a rally from 12.07 to 12.17, October closed at 12.10, or within 3 points of the lowest. The final tone was steady, with last prices showing net losses of 15 to 17 points.

The opening was 10 to 18 points lower, with active months showing net losses of 17 to 20 points during the early trading under scattered selling and liquidation.

The relatively easy showing of Liverpool and reports of showers in the Southwest were among the chief factors in the selling.

The failure of the detailed weather reports to show as much rain as was calculated in the Southwest brought in covering or rebuying by early sellers during the early afternoon.

Later, however, buying was checked by the forecast of additional showers in Texas, and after selling up to 11.97 for July and 12.32 for December, prices eased again under renewed liquidation in the late trading. Final quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest for the day.

A private report estimated the acreage at 28,820,000 and another at 29,157,000 acres. According to a canvass New York Cotton Exchange members on the average are looking for a Government acreage estimate next Monday of 29,150,000 acres.

Exports today, 8,603, making 7,432,360 so far this season. Port receipts, 12,778. U. S. port stocks, 2,528,984.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Chatter Squirrel Is a Good Hunter

A wild turkey has the right name, for he certainly is wild. The truth is that there is hardly any bird or animal that it is harder to slip up on than a wild turkey. It is a fact, as you know, that Mr. Man had killed several of them down on the creek, but he had been hunting them for years and years, and knew where they went to get their dinners, and he could hide and wait till they came to eat. But it's a hard job for most people to get near enough to a wild turkey to kill him with a gun.

There were lots of turkeys in the woods away up above Blackie's house, but he hadn't ever been able to catch them, and when Chatter Squirrel came Blackie asked him if he could help him get the turkeys.

"Well," said Chatter Squirrel, "I have mixed around a good deal with turkeys, and I always noticed that they seemed to think there was plenty to eat around where they found me, and they would follow me all over the woods. I reckon if Jocko would take his gun and hide behind a rock or big tree, I could make some turkeys follow me close enough to him to let him shoot them."

They talked it over and planned to take the wagon next day and go away up the mountain, where there were lots of berries and acorns and other things that turkeys like to eat. Wild turkeys get up mighty early for their breakfast and so the creek folks had to start away before day. Jay Bird flew ahead as soon as it was light enough to see, and he looked all round for turkeys.

And he found them! There were about a dozen of them scattered all about and they didn't seem to be finding much to eat. Jay Bird flew back to the wagon and told them what he saw.

"Just let me do this," said Chatter Squirrel, "and we will get more than one turkey. They will follow me wherever I go. All of you except Jocko stay here. Jocko, get your gun and come with me.

So Jay Bird, Jocko and Chatter Squirrel hurried back toward the turkeys. When they got to a big rock not far from where Jay Bird had seen the turkeys, Chatter told Jocko to sit down behind it and wait till the turkeys came in sight.

Then Jay Bird flew along and showed Chatter Squirrel where the turkeys were. Just as soon as they saw Chatter running about all the turkeys began getting together around him, for they thought he would lead them to a good breakfast. He just played around for a little while, and then he began to hop along toward the big rock, where Jocko was. And every one of those turkeys, with a great big gobbler in front, started out, one right behind the other, following Chatter Squirrel!

Well, you can just guess what happened. When that row of turkeys got in sight of Jocko Monkey, Chatter Squirrel scooted up a tree so he wouldn't get hit and Jocko shot both barrels of his gun right at that row of turkey heads. He killed the big gobbler and six others, and, before they were through fluttering, all the folks from the wagon had run up and were grabbing turkeys just like they had never had anything to eat before.

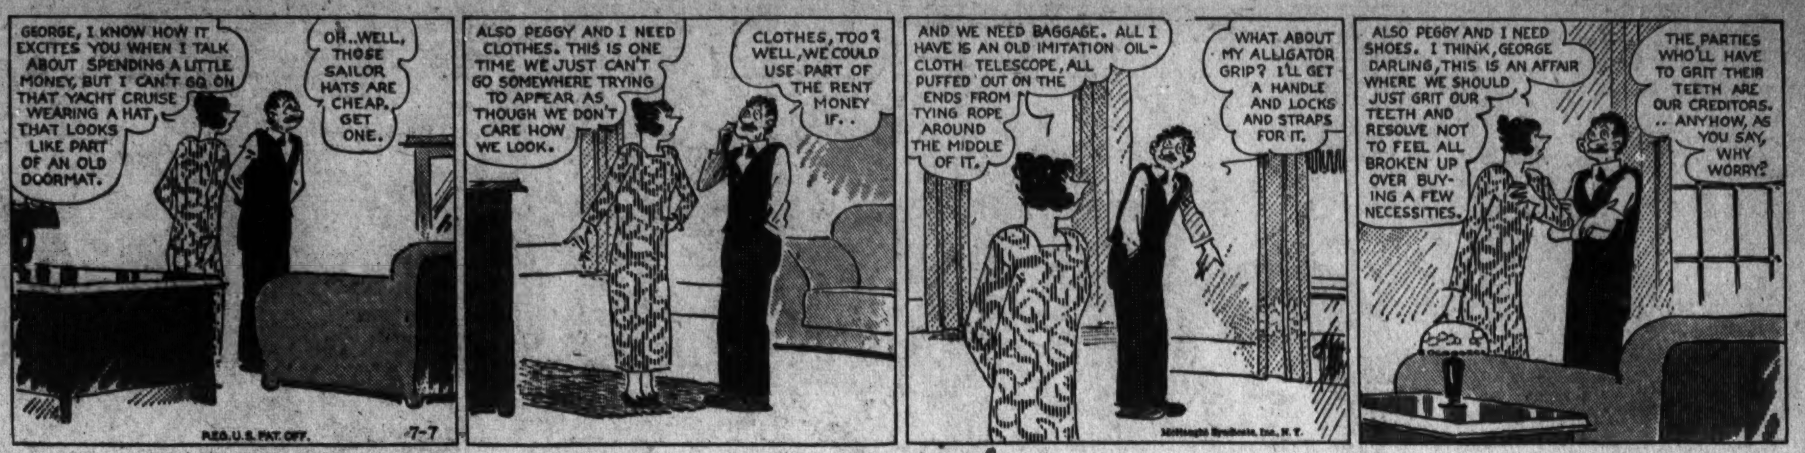
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Getting George Ready for the Cruise

By Harry J. Tuthill



GEORGE, I KNOW HOW IT EXCITES YOU WHEN I TALK ABOUT SPENDING A LITTLE MONEY, BUT I CAN'T GO ON THAT YACHT CRUISE WEARING A HAT THAT LOOKS LIKE PART OF AN OLD DOORMAT.
OH.. WELL, THOSE SAILOR HATS ARE CHEAP. GET ONE.
ALSO PEGGY AND I NEED CLOTHES. THIS IS ONE TIME WE JUST CAN'T GO SOMEWHERE TRYING TO APPEAR AS THOUGH WE DON'T CARE HOW WE LOOK.
CLOTHES, TOO? WELL, WE COULD USE PART OF THE RENT MONEY IF..
AND WE NEED BAGGAGE. ALL I HAVE IS AN OLD IMITATION OIL-CLOTH TELESCOPE, ALL PUFFED OUT ON THE ENDS FROM TYING ROPE AROUND THE MIDDLE OF IT.
WHAT ABOUT MY ALLIGATOR GRIP? I'LL GET A HANDLE AND LOCKS AND STRAPS FOR IT.
ALSO PEGGY AND I NEED SHOES. I THINK, GEORGE DARLING, THIS IS AN AFFAIR WHERE WE SHOULD JUST GRIT OUR TEETH AND RESOLVE NOT TO FEEL ALL BROKEN UP OVER BUYING A FEW NECESSITIES.
THE PARTIES WHO'LL HAVE TO GRIT THEIR TEETH ARE OUR CREDITORS. .. ANYHOW, AS YOU SAY, WHY WORRY?

Walt Mason, Himself

Progress.

In olden times our village lent high privilege to every gent, and we had stables, styes and pens, in which we kept cows, hogs and hens. A rather rancid smell arose from all these shacks in rows on rows, and they drew flies in endless swarms, which settled on our human forms, and hit our elbows and our knees and spread abroad a punk disease. And there were cranks who rose at times and said our hogs and cows were crimes; they should be banished to the farms, where live stock had admitted charms. These cranks would sometimes hire a hall, and there display their matchless gall; but as a rule we spoiled their hats with cabbage heads and old dead cats, and sometimes dumped them in the stream, for boosting so absurd a scheme. The village papers called them down, and said they wished to spoil the town; the poor man to the dump would jog if not allowed to slap his hog; the children would be famished now if no one kept a bob-tailed cow. And so we fussed to beat the band till cows and hogs and hens were vanned; a while we talked, indignant chaps, of tyrants grinding down our maps; then we got used to tyrants' wiles and viewed this modern scheme with smiles and now we'd hunt the fellow down who tries to bring a cow to town.

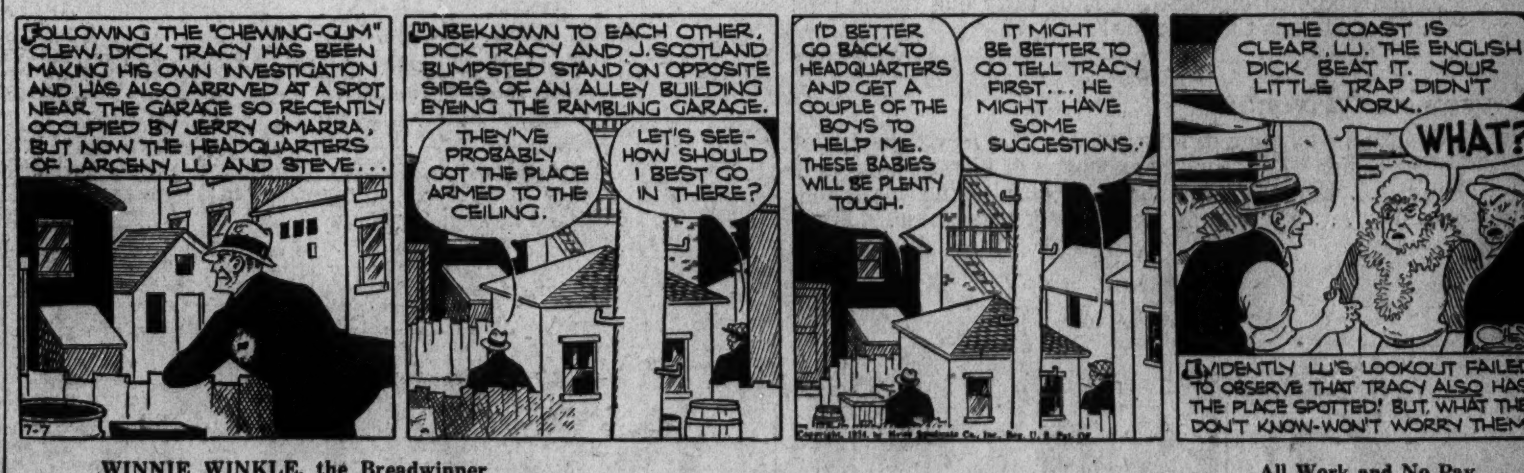
DICK TRACY

Four Eyes in the Alley



FOLLOWING THE "CHEWING-GUM" CLEW, DICK TRACY HAS BEEN MAKING HIS OWN INVESTIGATION AND HAS ALSO ARRIVED AT A SPOT NEAR THE GARAGE SO RECENTLY OCCUPIED BY JERRY O'MARRA, BUT NOW THE HEADQUARTERS OF LARCENY LU AND STEVE...
UNBEKNOWN TO EACH OTHER, DICK TRACY AND J. SCOTLAND BUMPSTED STAND ON OPPOSITE SIDES OF AN ALLEY BUILDING EYEING THE RAMBLING GARAGE.
THEY'VE PROBABLY GOT THE PLACE ARMED TO THE CEILING.
LET'S SEE - HOW SHOULD I BEST GO IN THERE?
I'D BETTER GO BACK TO HEADQUARTERS AND GET A COUPLE OF THE BOYS TO HELP ME. THESE BABIES WILL BE PLENTY TOUGH.
IT MIGHT BE BETTER TO GO TELL TRACY FIRST... HE MIGHT HAVE SOME SUGGESTIONS.
THE COAST IS CLEAR, LU. THE ENGLISH DICK BEAT IT. YOUR LITTLE TRAP DIDN'T WORK.
WHAT?
CHESTER GOULD
EVIDENTLY LU'S LOOKOUT FAILED TO OBSERVE THAT TRACY ALSO HAS THE PLACE SPOTTED! BUT, WHAT THEY DON'T KNOW - WON'T WORRY THEM.

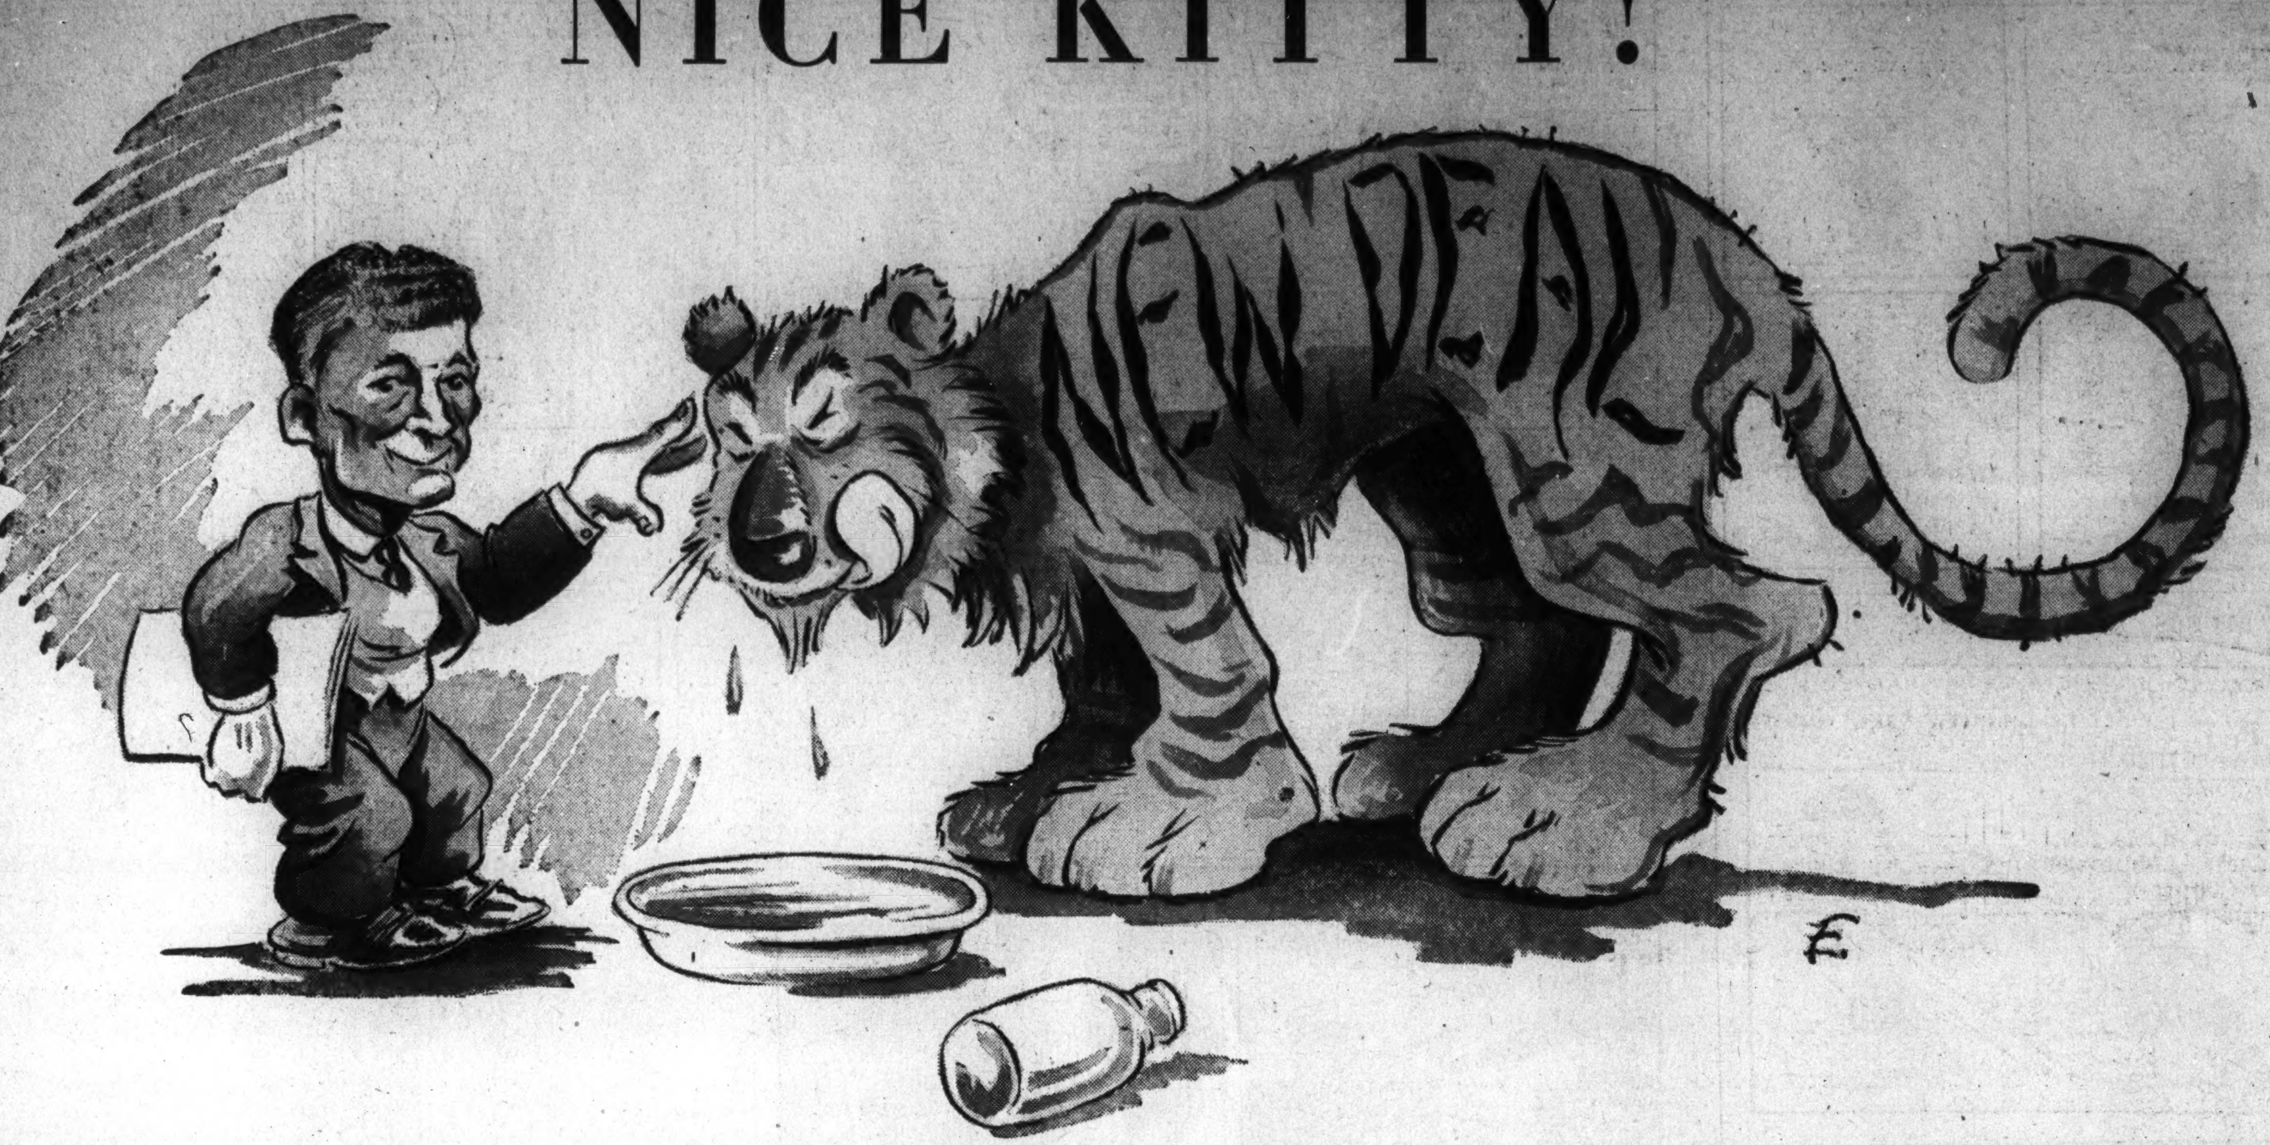
NICE KITTY!



STUART CHASE, economist and author,

has written a new series of articles on the New Deal for The Washington Post.

He says in his first, entitled "Dead Cats and the New Deal":

> "But make no mistake about it: by virtue of Government meddling, if you please, we were saved from a bottomless abyss. We have eaten. Some six millions of us have got jobs again; we have ceased to worry about the safety of our money in the bank; trade is picking up; public confidence is improved, and after four intolerable years, there is at least a little hope of security."

Whether or not your views or our views coincide with Mr. Chase's opinions . . . his articles are thought-provoking. Begin them tomorrow in the Special Articles Section.
